Harden Says German Masses Really Think Their Army Won and Allies Are Cheating Them

German Editor Thus Accounts for Lack of Excitement Over Terms of Treaty—Asserts Clique That Was in Saddle in 1914 Is "Coming Back."

BERLIN, June 4.

AND still there is no sign of national excitement, although the negotiations on the conditions of peace have entered the decisive phase. Clarity must come as to what boundaries and economic possibilities Germany will have to reckon with for its near future, but popular agitation exists only in the press and Parliaments.

These rage daily, branding the Versailles proposals as the work of deceivers, breakers of the faith and blackmailers, and swear regrettably, in the tone of street-hawkers selling out the contents of their pushcarts, that the German counter proposal offers the maximum beyond which the Government in no circumstances will go.

But the manufacture of public opinion is not so easy as the vanity of dreams. Never has any one committed suicide because he had read in the papers that he had died, and seldom has national anger raged because it was bidden to do so. Despite the roughest shaking, no storm bursts from the wind god's windbags.

Nobody bothers about the national mourning week ordered by the Government and rejected only by the Thuringian Federal state, Coburg-Gotha; and today, when the morrow can bring such fateful conditions, even the secession of Rhineland, when the nation's existence is endangered by the loss of ores, by attempts at socialization and by the pressure of taxes, one plays on all fields of sport and dances in all the ballrooms. All places of amusement are overfilled and the elevated railroads, the surface cars, subways, taxis, horse cabs and even butcher carts are densely loaded with people when races are advertised anywhere.

Think Only of Self and Quick Gain

Kismet, the Oriental superstition regarding the inevitability of fate, has advanced westward on the way of the migration of nations in arms. In every hour of humanity's great horror it was thus since Babylon fell. Athens fell from the ranks of great powers. Rome's eagles mounted on the ruins of destroyed Carthage. In Boccaccio's best city, too assuredly, only a few of the noblest spirits thought over the question of what would become of Florence and its republic tomorrow.

In such a time, which appears to be ending in world destruction among the masses, every one thinks only of himself and quick gain and narcotic pleasure. Who, clinging to a plank in a wild ocean, is troubled by the question whether the ship can still be salvaged?

The German nation still does not know what has happened or what has provoked against itself such tremendous anger of other states. Millions still believe, more firmly than Gospel, in the plot and surprise attack of which they suppose Germany was the innocent victim in 1914. Others let themselves be misled by the rigid dogma of Marxism into the conviction that capitalism is to blame for the war, as well as for all other evils in the world, and German capitalism not more than French and English.

Whoever mentions the significance of the question regarding blame for the war hears the answer slyly suggested by the Government: "Why, we have asked for investigation by a neutral court, but our enemies won't have it, because they fear they will be convicted; and we cannot permit the accusers to be at the same time the judges."

Won't Admit Law Was Broken

The possibility is not recognized of letting the few neutrals still remaining in Europe—who undoubtedly would decline such a dangerous job—sit in judgment on a quarrel between 32 against four world powers, including the greatest and strongest. Just as little does one recognize that Germany employed means of warfare no longer permitted by international law or by the modern concept of humanity.

Only "the hunger blockade" is considered to be barbarous and in violation of international law. That is what the Government says even in its latest notes. It says, too, that Germany "voluntarily made itself defenseless because it sought a peace of justice, and therefore it was not really beaten, in a military sense."

From all this there has resulted a distorted picture of the reality. The belief remains widespread that Germany waged a defensive war with unparalleled success against superior force; that Germany was never beaten, but only gradually weakened by the hunger blockade and demoralized by the Russian propaganda and millions of rebels; and that it was then decided to accept as a basis for peace the 14 points, which formerly had been rejected as not to be discussed and now appear to us as harmless and without danger to us.

> Already those who wish to restore the old order feel encouraged. Monarchists, Junkers, Militarists, Pan-Germans and anti-Semites again dare talk loudly and brusquely. As the National Socialists fear being crowded out of the majority by the Independents, whose Berlin organ, Freiheit, has 50,000 more subscribers than Voerwaerts, the National Socialists attach themselves more firmly than ever to the Bourgeoise parties, who write democracy, to be sure, on the signs over their stores but who cannot give practical effect to democracy because of fear for their profits and money-bags.—MAXIMILIAN HARDEN.

The masses believe Germany voluntarily discarded its armaments, and is now to be cheated, deceived and forced to comply with the most atrocious conditions ever imposed upon a nation, which must annihilate all hope of Germany's resurrection.

"Our enemies were jealous of our thoroughness," the belief goes, "and they started the war to annihilate us. What they could not achieve by arms they succeeded in doing by cunning, when we went into the mousetrap."

Why Did They Overthrow Rulers?

One hears this daily everywhere. The astonished stranger who hears it may ask: "Why, then, did you make a revolution that could be justified only before the court of common sense? Your revolution was born of the conviction of the wretchedness of the old system of government whose inhumanity and practices of lying and of deception brought upon you the hate of the whole world, in spite of all your national manifestation of strength."

One who lives here with senses wide awake will in the pause following the above question, which may be answered only by shrugs on all sides, realize the grotesque humor of the situation. Such humor might proceed from the horror of a vision of a Poe, or from a revolution which overturns the seemingly rock-firm Kaiser throne, lets more than two dozen deeply-rooted dynasties disappear, as if overnight, without leaving a trace, tears down all the shining stucco from Germany's facade, appears completely to demilitarize the country, brings to the helm the party of the most radical Socialism—and after all that the forces of the new Government are mobilized for the defense of the old regime against international accusations, and every day it is professed that the formerly imperial Germany never wanted the war, did not begin it, and conducted it in the exercise of nobler morality than was attained by its enemies.

Such a happening the sun never before saw anywhere. Why does our sun see it? Because the gentlemen who are ruling today are the same who four years ago approved, glorified and participated in everything the old imperial Government did, and pledged themselves to their parties that Germany was in the right; and if the actions of these persons were now shown to have been false and the product of lies, might well fear to lose their following at this time and who might not again be able to raise themselves or their party to power, in any period that can be foreseen.

Also Must Share the Blame

For this reason they champion everything said, ordered and done in the empire since 1914, as if it had been their own work. As collaborators they must also share in the blame, if guilt is fixed or confessed. The law should make ineligible for five years for election to Parliament all persons who voted for the war credits after January, 1915, for such men cannot today judge with the impartiality which this earnest hour demands and all are too easily misled to see their wisest course in respect to matters they helped to decide.

The National Assembly has the same spokesmen as the old Reichstag and the principal men in the Government today were Secretaries of State in Wilhelm's last house, and to the last they

What to Do With Constantinople

Writes Frank H. Simonds

Most Serious of Turk Problems

Disposition of Turkey in Asia of Minor Import Compared to It—Europe Willing for America to Exercise Mandatory, but Our Willingness Is Not Yet Established.

By FRANK H. SIMONDS,

Author of "The Great War" and "They Shall Not Pass."

PARIS, June 7.

A WEEK ago I discussed in detail the problems presented by the breakup of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, problems which are before the Paris conference and so far as they affect German Austria, will be solved by the treaty of St. Germain. It remains now to discuss the problems presented by the Turkish empire, which has also collapsed and must be dealt with in Paris.

Turkey presents two distinct questions: The question of Turkey in Europe, which is minor so far as territory is concerned, but of supreme importance on the strategic side, because it includes Constantinople and the northern shores of the Straits; and the problem of Turkey in Asia, which is, or was, an empire greater than Germany or Austria in area, with a population approximately that of Spain.

The ultimate disposition of Turkey in Europe depends entirely upon the decision of the Paris conference. As to the future of Constantinople, if this city and the surrounding territories are to go to the natural heir, to the country most largely represented by the races inhabiting the region, there is no question of Greek rights. From the beginning of history Constantinople has been Greek. It was the capital of the Byzantine empire, which was Greek. It only fell to the Turks in the fifteenth century and to the present day Greeks have remained one of the largest elements in the city population. The shores of the Straits and of the Sea of Marmora are Hellenic in history and in population.

Reasons Against Greek Control

But there are a dozen reasons why it would be an unwise thing to bestow upon so small a country as Greece, so staggering a responsibility as the guardianship of the entrance to the Black Sea. To bestow them would be to deprive Bulgaria of any outlet on the Aegean. It would place Greece in the future across the pathway of a new Russia, for there will be a new Russia. It would impose burdens and repsonsibilities for which, at least at present, Greece is not prepared.

The second solution, much discussed in Paris, would be to make Constantinople and the shores of the Straits and the Sea of Marmora a mandatory under the league of nations. Not a few people regret that Constantinople was not selected as the capital of the league of nations, the seat of its conferences and the territory in which the league of nations would exercise something like the temporal power once held by the Popes in Rome. This possibility having been eliminated, there was a long discussion of the possibility of consigning Constantinople to the United States as a mandatory, separating it from Turkish territory in Asia and bestowing upon it most of the remaining territory of Turkey in Europe.

This would have meant to eliminate the Sultan. It would have meant putting away the Sick Man out of Europe at last, after 500 years of incompetence and worse. But the Sultan of Turkey is not merely head of the Turkish empire, but the recognized spiritual head of the larger part of Islam, and very promptly there came from British India and from other parts of the Mohammedan world emphatic protests. These protests would have had little weight had there been any clear-cut policy as to Constantinople, but there was not. The European nations were willing that the United States should undertake the task of repeating in Constantinople what was achieved in Havana, but all Europe has agreed against the transfer of this city to any single European Power, while there is not much enthusiasm at the moment on the part of the United States representatives.

An Alternate Proposal

It was then proposed, and is now under discussion, that Constantinople, Anatolia, which is the larger part of Asia Minor, and Armenia, should be constituted mandatories under the league of nations, Armenia certainly to be assigned to the United States, Anatolia either to the United States or France, and Constantinople, with Anatolia, to the United States if our country agrees to take Anatolia. Over Anatolia and Constantinople the Sultan would have shadow authority, such as is maintained by the Khedive of Egypt or the Bey of Tunis.

> THE Turkish problem differs from that of Austria-Hungary only as the races of the territory affected are incapable, at least in any present time, of independence. They cannot govern themselves, they cannot be erected into a semblance of independent countries. They must, in any event, be charges of the Western Powers, and only if the Western Powers were prepared to lay aside commercial and political aspirations would the presence of these nations hold out any real hope of regeneration of the Near East. In these regions, our missionaries and our colleges have contributed enormously to education and liberation of the peoples from their own darkness. America is a very real force and a very real basis for hope. It may be, as many in Paris believe, that we have an obligation to undertake the task of rebuilding. If the task is to be undertaken, no American should blank the fact that it will be a long, difficult and dangerous one.—FRANK H. SIMONDS.

This solution of the problem of Asia Minor was, however, complicated by innumerable claims, and by not a few secret treaties. By the treaties in which Great Britain and France agreed to support Italian claims to Trieste and Dalmatia, they recognized Italian claims to Dodecanesus and the islands of the Eastern Aegean taken in war, and to practically all the southern coast of Asia Minor, including the great Gulf of Adalia. Some encouragement was also given to the Italian claims upon Smyrna.

But the allies have already assigned Smyrna to Greece and have united in asking Italy to abandon her claims to Dodecanesus, in view of the fact that the population is wholly Greek. It results, therefore, that Italy has demanded and will doubtless receive further concessions in the hinterland behind the Gulf of Adalia. Thus the whole of the western coast of Asia Minor, with the great port of Smyrna and all the south coast, and Adalia, are separated from Anatolia. If one were also to create a separate state out of Constantinople and the shores of the Straits, Anatolia would be deprived of all its outlets to the sea and some seven or eight million Turks would be penned up in Asia Minor.

The Franco-British Agreement

As to Anatolia, previous agreements have made this question difficult also. Under one Franco-British arrangement, the French were to have the Gulf of Alexandretta and Armenian territory between the Taurus Mountains and Amanus, about Adana. This would deprive the Armenians of an outlet on the Mediterranean, and under American impulsion France has been persuaded to abandon this part of her claims. True, Armenia, a solid block of hinterland about the headquarters of the Euphrates and between Anatolia and the old Russian frontier, has all along been indicated as the site of the Armenian state, but in a very large part of this area, as a result of massacres, Armenians are in a minority. On the other hand, the collapse of Russia has made possible a union with Turkish Armenia and Russian Armenia, districts which are in far better condition both as to population and economic circumstances.

But it must be recognized that if there is great opportunity in Armenia, there is a stupendous task, increased by the rivalries of the surrounding races. If Russia ever regains her full strength, as is likely, she is bound not alone to demand the retrocession of her own Armenian districts, but also of those other Armenian districts, and, for that matter, of course, Constantinople, promised her in her 1915 agreement with France and Great Britain. French interests in Syria and British concern on the Euphrates will be equally affected by the erection of a relatively strong Armenian state with what both will regard as the hinterland of the Syrian and Mesopotamian countries, while the Turk may be expected to nourish the hope of reclaiming his Armenian provinces. Nor will the task be lighter in view of the age-long feud between the Mohammedan Kurds, actually a majority now in Armenia.

Mandatory in Armenia

If the United States should take Armenia alone it will have to build many railroads over a difficult country and many highways. It will have to create harbors, it will have to maintain a considerable army over an extended period of time in a country where disorder has been the common circumstance for a thousand years, where racial feuds have led to massacre time and again. It will take at least half a century to put Armenia on its feet, but on the other hand there is no mandatory within the gift of the league of nations which would offer a greater chance for unselfish human service. The Armenians themselves are industrious, their country has great

China, Not Japan, the Aggressor in Far East, Baron Goto Declares

Former Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs Says There Is Little Danger of Conflict Between His People and Americans—Any Misunderstandings Deplored by the Dominant Political Figure of the Orient.

By Adachi Kinnisuke,

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 7.

LEANING back in his chair at his hotel in New York, a few days ago, Baron Goto talked with me. He talked forcibly, directly, authoritatively.

He is the most dominant political figure in Japan today. He has been called the "Japanese Roosevelt," because of his habit of speaking his mind, because he cuts corners, because he pierces through the conventional diplomatic pretenses.

Than this same Baron Goto no one has served his country in larger or more varied capacities. He was the first civil governor of Formosa; then they switched him over to Manchuria, and he ran the South Manchurian Railway. For some years he presided over the Imperial Japanese railway system. Terauchi called him to the Ministry of the Interior in his Cabinet, and then, as Foreign Minister, he became an international figure. There are those who see in him the next Premier of Japan. From this it should be clear that Baron Goto knows what he is talking about.

"Isn't it about time," I said to him, "that Japan should find a man big enough to come right out and say that American and Japanese interests in the Far East do not coo and tune like a pair of mating doves; that in more than one point they collide? Why not frankly admit the fact and then talk of the practical remedy?"

Believes in League of Nations

"American-Japanese collision in China? Harping on it, emphasizing it, advertising it, pin-pricking the sore morning and night, do not cure it. It raises all sorts of ghosts in the nightmare tangle of the Far East. I do not believe in the nightmare factor of political phantoms. I do believe in the power—in the healing ability of the league of nations," said Baron Goto in answer.

"Pre-eminent statesmanship of the world fathered the league. It should be wide and sane enough to solve whatever may arise in the American-Japanese relations in the Far East. If it cannot, then the situation is much graver than we have any idea.

"The very premises from which so many people approach the extreme Eastern situation are wrong. Why so much insistence on American-Japanese friction out there? In my judgment there is no graver cause for American-Japanese collision than this persistent insistence on this very point. The most of the talk about the American-Japanese collision of interests is based upon rumor; 90 per cent of it is plain, unadulterated stuff of which ghosts and nightmares are fashioned.

His Story of a Samuari

"There was a Samurai once upon an ancient time who drew his sword and slashed away at a stone pillar—for no other reason at all than that the night was dark and his imagination was lit up a bit too brightly—you have heard the story, haven't you? Human beings are imperfect; human states are not without flaws. Nor are international relations. But all of us turning into so many Jeremiahs and adding our lamentations to the world's woes will not improve anything much. War and dissensions among nations are not the normal condition of things. It is as illness is with the individual. To one year of war we have had 10 years of peace. And it is the normal, healthy condition of international relations that are vital and worth while.

"I am not disturbed by these misunderstandings between the United States and Japan which are being so persistently advertised by certain peoples," continued Baron Goto. "As far as I can see, the so-called misunderstandings are already mothering better understandings between the two peoples. Witness, for example, the exposure of the German intrigues and propaganda to embroil us in war with the United States; witness the effect of the Zimmermann scheme of the German-Mexican-Japanese alliance.

"From what I hear, great capital has been made out of the alleged Japanese dominance of China. Some of our good American friends seem to think even that Japan is oppressing the people of China and lording it over China and the Chinese with high hand. Nothing is further from the truth. Quite the other way about—as a matter of historic fact. China has tried both to oppress and dominate Japan—not Japan China. Time was when China looked down upon us as her dependency—treated us as a tribute bearer. And that was not so many centuries ago, either.

> AMERICAN-JAPANESE collision in China? Harping on it, emphasizing it, advertising, pin-pricking the sore morning, noon and night do not cure it. It raises all sorts of ghosts in the nightmare tangle of the Far East. I do not believe in the nightmare factor of political phantoms. I do believe in the power, the healing ability of the league of nations.—BARON GOTO.

At that time the oppression and arrogance with which China treated us seemed perfectly natural to the people of the United States. And now suddenly it has been discovered that the Japanese are playing the part of a monster tyrant over the gentle and ever guileless China. And America is perfectly scandalized at the very thought of it. In the old days, when autocratic China in his most offensive form lorded it all over the petty Asiatic states, occidental admiration for her seemed akin to adoration. Her physical proportions imposed themselves upon the imagination of the Occidental Powers; so did her teeming millions of people. The more insolent and the more oppressive the Chinese autocracy proved, the more respect she seemed to command at the hand of the Western countries. If her attitude were extremely haughty to the Occidentals, her barbarous arrogance was utterly unbearable to us, the smaller Asiatic Power.

"And it is this China—now that it has been shown before the eyes of the world that she is another Aesop's frog—who denounces the arrogance of Japan. She demands that the rest of the civilized world should protect her and uphold her while she tears up her solemn treaties with Japan, under the plea, forsooth, that she had signed them under duress!

Japan's Great Work in Formosa

"Much, very much, has been said in this country of Japanese aggression in China. As a matter of cold history there is only one island which Japan took from China. That is Formosa. Let our American friends look into the story of Taiwan, as she is called now under the Japanese rule. Let them compare the conditions of the islanders—their present conditions—to those prevailing at the time of Chinese occupation. Ninety per cent of the islanders are Chinese. Are there any of the American people who think that the majority of the islanders today, in spite of all the improvements in their physical wellbeing, would rather go back to the Chinese administration of old? All they have to do is to take a referendum on this matter. I am sure that the Government of Japan would be glad to abide by the decision. From what I know of the Formosan conditions and Formosan people, I think their voice would be overwhelmingly for the Japanese Administration.

"An impression seems to prevail here that all the leaders of China denounce Japan and her policies. That is wrong. Some of them are vociferous against what they call the autocratic policy of Japan. They judge Japan by the Chinese standard; that is why they know very well what China would do if she were in the commanding position in which they find Japan of today. When they decry the unholy Japanese ambition they are simply denouncing what China has always done in the past, when she was in power over the weaker sisters among the Asian states. She is fighting the dark children of her own guilty political conscience when China paints Japan in the crimson colors of a monster tyrant.

China Fighting a Fantom

"Chinese politicians of this type are ever poisoning the sacred pledges of Japan to her people. They cannot receive the promises of Japan without suspicion. This also comes from the traditional political mode of thought in China. Chinese politicians are loud in speaking of 'O-Do' (Wang Tao) and of 'Ha-Do' (Ha-Tao). By 'O-Do' they mean the administration of the country through the gentle, humane methods worthy of a sage King, and by 'Ha-Do' they mean the onerous oppressed by a militant autocracy. Now it has been the time-honored usage with a certain school of Chinese politicians to speak loudly of O-Do—the way of the sage Kings—when they are merely talking; but when they come to the actual administration of affairs of the country they adopt the criminal methods of armed tyranny. It is not unnatural, therefore, that the Chinese politicians are ever inclined to read into the protestations of the Japanese Government a meaning which is not there at all. When Japan pledges her honor to do certain things, they at once conjure up something totally at variance with the substance intended.

"Take, for example, the case of the German lease of Shantung. When Japan says that she

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Mr. Gompers on Prohibition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In an article recently published by the Post-Dispatch Samuel Gompers, whom I respect as the greatest of labor leaders, makes an indignant outcry about what he speaks of as "the foisting of prohibition upon this country against the palpable wish of the large mass of the people." It is "the few," he assures us, who, in this matter, "try to tell the many what they must or must not do." "The few" have managed to change the Constitution and now the great and populous states, desirous of regaining their liberty, can be thwarted by 13 even of the smallest.

If this were a correct statement of the case then it would be true that government of the people by the people had perished from the earth. But there are several conspicuously outstanding facts which deserve consideration and explanation from this able man, and some great papers which appear to be joined with him in a propaganda against the Constitution of the United States in its present form.

1. Two-thirds both of the Senate and the House of Representatives submitted the prohibition amendment to the Legislatures of the states. If Mr. Gompers is correct as to the "palpable wish of the large mass of the people," then we have sent a most remarkable set of men to represent us in Washington, for one of two things must be said of them, either their ignorance concerning the views and wishes of their own people was, as one of our great humorists would have put it, "dense and loathsome," or politicians as they are, they were in this matter most heroically fanatical, defying public sentiment in behalf of their hobby and exposing themselves to the certainty of being driven from office by the indignant people. In either case they are a remarkable set of men.

2. The amendment has been ratified by 45 out of 48 Legislatures, and that in about one year out of the seven allowed them for ratifying. Added to the two houses in Washington this would make 47 very remarkable bodies of public men if Mr. Gompers has a correct judgment as to "the palpable wish of the large mass of the people."

3. The ratifying states include all the very large ones like New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and my own beloved native State, Missouri. The three which insist upon taking at least more than one year out of the seven allowed them before ratifying are New Jersey, Connecticut and little Rhode Island. Many believe that these will yet join their sister states, making the ratification unanimous.

4. Before Congress sent the amendment down for our adoption a large majority of our fellow countrymen were already living under prohibition which they had freely chosen for themselves as states, counties, townships or municipalities. This, at least, was not forced upon them by fanatical Legislatures.

5. After the amendment was submitted its enemies rejoiced in the fact that 13 states could defeat it even if there were 35 in favor of it. The provision of the Constitution requiring three-fourths of the Legislatures to amend it pleased them very much. It seems inconsistent for them now to complain of that very provision because it stands in the way of bringing back the old rule of the liquor traffic.

Mr. Gompers is so demonstrably wrong as to the sentiment of the people at large that I feel more authorized than I would to doubt his judgment about that of the laboring men. Outside of large cities I believe the mass of working people agree pretty generally with the temperance and prohibition views of their fellow citizens around them. BENJ. Y. GEORGE.

Drinking Under New Conditions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Take the reports that have and are coming in from prohibition states, including the provinces of Canada, and three points are invariably emphasized:

1. Miserable whisky and worse substitutes are easily obtainable at high prices by drinkers.

2. About 90 per cent of the people are evading or winking at the evasion of the law.

3. The majority of the people would seem to be opposed to repeal for fear that the open saloon will return.

In a word, it is evident that the people want whisky, wine and beer, but do not want the saloon and rather than have the saloon will put up with mean whisky, spies, searching of homes and autos, loss of revenues and general disregard of law.

Why not a new program, providing good liquors, big revenues, strict regulations and no saloons?

We do not need drinking places. Let us have eating places where drinks may be served as in the cafes of Europe. No liquor ought to be sold in any place where a man cannot take his wife and children. Even Havana, Cuba, has accomplished that and seldom does anyone see an intoxicated man on her streets.

T. M. GILMORE,
President National Model License League.

THE ZINC CONVENTION.

The proceedings of the second annual convention of the American Zinc Institution, which will be held in St. Louis this week, should prove of unusual interest to both departments of that industry, namely, its mining and manufacturing.

The experience of the zinc industry since the outbreak of the world war has been extraordinary. During the first two years of the war, following the destruction of European mines and smelters, there was an enormous demand for American zinc. Prices for the metal and the ore went to dizzy figures. Production everywhere was stimulated into feverish activity. In the Oklahoma field, which was just becoming a producer, a frenzy of development followed, with the result that what has been called the "richest deposits of high-grade zinc ore in the world" were opened up. In Missouri, Kansas and Arkansas mines which had ceased to be profitable took on a new lease of life, in the West operation was resumed in workings long abandoned.

The inevitable consequence followed. Production overtook demand and finally went far beyond it. As the peace demands for zinc steadily diminished with the continuance of the war, and at length all but disappeared, the surplus of zinc fairly glutted the market. Prices began to recede slowly at first, then faster and faster, slumping back to pre-war levels and continuing the descent until only the exceptionally rich mines could be operated.

At that juncture the American Zinc Institute was organized. At the first meeting, which was also held in St. Louis, a representative of the New Jersey Zinc Co. declared that the zinc people must do two things: They must multiply and extend the uses of their product and they must advertise zinc. In the past year the New Jersey Zinc Co. has put that advice into practice. It has conducted a systematic advertising campaign and has experimented in the manufacture of zinc shingles and zinc shingle nails. It is presumed that a report of the year's experimenting will be made at the forthcoming convention of the institute.

For the zinc shingle the claim is made that it lasts as long as the building. It is said to be used extensively in Europe, but according to miners and smelters, there isn't a building in the United States roofed in zinc. The zinc shingle nail is said to prolong substantially the life of cedar shingles, but zinc shingle nails are not obtainable in Missouri, which for years has been the leading zinc ore producing State in the Union.

Heretofore zinc mine operators have sought relief from adverse markets by curtailing production or by importuning Congress for a tariff. The American Zinc Institute, at its first meeting, sounded a constructive note in urging publicity and the creation of new zinc products for new spheres of zinc usefulness. It is along this line that the zinc industry, and other industries may come into a permanent and growing prosperity.

WOMEN AND THE TAX DODGERS.

According to reports from Jefferson City, Gov. Gardner refuses to consider the calling of an extra session, because the State cannot afford the cost.

Why cannot the State afford the expense of an extra session? Because three Democratic officers of the State, Attorney-General McAllister, State Treasurer Middlekamp and Secretary of State Sullivan, composing the majority of the Board of Equalization, refuse to obey the Constitution and the laws of the State requiring equal and uniform assessments of property for taxation. For the same reason the eleemosynary and educational institutions of the State will have to go on short rations. The State is bankrupt, facing a great deficit.

These law-breaking members of the Board of Equalization are keeping the State in a financial hole for the purpose of favoring tax-dodging voters.

If the women of Missouri want to know why they are to be denied their full suffrage rights in the next election, through a failure of the Legislature to ratify the constitutional amendment, let them look to the record and the attitude of these three Democratic officials. They would do a public service by putting the question of the State's financial disability to these officials and thus placing the responsibility for the State's delinquency in its obligation to them and to the people, where it belongs.

PUBLIC OPINION RULES.

By the sweeping decision of the United States Supreme Court the joint resolution of Congress by which the management of the railroad and telegraph and telephone utilities was taken over by the Government is validated and vested with complete managerial authority. In consequence the decrees of the courts of a number of states enjoining the collection of the Burleson telegraph and telephone rates are annulled.

The Supreme Court's construction of the congressional resolution is sound. No other construction was conceivable. Nevertheless, the protests of a number of states, through suits seeking to prevent the enforcement of the Postmaster-General's rate increases have not been in vain. The actions instituted by those various state commissions have had a wholesome effect. They have reflected public opinion. They have strengthened and developed public opinion. They have condemned, authoritatively, the high-handed procedure of the Postmaster-General. They have pronounced his management of the wire utilities as hateful and intolerable. They have expedited the return of those properties to private management, which now only awaits congressional action.

Public opinion rules in this Government.

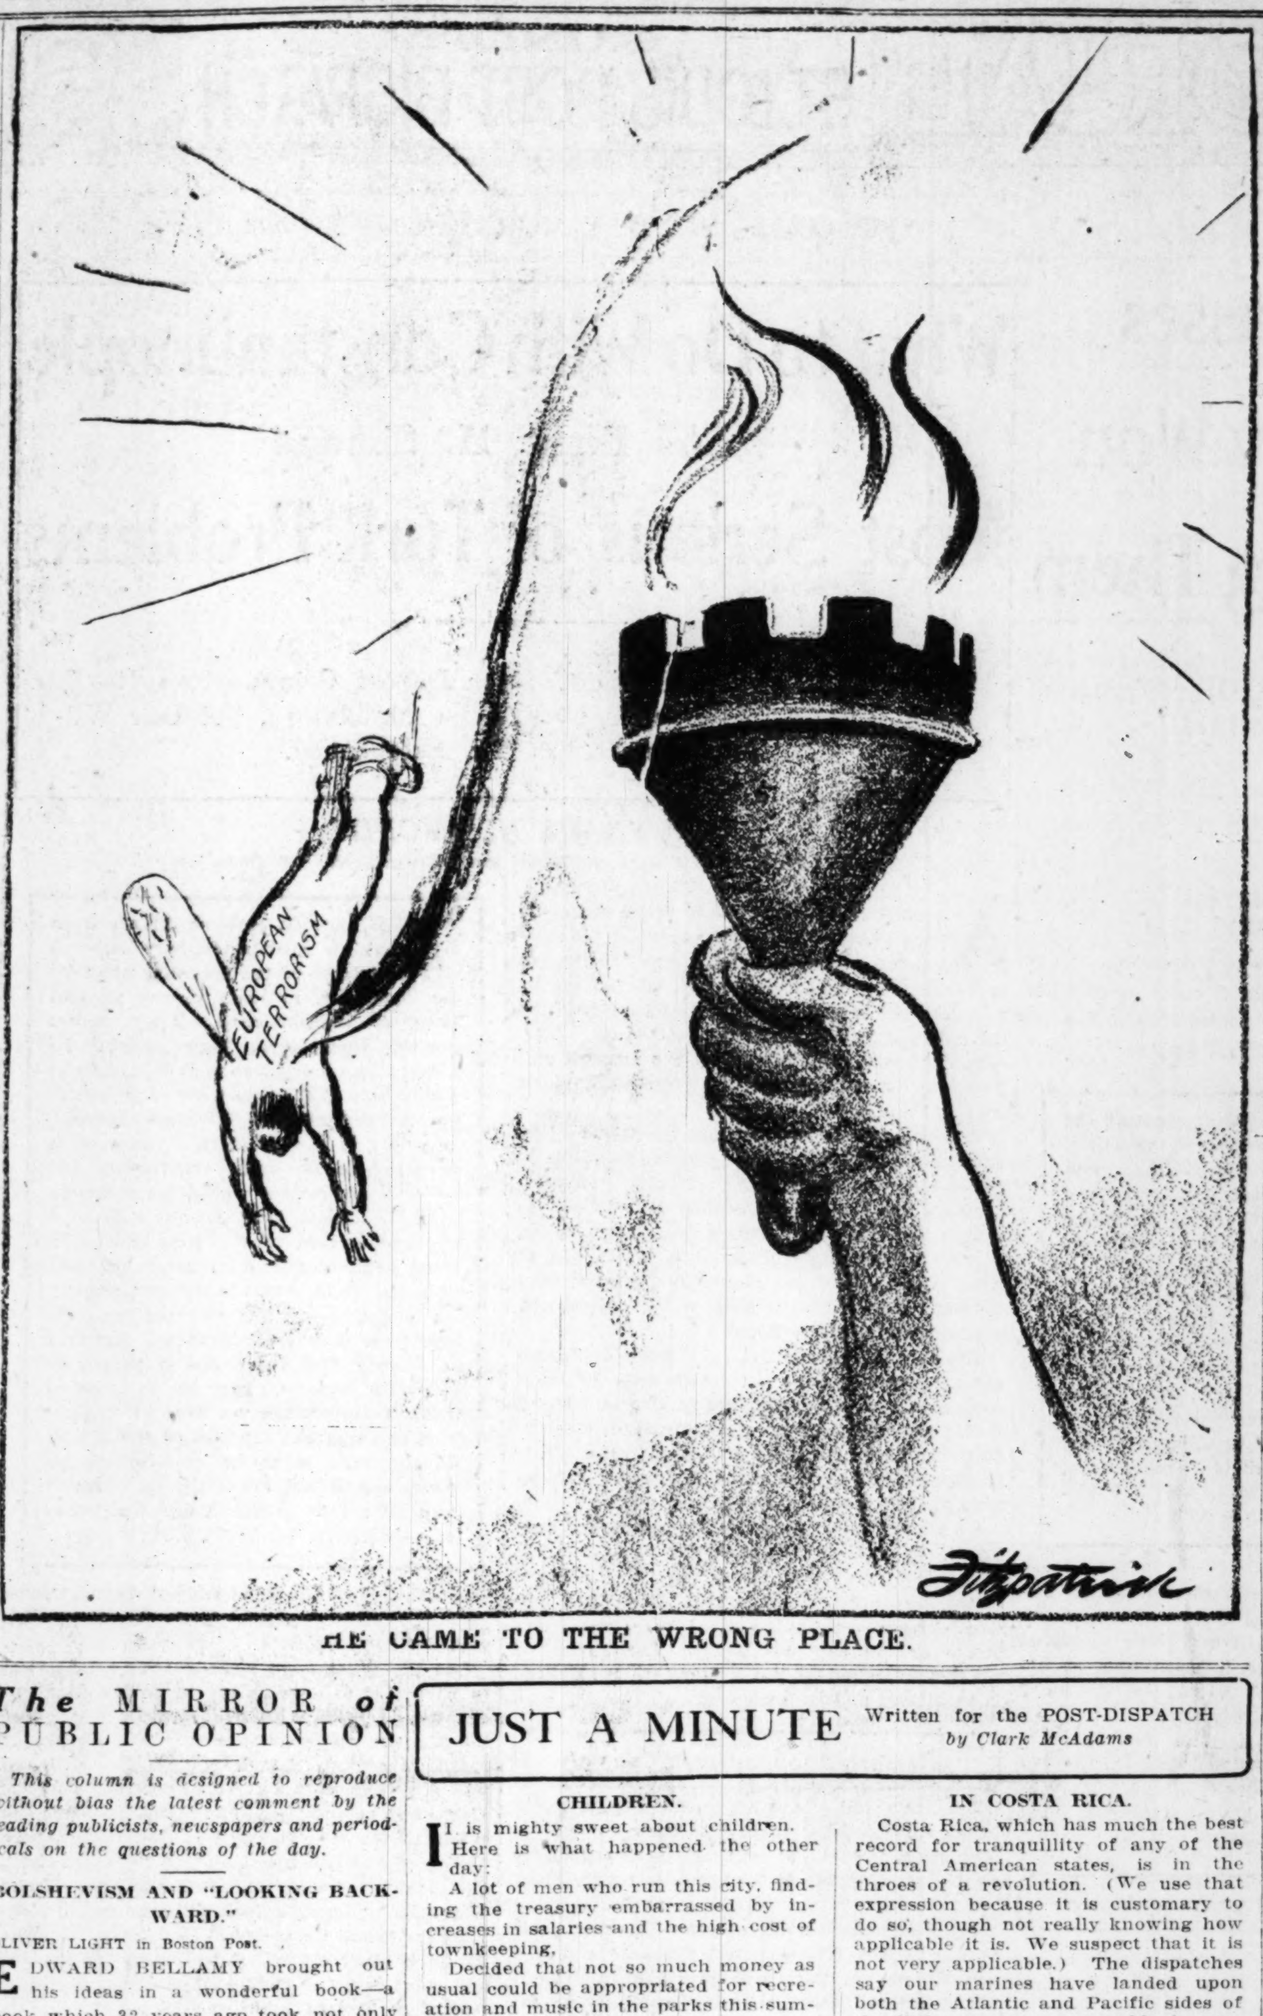
THE BOSTON NOSE.

The world has failed sadly to appreciate or comprehend the Boston nose. Heretofore it has been our superficial impression that the Boston nose was an instrument which its owner and proprietor talked through. It was conceded that the Boston nose contributed a rare pungency to the accent, that it spread a vibrant twang across the remarks.

Of course, the decorative qualities of the Boston nose have been adequately appraised. We have all seen the Boston nose of the Byzantine school, its rococo scrollery speaking eloquently of Medford meditations and claret colloquies. And everyone is aware that Boston is the habitat of the erudite nose.

But the Boston nose is a practical organ. It has an important part to play in the great world. It is the Nemesis of indiscretion or betrayal of high places. The collusion between our plenipotentiaries at the peace conference and the gold miners of Wall street might never have been discovered except for the Boston nose of Senator Lodge. And the other most celebrated leak in modern history was detected, you will recall, by the Boston nose of Thomas W. Lawson.

Logicians warn us against extracting a generality from a particular. Foolhardy though it be, we herewith assert, from the evidence adduced, that the face of current history would present a quite different appearance if bereft of the Boston nose.



HE CAME TO THE WRONG PLACE.

BOLSHEVISM AND "LOOKING BACKWARD."

OLIVER LIGHT in Boston Post.

EDWARD BELLAMY brought out his ideas in a wonderful book—a book which 32 years ago took not only America but the world by storm, so that a million copies were sold in the English tongue, while it was also translated into French, German, Russian, Italian and other languages. That book was called "Looking Backward."

In the story a young Bostonian, Julian West, a man of wealth and culture, fell asleep on the night of May 30, 1887, under strange circumstances, and awoke on Sept. 10, 2000, after a sleep of 113 years.

He found himself still in Boston, but what a changed Boston! And what a changed world! He found the nations of the world at peace—all mankind at peace, and flourishing even in the most Utopian dreams of the old philosophers, all because the people of the world, realizing that no good could ever come out of the old order of things, had instituted a new industrial system in which the only capitalist was the government, as likewise it was the only employer. * * *

West wanted to know what part the followers of the Red Flag had taken in bringing about this highly desirable state of tranquility. The reply which Bellamy put in Dr. Leete's mouth is doubly interesting today when the world is hearing a thousand-fold more of the Reds than it did when "Looking Backward" was written.

"They had nothing to do with it except to hinder it, of course," replied Dr. Leete. "They did that very effectually while they lasted, for their talk so disgusted people as to deprive the best considered projects for social reform of a hearing. The subsidizing of those fellows was one of the shrewdest moves of the opponents of reform."

"Subsidizing them!" I exclaimed in astonishment.

"Certainly," replied Dr. Leete. "No historical authority nowadays doubts that they were paid by the great monopolies to wave the red flag and talk about burning, sacking, and blowing people up, in order, by alarming the timid, to head off any real reforms. What astonishes me most is that you should have fallen into the trap so unsuspectingly."

"What are your grounds for believing that the red flag party was subsidized?" I inquired.

"Why simply because they must have seen that their course made a thousand enemies of their professed cause to one friend. Not to suppose that they were hired for the work is to credit them with an inconceivable folly. In the United States, of all countries, no party could intelligently expect to carry its point without first winning over to its ideas a majority of the nation."

CHILDREN.

It is mighty sweet about children.

Here is what happened the other day:

A lot of men who run this city, finding the treasury embarrassed by increases in salaries and the high cost of townkeeping,

Decided that not so much money as usual could be appropriated for recreation and music in the parks this summer.

Well!

You should have seen what happened.

You should have seen men and women who never presumed before to tell the city what it should do.

And who had been as still as mice—

You should have seen them boil out of their homes and into the hair of the men at the city hall!

It beat everything.

You couldn't see the city hall for dust and hair.

Shrill cries filled the air.

At one time it was said that the men in the city hall had been chased upstairs by the angry mob until they had taken refuge in the little cupola on the top!

It was terribly exciting.

Nor was there any sympathy for the people pursued.

Men everywhere said they should have known better.

Women who wanted to get at them had to be restrained by their husbands.

You have to be careful about people's affection for children.

You have to be doubly careful about what people think should be done for children.

Anyway—

The men in the city hall gave up, and the mob let them come down.

It had all been a mistake.

There was plenty of money.

The Mayor said—the Mayor is a big, good-hearted enough fellow, all right—he said the money would be found.

If there were none, there would be some anyway.

So that is the way it was fixed up.

The mob left.

The city hall was set to rights again.

The incident was closed.

Such a thing will not happen again.

Everybody knows better.

It only happened because politicians forgot themselves for a moment.

They were thinking about the things in which there is something for them.

They were not thinking in terms of civilization and those fine things of life so closely related to children.

However, they are now—

So it was all for the best.

Now we have welcomed home all our boys who are to return for a while, maybe our brass bands can get their breath.

Most of us did not send Sergt. York a wedding present, but he didn't need it.

IN COSTA RICA.

Costa Rica, which has much the best record for tranquillity of any of the Central American states, is in the throes of a revolution. (We use that expression because it is customary to do so, though not really knowing how applicable it is. We suspect that it is not very applicable.) The dispatches say our marines have landed upon both the Atlantic and Pacific sides of the little country, presumably in protection of the property of the United Fruit Co., which has a great banana and pineapple industry there. Usually the influence of this great corporation is such that Costa Rica is quiet, but at this time it seems to be failing. Probably the resident manager became more interested in the war, or the peace treaty, or the league of nations, or the cause of Ireland, than he was in the immediate business of keeping the boat trim in Costa Rica. If so, the company has doubtless paid dearly for it, because Costa Rica is not a place where either the climate or the environment induces one to work when one can fight. There is no place in Latin-America where the United States is feared as it is in Costa Rica, unless it is in Panama. That is because in Costa Rica the people have found out that when the Americans come they immediately set things to rights and make the country a going concern. They are not interested in hiding out on a war basis, or in making political warfare the chief industry of the commonwealth. They cultivate the fields, get the country up with a whistle in the morning, map out a day's work for everybody, encourage people to have something to do, put public office on a basis of public service, waken things up, iron them out, bring in ships, set up banks, and make things something like. All Central America and much of Latin-America needs to have that done, and the Costa Ricans know it. We all have a feeling that what would be best for everybody is probably inevitable. That is why the Costa Ricans think we are going to gobble up all that country between the Rio Grande and the Panama Canal. There isn't anything to it, but only we know that to be so. Take the people of Martinque. How easily they were gulled by the report that Mr. Wilson got them from France in the peace conference the other day. The whole population turned out and paraded, voicing its protest and declaring its love for France. The French Government had to send word that such a thing had not been thought of and would not be thought of before the people would quiet down. That is the way all those little countries feel. We can't help it. It is a natural feeling. We are the miracle people to them—the big people, they called us when we went down to Panama and showed them what we could do. We must be true to ourselves. We are in a fine position which, while not credible to Latin-America, is none the less fine and must never be made base. Meanwhile, let us have a word with the resident manager of the United Fruit Co. in Costa Rica. 'Smatter, old top?

Milwaukee Journal Tells How It Won Pulitzer Prize by Patriotic War Service

Devoted Its Attention to Disloyal German Newspapers and, in the End, Thwarted Bernstorff's Plots to Sow Discord

In response to a request from the Post-Dispatch, the Milwaukee Journal tells in the appended telegram of the public service performed by it which has just won for it the award of the Joseph Pulitzer Prize, given under the will of Mr. Pulitzer every year for the "most disinterested and meritorious public service performed by an American newspaper." This award was made last Monday by a committee of the faculty of the Joseph Pulitzer School of Journalism of Columbia University, New York.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 7.—The Journal early realized that efforts of sympathizers with Germany to control the public thought and the Government of this country in the interest of Germany would, if successful, not only make us an ally of Germany, but would undermine the nation and cause disunion. The Journal made its fight with that conviction in the foreground. It early conceived the idea that one effective way to fight pro-German propaganda was to use its own words. Acting upon this belief, it arranged to receive regularly all the prominent German newspapers published in the United States. These and other German matter it translated and published.

Close watch was kept on all German organizations and movements. It will be remembered that many societies, ostensibly American, but really organized to promote the interests of Germany, came into being all over the country in the early months of the world war. Count von Bernstorff's secret papers show that he not only used some of these organizations to serve Germany's purposes, but that he financed them with German funds. The Journal succeeded in getting a vast amount of inside, authoritative information on these societies. It obtained, among other things, portions of their minutes, records, correspondence, and much evidence of their secret doings. It printed these from time to time.

Exposing the German Societies.

The Journal likewise got possession of thousands of original letters and telegrams sent to Washington by individual partisans of Germany as well as by groups of them, German churches and German societies. At different times as opportunity presented it printed some of these telegrams and letters in fac simile. The effect was telling and caused consternation in the highest pro-German circles. Many who had secretly taken part in alien propaganda were kept wondering as to just when and how their activities would be exposed in their own words.

A striking example of the Journal's efforts to expose secret and dangerous propaganda came in connection with a secret meeting of German clergymen held at the Republican House in Milwaukee late in October, 1916, upon a call issued by the notorious American Embargo Conference, of which G. E. Jacobson, Chicago, now serving sentence in Federal prison for conspiracy against the United States, was the head. The object of this meeting, which Jacobson attended and directed, was avowedly to punish President Wilson for not bowing to the demands of Germany. Mr. Jacobson urged the pastors to do everything in their power to elect Mr. Hughes President. He told them to engage speakers, rent halls and hire brass bands, and assured them that all of their expenses would be defrayed by the organization he represented. The expenses of many of the clergymen who attended the meeting were paid by Mr. Jacobson.

Thwarting a Bernstorff Plot.

The Journal, readily seeing the menace of thus bringing politics and race feeling into religion, effectually showed up the whole scheme. One of its reporters was refused admittance to the meeting, but another, mistaken for a German pastor, was allowed to enter. He obtained a full account of what happened.

In a hundred and one ways, fitting together evidence from various sources, the Journal made clear to its readers the nefarious nature of the game Germany was playing in this country. Throughout the fight it made, the Journal took extreme care not to make a single statement it could not prove beyond a shadow of doubt. It always had in hand evidence, often in minute detail, to support what it said. Knowledge of this fact at once became general, and it was the Journal's unique experience not to have any of the many important charges and statements it made challenged.

How Award Was Recommended Through Pulitzer School of Journalism Committee.

NEW YORK, June 6.—The award to the Milwaukee Journal was recommended by a jury of the School of Journalism composed of Director Talcott Williams, Prof. Walter B. Jitkin, Prof. Roscoe C. E. Brown and Robert MacAlnerny.

The recommendation was adopted by the Advisory Board of the school, whose judgment was confirmed by the Board of Trustees at the meeting June 2.

"The Milwaukee Journal was one of the first newspapers of the United States to recognize the absolutely uncivilized methods employed by the German Government in conducting its war against civilization. It was the first newspaper of the country to employ an editor for the sole purpose of following German propaganda. It made thousands of translations from the German language press of the country to show how thoroughly Germanism was entrenched in the hearts of the editors of these papers. It now holds in its vaults almost 5,000,000 words of original translation of propaganda and other pro-German matter.

"In its editorials, from the very beginning of the war it has followed an absolutely and unswervingly American attitude. In a city where the German element has long prided itself on its preponderating influence the Journal courageously attacked such members of that element as put Germany above America. It printed, during the period of the war, thousands of columns of special matter on Germanism in Germany and in this country.

Assailed German-American Alliance.

"It was one of the first, if not the first, American newspaper to demand the recall of the charter of the National German-American Alliance, after having given in its columns ample evidence of the nefarious activities of that organization. It has consistently urged that foreign language instruction be removed from the graded school curriculum, and that such a study be reserved for the High School. In this it has been successful. It has agitated against the Germanizing influence of the German language theater, and has urged with success that plays in German at least be kept off American boards until peace is signed.

"Early seeing the hand of German propaganda in American politics, it showed a Milwaukee meeting of German clergymen conducted against the national Government and planned by leaders of the American embargo conference who have since been properly labeled by the Federal Courts of the land. It has consistently opposed the re-election of Wisconsin Congressmen, both Republican and Democrat, whose records have not expressed the highest Americanism. It did its share in showing up the telegraphic propaganda by which Germany hoped to keep this country out of the war.

"It is estimated that in its efforts to show these things, the Journal printed, from November, 1915, to November, 1917, no less than 750,000 words of original matter not printed by any other paper in the United States. Some of the more important exclusive stories were sent out in proof to all the great newspapers of the country and to members of Congress and other influential Americans in all parts of the East and Middle West."

WASHINGTON U. FINE ARTS SCHOOL ANNOUNCES AWARDS

Silver Medal to Frederick Elbridge Conway and Bronze to Misses Edna Rall and Ruby Mental Tuck.

Following an informal luncheon at tables in the midst of a display of work done by its students during the current term, the Washington University School of Fine Arts faculty last evening announced the awards to students at the finish of their courses. Instruction will continue until June 21 for those who desire to make up time lost last fall and winter because of the influenza. The Rev. Dr. W. C. Bitting, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, delivered the address.

William O'Fallon Forrest, having been the recipient of every available honor, was not in the competition. For general excellence in black and white work, Frederick Elbridge Conway was given a silver medal. Miss Edna Rall, for work in color, and Miss Ruby Mental Tuck, for work in pottery and metal, received bronze medals.

Certificates on completion of their work were awarded the following: Misses Edith McCormack, interior decoration; Helen Coatsworth, Emma Stuyvesant and Lucile Wald, illustration; Ruby Tuck and Norma Hains, china. Honorable mention for good work in their respective classes was given to these students: Misses Helen Coatsworth, black and white, sketch; Alcy Cwerdinski, antique; Estelle Hite, general; Camilla Boyle, Florence Cox and Emily Simmons, illustration; Gertrude Alice Kurz, basketry and metal; James Queric, modeling.

Allen Metelman was awarded the Wayman Crow medal for the greatest progress in all classes.

$3,000,000 IN STRAWBERRIES

Ozark Producers Declare 1919 Yield Established a Record.

By the Associated Press.

NEOSHO, Mo., June 7.—Approximately 2000 carloads of strawberries, representing a total of almost $3,000,000, are the returns estimated from the recent 1919 strawberry harvest in the Ozark region of Northern Arkansas and Southwest Missouri. The strawberry producers declare this to be the biggest yield of the section.

The berries averaged at $6.50 a crate in price. A small army of men, women and children have been required to pick the the crop, being paid from two to three cents a quart. Small children are said to have made as high as $3 a day in this work.

Early Preparations for Charity Ball Game June 18 Point to Unusual Success for Annual Event—Society Girls Will Sell Score Cards—June Keeping Up Name as Month of Roses and Brides With Series of Weddings and More to Take Place This Week.

THE annual charity ball game given by the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society in which members of the social world always play an important part, will take place this year on June 18, at Cardinal Field, and already preparations are in full swing to make it the record event of the year.

These charity ball games—to be called the Victory Game this year in celebration of the winning of the war—are given for the purpose of raising funds for use in fighting death and disease in St. Louis. Everybody is interested in the occasion, not only because of the great good done by the proceeds derived, but because of the varied and novel character of the program and the general gaiety of the affair, and everybody helps in some way to make it a success. This has been the case in former years and from the amount of activity being displayed at present the indications are that it will be more than ever the case this year.

As formerly, the principal feature of the day's program will be the ball game between two major league teams. The St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Giants are the teams selected this year. The Giants are now in the lead in the race for the National League pennant.

This year there will be a double-header, with a team from the anti-submarine flotilla now in the Mississippi River playing the 138th Regiment team. This will bring many uniforms to Cardinal Field and will add to the gaiety of the afternoon. Among the novel features to be offered will be an exhibition of flying boats which accompany the submarine fleet and a real navy drill. Another will be a parade and a concert by the glee club from the flotilla.

The fourth annual Junior Marathon for St. Louis boys between the ages of 12 and 16, finishing in front of the grandstand, will be another event. A cabaret program by a troupe of professional entertainers and many other interesting diversions are promised.

A group of matrons and maids of the fashionable set have charge of the distribution of presents, giving them away by means of souvenir score cards, which will be sold to those attending the game. Everything from a lingerie pin to an automobile is in the list of presents and every score card will carry a coupon entitling the holder to one of these presents. All of the presents, which are said to number 25,000, have been donated by merchants and manufacturers. They are on display at the ball game headquarters, 213 North Broadway, and represent practically everything sold, made or grown in St. Louis. Peanuts and popcorn will not be sold this year, and all attention will be concentrated on the souvenir scorecards.

Among the matrons who will chaperone groups of girls who will sell scorecards will be Mrs. Alvin Bauman, Mrs. Philip Becker, Mrs. W. D. Becker, Mrs. Theodore Benoist, Dr. Frances L. Bishop, Mrs. Edmund F. Brown, Mrs. B. F. Bush, Mrs. E. A. De Wolf, Mrs. M. A. Goldstein, Miss Mary Helery, Mrs. W. C. Johnston, Mrs. Ernest Jonas, Mrs. Henry W. Kiel, Mrs. H. F. Levy, Mrs. Arthur Lieber, Mrs. Charles H. McKee, Mrs. Horace S. Rumsey, Mrs. Herman Steinwender, Mrs. A. G. Wichman.

Maj. J. F. Oberwinder, a former officer of the 138th Infantry, who has just returned from France, is chairman of the General Committee of Arrangements, with Charles Parsons Pettus, Capt. Hugh McKittrick Jones, Ingram Boyd, John Ring Jr., The Rev. John W. Day and H. H. Langenberg as members of the committee. He has appointed a committee on entertainment which comprises the army and navy officers now on duty in St. Louis. In this committee are: John Ring Jr., chairman; Branch Rickey, Lieutenant-Commander E. A. Brooks, Lieutenant-Commander Wells Hawks, Commander T. G. Berrien, Mayor Henry W. Kiel, Col. George K. Hunter, Lieutenant-Colonel Dwight F. Davis, Verne R. C. Lacey, Frederick Ward, Maj. L. P. H. Bahrenberg.

JUNE, the month of roses and brides, has certainly maintained its record so far this month and the first week of June saw more weddings than had occurred for many a long time. First among them was the marriage of Miss Josephine B. Dixon to T. Paul Gleeson, which was solemnized at St. Rose's Church Monday morning, with the Rev. Father McGlynn officiating. None but relatives and intimate friends were asked, and the bride's only attendant was Mrs. John McIntyre of Dayton, O., formerly Miss Mary Ramsay of St. Louis, who was matron of honor, and Joseph D. Thomas, the bride's uncle, served as best man.

A wedding breakfast followed at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. J. H. McClure of 5902 Clemens avenue, and after a honeymoon trip Mr. Gleeson and his bride will reside temporarily with his mother, Mrs. Susan Carton Gleeson, at 5581 Enright avenue. The bride is a graduate of the Visitation Convent and is especially talented in art. Mr. Gleeson was educated at the St. Louis University and was a former city tennis champion.

THE second wedding of the day was that of Miss Winona Catherine Petring to Burnett Outten, which took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Petring of 4548 West Pine boulevard. Only the relatives and close friends were asked to the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Dr. John W. Day, but a large reception followed.

Miss Emma Petring was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant. Edward Griffin was best man.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and also of Washington University. Mr. Outten was recently discharged from the service, where he was a Lieutenant in the Field Artillery Ammunition Train of the Sixth Division, and was overseas.

He is also a graduate of Washington University and resides with his mother at 4501 Laclede avenue.

Mme. Mack's made to order Corsets and Surgical Garments are the best obtainable. 510 Odd Fellows' Bldg.—Adv.

AN important wedding of the early summer season was the marriage on Wednesday of Miss Martha McChesney to James C. Wyman of Minneapolis. The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William S. McChesney Jr., of 4406 McPherson avenue, with the Rev. John W. MacIvor of the Second Presbyterian Church officiating. Only relatives and close friends were asked to the ceremony and reception which followed.

The bride's only attendants were Mrs. Edmund Jackson Davis of Beaumont, Tex., formerly Miss Margaret Wymond of Louisville, Ky., who, on several occasions, has been Miss McChesney's guest, and who was her matron of honor, and Miss Ruth Chandler of Hartford, Conn., who was the bride's roommate Vassar, was the maid of honor.

Mr. Wyman had Charles Beckwith of Minneapolis for his best man, and John Woodridge Avery and Putnam Dana McMillan as groomsmen.

The bride has been a popular member of society and was graduated from Mary Institute and from Vassar College last June. She has traveled extensively both in this and foreign countries, and is one of the most cultured and accomplished young women of St. Louis. The past winter she has been actively engaged in the social settlement and club activities of the Y. W. C. A., and was also active in Red Cross work.

Mr. Wyman was recently discharged from the Signal Corps, U. S. A., having been in the ground section of the Aviation Corps in France, which he entered after service in the Ordnance Department. He will take his bride to Minneapolis to reside after a honeymoon trip.

A WEDDING of Thursday was that of Miss Ruth Phillips to Clarence Appel, which took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Phillips of Gore avenue, Webster Groves, with the Rev. Reader of the Webster Groves Baptist Church officiating, in the presence of only the relatives and intimate friends.

The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. A. T. Phillips, was matron of honor, and Miss Mary Cord the maid of honor.

Arthur Lueders served as best man, and A. T. Phillips as groomsman. A reception followed the ceremony, after which Mr. Appel and his bride departed for a honeymoon trip. Upon their return they will reside on Elm avenue in Webster Groves. The bride received her education at Lindenwood College, and has been a popular member of the younger set in Webster Groves. Mr. Appel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Appel of Lockwood avenue, Webster. He received his discharge from the navy in April.

CONSPICUOUS among the many weddings of yesterday was the marriage of Miss Dorothy Livingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Livingston, 40 Kingsbury place, to Norton Schuyler, which was solemnized last evening at 8:30 at St. Peter's Church, the Rev. Dr. Z. B. T. Phillips officiating. Miss Marjorie Livingston attended her sister as maid of honor, and Miss Lorraine Livingston was bridesmaid. Both wore dresses of pink taffeta, trimmed with blue ribbons. They carried showed bouquets of pink roses and snap dragons and blue delphinium, and wore French bonnets of pink and robin's egg blue. The two little flower girls, Isabel and Fanita Fry, daughters of Thomas Fry, wore directoire hats trimmed with tiny pink and blue plumes, and carried old-fashioned bouquets of pink and blue flowers. The bride's gown was of white bridal satin, the draped skirt of the satin overhung with rose point lace and the bodice and long, tight sleeves made of the same lace. The court train was of the satin lined with shell pink georgette crepe. She wore a veil of old rose point lace worn by her maternal grandmother at her wedding and carried a white prayer book with markers of lilies of the valley. A large reception followed the ceremony at the residence of the bride's parents, after which Mr. Schuyler and his bride departed for a honeymoon tour. After July 1 they will be at home at 4934 Buckingham court.

Paul Miller served Mr. Schuyler as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers were Donald Hudson, fiance of Miss Lorraine Livingston; Christy Farrar, Glenn Russell, Towner Phelan, Hope Carleton, Robert Conroy and Lawrence Miller.

ANOTHER important marriage of yesterday was that of Miss Lucille Parkman Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Parkman Woods, 5291 Lindell boulevard, to Stuart Markle Butler, son of Mrs. Henry S. Butler, 5534 Bartmer avenue, which took place at 8 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, the Rev. Dr. Herbert Rhodes of Grace M. E. Church officiating. The bride's sister, Miss Frances Woods, was maid of honor. She wore a dress of blue georgette crepe and lace, with a short silver cloth train. Her bouquet was of June roses and blue delphinium. The bridegroom's sister, Miss Lucy Butler, and Misses Eleanor Stanard and Elizabeth Holliday were bridesmaids. They wore frocks of pink georgette crepe, with short trains of the silver tissue, and carried bouquets similar to that of the maid of honor. John C. Roberts Jr. served Mr. Butler as best man, and the groomsmen were Messrs. Taylor Bryan Jr., Henry Swift of Boston, James Crawford and Frank Hamilton Jr. The bride wore a gown of silver cloth and old lace, with a court train of tulle. Her veil of tulle fell from a cap of duchess lace which was worn by her mother on her wedding day. She carried a shower of lilies of the valley. Following a reception Mr. Butler and his bride departed for a honeymoon tour. After July 1 they will be at home at 5534 Bartmer avenue. Among the out-of-town guests here for the occasion were Miss Ellen Henderson of Chicago and Miss Hazel McMullen of Seattle, Wash.

LAST night saw the marriage of Miss Winifried Gibbins, daughter of Mrs. W. G. Gibbins, 5515 Cabanne avenue, to James Brewster Austin, at the Maple Avenue Methodist Church, the Rev. E. Combie Smith officiating. The bride's sister, Miss Florence Gibbins, attended her as maid of honor and the bridegroom's niece, Miss Leonelle Cleveland, was bridesmaid. Both wore frocks of yellow organdie and carried baskets of yellow field daisies. E. C. Curtis was best man and the bride's brother, Donald Gibbins, was groomsman. The ushers were E. Gundelsinger, brother-in-law of the bride, Thomas Cleveland, nephew of the bridegroom, Meredith Peek and A. Bothie. Henry Gibbins gave his sister in marriage. Another brother, Ernest Gibbins, arrived Thursday from London, England, to be present. The bride's gown was of white charmeuse and georgette crepe with a court train of the satin lined with the silver cloth. She wore a veil of tulle, caught with orange blossoms and carried lilies of the valley and white roses.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, and after June 22 Mr. and Mrs. Austin will be at home at 6910 Plateau avenue.

THE marriage of Miss Hazel Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Tounsand Mason of 1212 Oakley place, to Charles Jehle, was celebrated very quietly last evening at the residence of the bride's parents. Only the members of the family were present, and the Rev. Robert Ely of the Presbyterian Church of St. Charles, who married the bride's parents, officiated. The couple were unattended and a bridal dinner followed the ceremony. The bride was educated at Lenox Hall. She has spent much of her time in travel, but when in St. Louis has taken an active part in social affairs of her set. Mr. Jehle recently returned from France, where he served with the Motor Transport Corps, Eighty-ninth Division. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jehle. Mr. and Mrs. Mason expect to depart for Dallas, Tex., where they will make their home, and Mr. Jehle and his bride will occupy their residence for the summer.

THE wedding of Miss Mary Evelyn Robinson to Allen Lamar Owens was another wedding of last evening. It took place at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Marie Erskine Robinson, of 6019 Washington boulevard, at 8:30 o'clock. Mgr. Tallon, the bride's godfather, officiated. Miss Dorothy Owens, the bridegroom's sister, was maid of honor. She wore an organdie gown of peach-blow shade and carried a bouquet of Ward roses and blue delphinia. Charles Owens served his brother as best man; Misses Rose McRae and Helen Niedringhaus in white organdie gowns held the ribbons. The bride wore a gown of ivory-tinted satin trimmed in Duchess lace. Her train was of tulle and her tulle veil arranged high in the back fell from a coronet of the lace and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and Easter lilies. A small reception followed the ceremony and Mr. Owens will take his bride to Tulsa, Ok., to reside.

Miss Gladys Isabel Moll was married at noon yesterday in a quiet home ceremony at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Moll of 5853 Bartmer avenue, to James W. Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Belleville. The couple were unattended and only a limited number of guests were present. A breakfast followed the mariage ceremony.

AN interesting engagement announced last week was that of Miss Jeannette Klein, daughter of Mrs. J. S. Klein of 6377 Pershing avenue, to Clark Gamble. Miss Klein made her debut three years ago after her graduation from Miss Bennett's School at Millbrook, N. Y., and has been very popular. She served as maid of honor at the last Veiled Prophet's Ball, and has taken an active part in many social affairs. Miss Klein, with her mother and sister, Miss Eleanore Klein, has traveled extensively, and is very accomplished.

Mr. Gamble is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gamble of 5736 McPherson avenue. He served as First Lieutenant in the Twenty-third Regiment in the Second Division, and was in France for 15 months. He was wounded and sent home after having received the Croix de Guerre. He received his training at the First Officers' Training School at Fort Riley, and was among the first officers commissioned there to be sent to France. No date for the wedding has been set.

A WEDDING of great interest here which was solemnized in New York yesterday was that of Philander Cable to Miss Mimi Scott of New York. The ceremony took place very quietly at noon at St. Thomas' Chapel in the presence of the family and a few intimate friends. Mr. Cable is a brother of Mrs. George Castleman Mackey and a nephew of Mrs. George A. Castleman of 3693 Lindell boulevard. He was originally from Rock Island, Ill., but has spent a great deal of his time in St. Louis. The bride is a prominent member of New York society and recently returned from abroad, having nursed at the front for 14 months with a French unit. In a few days Mr. Cable and his bride expect to sail for Paris, where he is third secretary at the American legation.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Addington of 3709 Westminster place have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Cornelia Addsunned themselves in his majesty's confidence. Wherefore, when Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau in Versailles hinted that some of these persons had at least a small share of the blame, a Social Democratic Minister cried out in utmost wrath: "That is what this man does to us who for four years swore to our party and to our trade unions that Germany was innocent and had been shamefully fallen upon."

GERMAN MASSES REALLY BELIEVE THEIR ARMY WON

So we see everything as to what really happened and what everywhere else is considered as proved is kept a dark secret from the German people. This situation makes the public understanding of developments harder and as the awakening comes the apathy of the masses may be driven into a dangerous outburst.

Already those who wish to restore the old order feel encouraged. Monarchists, Junkers, Militarists, Pan-Germans and anti-Semites again dare talk loudly and brusquely. As the National Socialists fear being crowded out of the majority by the Independents, whose Berlin organ, Freiheit, after six months, has 50,000 more subscribers than Vorwaerts, the National Socialists attach themselves more firmly than ever to the Bourgeoise parties, who write democracy, to be sure, on the signs over their stores, but who cannot give practical effect to democracy because of fear for their profits and money bags.

Old Order Feels Encouraged.

Dr. Liebknecht, Frau Luxemburg, Eisner, Landauer, the finest heads of the Communist party have been killed, and perhaps nameless thousands have followed them to the grave. The prisons are overfilled. Ledebour, the old Marxist, now near 70, is under arrest and accused before a Berlin jury. An army of 500,000 mercenaries, costing 5,000,000 marks a day, is supposed to be intended to defend the republic against so-called Bolshevism, which bears only vague resemblance to the theory and structure of Lenine.

Some of the circumstances which have served as hindrances to international understanding have created in Germany an atmosphere which an honest man must call counter-revolutionary.

Where is the way out of this thicket? What can happen to give the world the peace for which it thirsts? Since the soul of the German nation is deeply shaken by its experiences and the bodies of the people have for years been insufficiently fed, there can be no overnight change to the thing desired. One must for the present abandon hope of idealistic and metaphysical cures.

It must be clearly proved to the people, in such a state and looking out only for their own immediate advantage, that only common sense and gracious adaptation to the will of the world can be worth while. Unequivocally, one must say to these people:

Common Sense Now Needed.

"We grant you our good will, our ideal and spiritual credit, without which you cannot think of reconstruction, barely eking out an existence under the ruins, if you say you recognize the heavy blame of your former housekeepers, disavow their acts, and prepare to atone for everything. If we hear such confession from honorable spokesmen, we cannot only spare you from the unlimited sovereign power of the Reparation Commission and from the cutting of all your commercial connections, but we will give you all possible help and will take you as equal comrade in the league of nations. Be sure, however, that our confidence canot be gained by ruses, which can bring harm only to yourselves. We will not permit ourselves to be deceived by appearances."

The community or mankind solidarity of nations can sprout and ripen only through faith. As today it is the most important duty of the classes of society heretofore most favored through their social measures and the manifestation of their brotherly feelings, to gain the confidence of the sunless, living in the monotony of machinery, so also can confidence alone close the gates of the Janus temple.

Let there be free plebiscite among the peoples who, according to the Entente will, should choose to which nation they will belong, with quick admission to the league of nations, and let these equal concessions be extended to German peoples. Such concessions would go far toward reconciling Germans to hard conditions otherwise, and they could only benefit and not harm those who granted them. It cannot be that those who are guiding the peace negotiations wish to impose anywhere a rule which creates fear and which in the end would generate flames of hatred.

The conference leaders have come to certain decisions because they do not trust the German people and, as I can well understand, they do not trust the emergency republic that has been formed in Germany. The course of the conference is not meant to impose anything else upon Germany than a purgatory, in the Dante sense, a fire in which the vanquished in this inferno of a mad and shameful war shall spiritually cleanse themselves and feel their way back into human dignity, before the gate of Paradise of a new and sacred humanity shall open. If this is true, then let those who too long have called us enemies speak out the comforting certainty so clearly that the call to salvation may re-echo throughout the universe.

SHEEP FROM NEW MEXICO ON HILL LAND SOUTH OF ST. LOUIS

Sale of 10,000 Acres in Reynolds and Wayne Counties Advances Industry.

A recent sale of 10,000 acres of hill land in Reynolds and Wayne Counties, 100 miles south of St. Louis, by R. W. Mottaz of 6025A Etzel avenue, to J. Frank Neel, a New Mexico sheep raiser, has given an impetus to the sheep industry in Missouri, according to reports from the southern section of the state.

Neel has begun the shipment of 5000 sheep from New Mexico, and has said that he expects to have from 10,000 to 15,000 sheep in Reynolds and Wayne Counties within six months.

The southern part of Missouri with its pure water and mild climate is considered excellent for sheep raising, and the industry is gradually growing there. The land is very rough, little of it can be cultivated, and after having been cut over by timbermen, can be obtained at low prices, from $2 to $5 an acre.

WHAT TO DO WITH CONSTANTINOPLE IS SERIOUS PROBLEM

mineral resources, great possibilities of ultimate prosperity.

If an American mandatory is to be stretched to cover Constantinople, Anatola and Armenia, the task will be far more gigantic and far more difficult. Constantinople has been the cause of more wars than almost any other city in the world. It is hard to believe that in the future it will be less coveted. Greek and Bulgarian ambitions will continue. The day is almost certain to come when Russia will once more look southward towards Anatolia. We shall find ourselves faced with 7,000,000 Turks, who will hardly welcome our rule, and we shall find ourselves confronted with the task of defending them against Greeks and Italians.

The mandatory for Constantinople, Anatolia and Armenia would mean the employment of an army of a quarter of a million Americans for an extended period of time. It would mean an enormous task of organization, industrially as well as politically, and it would mean inevitable participation in all disputes of the future in the Near East. It would mean, in reality, that Europe had transferred to the United States the gigantic task of solving the old Eastern problem, which is and remains beyond European possibilities, but we should find ourselves handicapped in such a solution by the fact that the essential parts of the territory affected have already been assigned to Italy and Greece, including the natural borders.

The Greatest Opportunity.

Armenia would be a much less ambitious task, but one the difficulties of which could not be exaggerated. It would certainly take thousands of American soldiers and consume years. I have said, and I repeat, no finer work of national unselfishness is conceivable, and if any mandatory is to be taken by the United States, none is more worthy of our acceptance, since none would provide greater opportunities for service and fewer for profit. But it would be a task beside which the Philippines was child's play and Cuba a mere pastime.

It remains now to deal with the Arabian portion of the old Turkish empire, lying south of the latitude of the Gulf of Alexandretta. Here, now, this problem presents itself. Under British auspices, there has arisen a pan-Arabic movement and a new Arab kingdom. With British authority the King of Hedjaz has accepted nominal control over all the old Arab regions from the Red Sea to the Cicilian Gates, including Syria, Mesopotamia, Palestine and Arabia proper. Thousands of Arabian troops fought with Allenby, and their aid contributed much to the defeat of the Turk.

But if the British encouraged the King of Hedjaz to conquer with their aid these old Arab regions, they also signed a treaty with the French assigning Syria to France, and recognized a special French claim in these districts, which goes back to the time of the Crusades. Thus the British find themselves in the presence of two pledges, totally opposed, one made to the King of Hedjaz and the other to the French, and out of this conflict has come one of the most acute questions of the Paris conference.

Solution in Sight.

Today a solution seems in sight. France is to have a restricted Syria, which will include the territories between the Upper Euphrates and the Mediterranean south of the latitude of Alexandretta, extending to Palestine and the Great Desert. Beyrouth, Aleppo, Damascus, are to fall within the French sphere. France is to rule here under a mandatory of the league of nations, but with special recognition of certain of the claims of the King of Hedjaz. In the same way, Great Britain is to have Mesopotamia as far north as Diarbekir and Mosul, and Palestine—that is to say, the territories which have peculiar importance for India and for Egypt.

But it will be seen by this brief review how incomplete and fragmentary after all, are the settlements of expedients which are being adopted so far as Turkey is concerned. After all, it is as difficult to liquidate the Turkish empire as the Austro-Hungarian. There is the same welter of races within, there is the same rivalry of claimants from without. In placing Italians of the south shores of Asia Minor, where they have no rights based on the will of the population, in creating divisons in the Arab population between the French and British, the way has been opened for an indefinite period of unrest. Certainly the Turk has shown himself incapable of self-government. By contrast, dividing the territory which is economically a unit in Asia Minor, as in the old Austria-Hungary, opens the way to vast difficulties in the future, and in these difficulties we shall be involved if we accept any mandatory in this region.

The Armenians' Attitude.

I do not think there is any question that the Armenian population would welcome an American mandatory. I do not think there is any doubt that, because of our lack of self-interest in that region, we should be the best mandatory. On the other hand, to take Constantinople, Anatolia and Armenia would be to take a country certainly as great in area as France and Italy, populated by people of many races, holding several faiths, who racially and religiously have been fighting for a thousand years. To take Armenia would mean a small task, but one not less complicated. Even if the faithful discharge of this task did not involve us in war with any great Power, it would in the nature of things lead to endless disputes with Russians, British, French and Italians, to say nothing of Greeks, Armenians, Turks and Arabs. But if we do not take a mandatory in the disappearing Turkish Empire, then nothing is more certain than that this old battleground will become once more the scene of conflict, alike between the ambitions of European nations and the eternal animosities of the races of Western Asia. Certainly the American presence offers the Armenian people almost its only hope, while American occupation of Armenia would create a buffer State, separating the spheres of several of the rival European nations.

In sum, then, the Turkish problem differs from that of Austria-Hungary only as the races of the territory affected are incapable, at least in any present time, of independence. They cannot govern themselves, they cannot be erected into a semblance of independent countries. They must in any event be charges of the Western Powers, and only if the Western Powers were prepared to lay aside commercial and political aspirations would the presence of these nations hold out any real hope of regeneration of the Near East. In these regions our missionaries and our colleges have contributed enormously to education and liberation of the peoples from their own darkness. America is a very real force and a very real basis for hope. It may be, as many in Paris believe, that we have an obligation to undertake the task of rebuilding. If the task is to be undertaken, no American should blank the fact that it will be a long, difficult and dangerous task.

PASTE ON WATERMELON STEMS

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Presence of a bluish, starchy paste on the cut stem of watermelons appearing in market this year should not arouse suspicions that the fruit is in an "unhealthy" condition. The Department of Agriculture took pains to explain today that this paste is an evolution of experts of the department to protect the stem-end of the watermelon from rapid decay after the fruit has been plucked and shipped to market.

Its presence, therefore, should be taken rather as a guarantee that the fruit is all that it purports to be.

Doctor Tells How to Detect Harmful Effects of Tobacco
Try These SIMPLE TESTS

New York: Doctor Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, says: Many men who smoke, chew or snuff incessantly and who are seemingly healthy are suffering from progressive organic ailments. Thousands of them would never have been afflicted had it not been for the use of tobacco, and thousands would soon get well if they would only stop the use of tobacco. The chief habit-forming principle of tobacco is nicotine, a deadly poison which, when absorbed by the system, slowly affects the nerves, membranes, tissues and vital organs of the body. The harmful effect of tobacco varies and depends on circumstances. One will be afflicted with general debility, others with catarrah of the throat, indigestion, constipation, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of memory, lack of will power, mental confusion, etc. Others may suffer from heart disease, bronchial trouble, hardening of the arteries, tuberculosis, blindness or even cancer or the common affliction known as tobacco heart. If you use tobacco in any form you can easily detect the harmful effects by making the following simple tests: Read aloud one full page from a book. If in the course of reading your voice becomes muffled, hoarse and indistinct, and you must frequently clear your throat, the chances are that your throat is affected by catarrh and it may be the beginning of more serious trouble. Next, in the morning before taking your usual smoke, walk up three flights of stair at a regular pace, then stop. If you find that you are out of breath, your heart beat is forced, trembling or irregular, you may be a victim of functional or organic heart trouble. If you feel that you must smoke, chew or snuff to quiet your nerves, you are a slave to the tobacco habit, and are positively poisoning yourself with the deadly drug, nicotine. In either case you have just two alternatives—keep on with the self-poisoning process irrespective of the dangers and suffer the consequences, or give up the habit and escape the dangers. You can overcome the craving and stop the habit in a very short time by using the following inexpensive formula: Go to any drug store and ask for Nicotol tablets, take one tablet after each meal, and in a comparatively short time you will have no desire for tobacco, the craving will have left you. With the nicotine poison out of your system your general health will quickly improve.

Note—When asked about Nicotol tablets, one of our leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit; away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to every dissatisfied customer, and we would not permit the use of our name unless the remedy possessed unusual merit." Nicotol tablets are sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists, including the Judge & Dolph, Wolff-Wilson and the Enderle Stores.—ADV.

CHINA, NOT JAPAN, AGRESSOR IN FAR EAST, GOTO SAYS

shall restore the leased territory in full soverignty to China, Japan means just that. To the Chinese politician it sounds merely like a fair promise without fruition—like so many pledges of political China. China is judging Japan according to her own peculiar way of dealing in matters of this sort.

Dictation Not Admitted.

"Japan will restore the leased territory of Shantung as she said she would, and in the manner and time she deems wise. She does not admit the dictation of the European or any other Power in this matter. She has never known that she is a vassal state to any Power whatever. She cannot see how she is expected to act as one by any European or American Power, let alone China.

"It has been charged that Japan prevented China from entering into the world war. China would not have entered into the struggle herself. Where were her guns, her rifles, ammunition for them? The European war was no place for rabbles or mobs. Where were her trained and proved soldiers? She had men in great numbers, to be sure, but where were the masters to train them, instruct them, turn them into a telling factor either along the Russian front or along the Marne? Moreover, nowadays a country cannot go into a war of any size without money—a good deal of it. Did China have the funds? Who was to finance her entry into the great war? Neither Europe nor America was in position to advance funds to her. Today, at the peace conference, her representatives are eloquently willing to receive back the German investment in Shantung. She is demanding the return in peremptory language and with the manner of a conqueror. In 1914 she was willing to dig into her own treasure to to raise the needed men and funds for the reduction of Tsingtao? Did she have the trained man-power to take it from Germany? Did she even have the actual power to enforce neutrality in all parts of China?

"The Powers of Europe arrayed against Germany knew full well that China was utterly incapable of expelling German interests from her territory. That is why they asked Japan, not China, to oust Germany from Chinese territory.

China's Domestic Troubles.

"If China had gone into the war it was Japan who had to furnish her down to the boots of the Chinese private—if not in all instances, certainly to an overwhelming degree. There is another thing—which the Chinese statesmen of today seem to have completely forgot. In the earlier stages of the world war, the civil war in China between the Northern faction at Peking and the Southern party, based at Canton, was already smouldering. Later it erupted openly. China, with such domestic strife—of what efficient assistance could she have been to the cause of the Entente? Had she joined in the war there would have been an added turmoil throughout no small section of China. Her trade would have been paralyzed worse than ever; lawlessness would have reigned wider and more supremely than before. She would have proved a mill stone around the neck of Japan—nothing more. Japan was already in the war and doing her modest best in it. Adding a millstone in the shape of disordered, turbulent, fundless China did not appeal to us as a particularly effective means of beating the Teuton menace. And Japan has acted to the best of her lights.

"Japan has also been charged with sowing seeds of dissension between the North and the South China parties. We were acused of being more friendly to the Northern party. No truth is in that, of course. What is true is that that sort of rumor sows the seeds of dissension between the two great neighbor Powers of the Orient—China and Japan. Who, then, are the authors of so dastardly a crime? Well, the only possible people who can reap a rich harvest out of such tragedy are the traitorous politicians of the two countries, but more than they, and above all an unscrupulous world power, a diplomatic alchemist who would transmute an international tragedy into a gold mine—Germany, for example.

Calls Charges Ridiculous.

"To show how ridiculous is this charge of Japan sowing seeds of dissension between the Southern and Northern parties in China let me cite an incident. The Japanese Government has for some time past wished to return to China a portion of the Boxer indemnity. In fact, she was about to take a definite step to do so when the political differences between the two parties in China arose. Japan did not wish that the funds returned by her should be diverted into the war fund of either of the contending parties; she did not wish that the money should be used to prolong or aggravate the civil struggle of China.

"For some reason, in some quarters in the United States, almost every action of Japan seems to be painted in the most sinister colors. Japan makes an industrial loan to China. In that she is simply treading in the time-honored and honorable steps of England, France and the United States herself. But instantly a hue and cry is raised—Japan is denounced in the bitterest terms possible for driving the British, American and other interests out of China and monopolizing the whole Asian continnent.

"Japan made a war loan to China when she decided to enter the world war, simply and solely because without such loans China could not join the Entente at all in the world struggle. What then, did Japan's critics say—the very critics who had been blatant and hysterical in their attacks on Japan because, as they claimed, Japan had been holding China back from entering the war? They rose indignantly and denounced Japan because she made the war loan to enable China to enter the war. They suspected that this war loan helped the Northern party at Peking.

"It is idle to try to explain matters to those who do not wish to understand. But before those people who are not afraid to face the facts with wide open and seeing eyes, Japan can confidently lay her cards on the table and await their verdicts with confidence."

Webster Meeting for Soldiers.

The second Webster Groves mass meeting in honor of returning soldiers will be held at the Armory this evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. John W. MacIvor of the Second Presbyterian Church will speak. The meeting will be limited to one hour.

What Causes Wrinkles? What's the Remedy?

Stop to consider what produces wrinkles and sagginess of skin. Premature aging, mal-nutrition, etc., cause the flesh to shrink, lose its youthful plumpness and firmness. The skin then is too large for the flesh underneath; doesn't fit tightly and snugly as it used to—it wrinkles or sags.

It must be plain that to tighten the skin, make it fit the face perfectly in every place, will effectually remove the hateful wrinkles and bagginess. This is easily and harmlessly accomplished by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel and using the solution as a face wash. The ingredients you can get at any drug store. The results are surprising. The skin immediately tightens up, becoming firm and fresh as in youth. Every wrinkle and sag are affected at once.—ADV.

BOY WHO WEIGHED 100 POUNDS LEAVES ARMY AS MAN OF 185

Private Lawrence Hippler Says Lots of Hard Work and Good Grub Caused Change.

When Private Lawrence Hippler of 1108 Cass avenue enlisted in the Supply Company of the Old First Missouri Infantry, April 7, 1917, he was a slight spindle-shanked youth who weighed about 100 pounds.

When he returned to his home from overseas after having been discharged from the 138th Infantry, at Camp Funston, May 13, he tipped the scales at 185 pounds.

"Lots of hard work and a sufficiency of good army grub did it," Hippler said yesterday. "I think it was that bully beef that put on the pounds, though. We had it often enough."

Hippler remained with the Supply Company when the regiment became the 138th Infantry. He worked as a mule skinner overseas and spent a month in the hospital when he suffered with the "flu." Hippler was 14 years old when he enlisted, but gave his age as 18.

14,000 PERSONS LIVE IN SIBERIAN LINE CARS, WANT TO GO HOME

Most Serious Problem of Resuming Railroad's Operation Is Squatters.

By the Associated Press.

OMSK, Wednesday, June 28.—The technical board in charge of operations on the Trans-Siberian Railroad has completed an inspection of the line between this city and Perm and has returned here. It is awaiting the arrival in Omsk of John F. Stevens, chairman of the board, who is on his way to Omsk from Harbin.

Members of the board believe that the most serious problem before them in the rehabilitation of the Trans-Siberian lies in the ousting of some 14,000 persons who have taken possession of freight and passenger cars along the road. These persons are holding the cars hoping that they will soon be able to return home and are not disposed to relinquish the rolling stock which they have seized.

MEN ENTER HOME, SHOOT THREE

Assailants of Mt. Vernon, Ill. Family Believed to Have Been Robbers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MT. VERNON, Ill., June 7.—John W. Neaville, his wife, Lora C. Neaville, and their 6-year-old grandson, Bobbie Mabrey, were attacked last night by two men, and Mrs. Neaville was shot in the stomach, and is dangerously injured. Neaville was shot through the left arm, and the boy through each leg.

A stranger entered the Neaville home about 11 o'clock and shot Neaville as he lay in bed. When he left the bed he was struck on the head three times with a revolver. A man outside fired six or eight shots through the window at Mrs. Neaville and the grandson sleeping in another bed. It is believed robbery was the motive.

BULGARIAN ARMY ON MOVE

Part Is Reported Mobilized and Marching Toward Serbia.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, June 7.—A part of the Bulgarian army has been mobilized and is marching toward the Serbian frontier, the Balkan News Agency reports.

VIENNA, June 7.—The Hungarian Soviet troops have continued to carry out minor successes against the Czechs. They have crossed the Danube at Gran and Pressburg is menaced. Hungarian counter revolutionary forces have captured the western part of the city of Odenberg, 37 miles southeast of Vienna.

Bela Kun has issued a memorial to President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George declaring that if Czech outrages against the Hungarians are not stopped he will retaliate.

WOMAN SHOT DURING STRUGGLE

Receives Scalp Wound When Trying to Prevent Man From Shooting Self.

A struggle to disarm Benjamin Wehrfritz, 26 years old, of 3164 North Fourteenth street, in the home of Henry Volkening, 502 Talcott avenue, when it was thought the former intended to take his own life, resulted Friday night in the shooting of Mrs. Volkening. The bullet struck her in the head but inflicted only a scalp wound.

According to Volkening, his wife and Miss Carrie Byrne, with Wehrfritz, had just entered the Volkening home, after visits to several cabarets when Wehrfritz took a revolver from his pocket and asked: "Is everybody happy?" The three replied in the affirmative, and Wehrfritz said: "Then it's a good time to bump off." The three sprang on Wehrfritz, and in the strugle which ensued, the revolver was discharged.

Following his arrest Wehrfritz told the police: "I didn't intend to kill myself. I am just a plain damn fool." He is being held pending the outcome of Mrs. Volkening's injury.

How You Can Make Hairs Quickly Disappear

(Helps to Beauty)

Even a stubborn growth of hair will quickly vanish from the face, neck or arms after a single treatment with delatone. To remove the hairs, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left free from hair or blemish. To avoid disappointment, be quite certain you get real delatone.—ADV.

MAY 1919 A MAMMOTH MONTH IN ADVERTISING
MAY 1919
SUN MON TUE WED THURS FRI SAT
GREAT GAINS IN HOME & NATIONAL ADVERTISING

In Volume of Advertising

MAY WAS THE BIGGEST MONTH OF ALL!

No other St. Louis newspaper has ever approached the volume of advertising carried by the Post-Dispatch during our Record-Breaking month of May, 1919. Especially significant is this fact when our strict censorship policy is taken into consideration—a policy which eliminates thousands of lines each month—A policy adopted by the Post-Dispatch for the protection of its readers.

The following figures show concisely how St. Louis' One Big Newspaper Dominates the Advertising Field:

MAY, 1919 Total Paid Advertising (Exclusive of City Legal or Exchange)

	Agate Lines
POST-DISPATCH	*1,433,880
Globe-Democrat	1,037,400
Republic	393,900
Star (No Sunday)	469,500
Times (No Sunday)	259,500

*A Record-Breaking Month.

Post-Dispatch alone exceeded the Globe-Democrat and Republic, both of the morning newspapers combined, 2580 lines.

Post-Dispatch alone exceeded the Star and Times, the two other evening newspapers, combined, 704,880 lines.

Post-Dispatch alone exceeded the Republic, Star and Times combined 310,980 lines.

MAY, 1919 Gains in Total Paid Advertising

OVER MAY OF LAST YEAR

	Agate Lines
POST-DISPATCH Gain	392,840
Globe-Democrat Gain	387,600
Republic Gain	86,400
Star Gain (No Sunday)	51,600
Times Gain (No Sunday)	27,000

The GAIN figures of the Post-Dispatch (nearly 400,000 lines) over the month of May last year furnish an example of tremendous growth.

Post-Dispatch GAINS have now extended, without exception, over a period embracing each and every consecutive week this year over the corresponding weeks of 1918.

A record-breaking achievement probably never before equaled by any other metropolitan newspaper.

MAY 1919 Home-Merchants' Advertising

	Agate Lines
POST-DISPATCH	765,520
Globe-Democrat	487,500
Republic	234,900

Post-Dispatch alone exceeded the Globe-Democrat and Republic combined 43,120 lines.

Post-Dispatch alone exceeded the Star, Times and Republic combined, 55,720 lines.

MAY 1919 National Advertising

	Agate Lines
POST-DISPATCH	*312,480
Globe-Democrat	281,400
Republic	85,200
Star (No Sunday)	103,200
Times (No Sunday)	60,000

*A record-breaking month in National Advertising exceeding its own previous high record of April, 1919, by 18,480 lines.

Post-Dispatch alone exceeded the Star, Times and Republic 64,080 lines.

The POST-DISPATCH guarantees a circulation in St. Louis every day in the year, DAILY or SUNDAY, more than DOUBLE that of the Globe-Democrat or ANY OTHER newspaper.

MISSIONS OF WORLD AT BIG CHURCH FAIR

Methodists Will Display Work of 100 Years at Columbus, O., June 20 to July 13.

"American Methodists," which phrase embraces all the Methodist communions in St. Louis, including the two Bishops, William A. Quayle and W. F. McMurray, are to have the first "world's fair" after the war. The "arts of peace," which Americans have displayed with fond frequency in former years, will be set forth by Methodists of America in a park of 100 acres at Columbus, O., June 20 to July 13.

C. H. Rushmore of Kansas City is raising and equipping special trains of Methodists and their friends and this movement will soon be started in St. Louis. Fred R. Long, superintendent of Union Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday school, is one of those promoting the plan of a special St. Louis train. Automobile cross-country parties are also planned, and in some cases hundreds of persons, all Methodists, expect to go together over the good roads leading into Columbus.

This world's fair is to show missions. After 100 years, Methodism, North and South, has achieved results which will now be presented as an object lesson in which eight large buildings and an outdoor amphitheater for 50,000 persons.

Customs of Other Nations.

Instead of a "Pike" or a "Midway," to show the not exactly desirable qualities of certain alien nations, the American Methodist world's fair is to exhibit the costumes, customs and industries of strange peoples, always as touched and influenced by the Gospel.

Lowell Thomas, who was with Gen. Allenby in Palestine, will show his moving pictures and still photographs of the Jerusalem campaign, his travelogues of storied scenes around Jerusalem telling also the whole story of the campaign of Jerusalem's surrender.

A miniature Ganges river actually flowing through the India building will be the center of queer heathen religious customs, as found in a miniature Hindu Temple and Mohammedan mosque, and a sacred monkey temple with 12 monkeys from India. Here, sacred pigeons will be fed daily, and a fakir's bed of spikes will be shown. Such peculiar customs as the missionaries know about—the public letter-writer, sweetmeat seller, toothcleaner, and the curious Indian bazar, besides the Indian marriage procession with the bridegroom riding an elephant, are among the missiinary contributions from India, directed by Dr. Lew E. Linzell of India.

Ethiopians at Work.

In an immense Kaffir kraal containing five full-sized huts and a cattle inclosure, 60 Ethiopians will be found working at various typical industries. In another section of the African building will be seen the desert life of Northern Africa, with Bedouin tents and Moorish town. J. T. C. Blackmore of Algeria has charge of this, and also of a reproduction of early Roman civilization in the same building. There will be shown Roosevelt and Rainey motion pictures, episodes from the life of Livingston, lion hunts and Kaffir dances, the Uganda railway and African mission scenes.

A Japanese garden with wishing bridge, lily pond, pergola and pavilion, a gold mining scene, and the famous Hiroshima kindergarten, with real Japanese children, are to be in the Japan building under Dr. E. R. Bull. China will be represented as completely, as also Korea, the Philippines, and Malaysia.

Devastated France and Belgium will be shown realistically, and for North America there are to be two large buildings, in which will appear Alaskan and Pueblo Indians, mountaineers, a typical Southern plantation, foreign shop-keepers in New York, and California Japs.

Credit for originating this plan of celebrating 100 years of Methodist missions is given to Rev. Dr. W. W. Pinson of Nashville, Tenn., general secretary of Southern Methodist Mission Boards, who is now chairman of the Joint Commission having the big church event in charge. Dr. S. Earl Taylor of the Methodist Episcopal Church is director-general, and Dr. W. B. Beauchamp of Nashville, associate director.

DIRECTOR CALLS ENGLISH COURSE BUT START IN AMERICANIZATION

B. K. Baghdigian Makes Report to Women's Council of Department's Work for Year.

B. K. Baghdigian, director of the Americanization department of the St. Louis Women's Council, at the final meeting of the council for the year at the American Annex, read his report of the work done during the year by his department. The American program of the council, according to the report, has been accepted by the National Federation of Women's Clubs.

Teaching of English and naturalization of foreign-born citizens are only the beginnings of Americanization, the St. Louis program says. The following are parts of the plan: Sending teachers to the homes of foreign-born citizens, affiliating all foreign women's societies with the Women's Council of St. Louis, visiting foreign patients in hospitals, lecture courses, assistance of the foreign-born with legal aid, Juvenile Court work, and a campaign to outfit a number of Americanization houses here where foreign-born citizens may meet on equal terms with those of native birth.

After Baghdigian's report, W. E. Billheimer aided the council in raising a fund of $610 to carry on Americanization work during the summer months.

Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author Says

EVERY WOMAN EVERY MOTHER EVERY DAUGHTER NEEDS IRON AT TIMES

To put strength into her nerves and color into her cheeks.

There can be no beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked women without iron. The trouble in the past has been that when women needed iron they generally took ordinary metallic iron, which often corroded the stomach and did far more harm than good. Today doctors prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron. This particular form of iron is easily assimilated, does not blacken nor injure the teeth nor upset the stomach. It will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, irritable, careworn, haggard looking women 100 per cent in two weeks' time in many instances. I have used it in my own practice with most surprising results.—Ferdinand King, M. D.

Men Found God in "No Man's Land" When They Fell, "Gypsy Pat" Smith Says

Soldier-Evangelist Answers Question as to Whether Dying Fighters Go to Heaven Without Personal Religious Experience by Saying No Man Ever Went Over Top and Remained an Atheist—Fighters at Front Very Susceptible to Old Fundamentals of Gospel, He Asserts—Predicts Same Thing Will Be True in Civil Life, Though Outward Signs May Be Lacking.

CAPT. PAT SMITH, gypsy-born Scotch soldier-evangelist, who will speak three times today at Union Methodist Church, has a new answer to the greatest religious question of the war period. This question was, and for the religiously minded relatives of many dead soldiers, still is:

Does a soldier dying on the battlefield, in a righteous cause, but without having had a personal religious experience, go to heaven?

"I have spoken to thousands of soldiers on religion," said Capt. Smith, "and I never told them that they would go to heaven just because they died on the battlefield. Soldiers don't believe anything of the sort. I have heard the people at home talk that way, but not the men at the front.

"But here is what I do believe, and what I am glad to say for the comfort of the parents and friends of the soldier dead. I believe that many thousands found God in No Man's Land, in the hour of battle and in the moment of death.

"On the Somme, of 700 bodies of our men killed in battle, some 650 were found in a half-kneeling posture. I have never heard any medical man say that this was the result of any reflex action of the muscles. I know, from my own physical experience as a wounded man, and from the words of the dying men to whom I have listened, that these men died in the act of prayer.

CAPT. PAT SMITH.

Brings Thought of Eternity

"Here is the physical part of it. The men whose bones are broken by bullets, as the bones in my left arm and thigh were broken, soon experience a numbness in these parts of the body, and this brings relief from pain. Then comes the thought of the nearness of eternity, and the man instinctively takes the attitude of prayer, and begins the act of prayer. As the life passes, the body relaxes to the posture in which so many bodies are found, the crouching, half-kneeling position. The artist paints men dying on the battlefield, lying on their backs, but the more common attitude is the one I have described.

"I have heard these prayers of dying men. Often they end with a last cry of 'Mother!'

"This conclusion as to the men's last moments is in accord with the facts which I have learned, in service throughout the war, about the religious belief of the men at the front.

"No infantryman ever went over the top and remained an atheist. I am sure of this. Speaking to thousands, at the front and among the home people, I have challenged them to tell me of any man in the firing line who did not believe in God. No one has ever done so.

"I do not believe many men went over the top without a prayer. A man may swear when he comes back from the battle, but when he is going into it, he will pray.

Listen Through Holes in Roof

"Men at the front are very susceptible to religious work. I was at the front as a fighter, not as a chaplain, but I was privileged to speak to many meetings of soldiers, seldom less than 1000 together. At the big base camp of Etaples, where the meetings were announced by a big signboard, there were more than 1000 every night for nine nights, and some listened through holes in the roof. I tried to give them the plain gospel.

"Every night, 50 or 60 men, both churched and unchurched in their former lives, would respond to the appeal for enlistment in the religious life. That takes courage. I have been 12 times or more over the top, so I know what I am talking about when I say that it takes more courage to take a stand for the first time in religion than it takes to climb out of a trench into No Man's Land.

"The old fundamentals of the gospel were good enough for the men at the front. They didn't care for modern 'isms' mixed up with their religion. The same thing will be true of the soldiers, after they come back into civil life.

"The way to reach men home from the war is a question being discussed a great deal by ministers, but it is simple. Preach the old-fashioned gospel message.

"In England the men are coming into the churches in a way that shows the effect of the experiences at the front.

"When men come back from France, they are likely to have a fling, and they may sometimes seem farther from the outward signs of religion than they were before. But when they settle down, the memories of the incidents and experiences of the trenches, and the times when they were brought face to face with God, will bring an awakening in their hearts.

"No man has been through the trench experience without some change in his heart and life. On the Somme, in July, 1916, our men went over the top singing 'Onward, Christian Soldiers,' and they meant it.

"'The home people are sometimes disappointed in the returning men, because they have not sufficiently understood the men's feelings. But it would be well if the home folks had been affected as deeply as the soldiers have been. The effect on the home folks has at least been good in a physical way.

"Old women who have been keeping doctors alive for years have no ailments now, and the doctors can give their time to more necessary work. Women who nursed poodles have found something else in life, in nursing and caring for human beings.

"It is hardly likely that the United States should feel such a profound religious effect from the war as England is feeling. Our killed were 900,000, out of a population of 34,000,00, or about one in every 38 persons. Your country, with all its splendid service, was not so long in the war, and lost no such a portion of its men.

"Our soldiers in France were men, not angels. They did not drink to excess. I saw only two of our men intoxicated while I was in France. In other matters, they behaved very much as men do at home, except that it was easier to reach them with the religious appeal than it is to reach the men at home.

"The men of our Scotch regiment were rough coal miners, but none of the women who nursed me in my 19 months in the hospital was more tender than those men. The sight of death, and the danger of death, do not harden such men. They make their hearts tender. Men learn to weep without shame, and it is good for them.

Hearts Hardened in Hospitals

"I have found that men on leave from the front are very easily approached with the message of the gospel. On the other hand, men in hospitals are not so easily reached. There is a relaxation of the religious feelings that came while in the lines, and there is a sense of physical security, which causes some men to harden their hearts."

Capt. Smith, who entered the war as a private in Lovat's Scouts, a Scotch cavalry command, was promoted from First Lieutenant to Captain about two months before the armistice. He tells this story of the winning of his promotion:

"I was sent in command of a company to take over a new part of the line, on the River Scheldt, in Belgium. Another battalion had been holding this line, but when we got up, I learned that this other battalion had been forced back across the river.

"Our commander, Gen. Sir Horace Plumer, had said that this position must be held at all costs. Although I had not been responsible for losing it, it was up to me to get it back. I saw, too, that if I did not recover the position at night, I would have to attack for it the next day. That would have meant a loss of 200 men.

"So, with four or five men, I went over, and we drove the Huns out of their first position. I held it with two men, and sent back two, who summoned about 30 men as reinforcements. We attacked farther on, and recaptured the whole position, with five casualties. When the facts as

Should Capital Punishment Be Restored?

AN INTERESTING SYMPOSIUM OF OPINIONS BY ST. LOUISANS

Lynching at Lamar Few Days Ago Regarded as Protest Against Present Life System

General Increase of Crime and Spreading Bomb Outrages Suggest to Many the Necessity of Returning to the Stern Mosaic Rule That Demanded an Eye for an Eye and Life for Life—Others Say Change Would Be Step Backward.

WHETHER or not it was a mistake to abolish capital punishment in Missouri and fail to restore it to the statute books at the session of the Legislature which has just closed is a question that is being discussed in many quarters, in view of the recent lynching of Jay Lynch at Lamar, Mo., after he had confessed murdering a Sheriff and the Sheriff's son. Under the present law, Lynch could not have suffered a severer penalty than life imprisonment for his cold-blooded crime.

The bomb outrages in the last few days also have caused the thoughts of many to revert to capital punishment as a way to check such outrages, which thus far have been confined to the East, but may spread at any time to other sections of the country.

The murders by the Lewis brothers and many gang killings in St. Louis also have seemed to some to be an argument in favor of repudiating the legislative action by which capital punishment was revoked.

A number of prominent churchmen, educators and lawyers have been asked by the Post-Dispatch whether in view of such conditions and the recurrence of such crimes of violence it was a wise move to abrogate capital punishment. Here are their expressions:

Life for Life, Says Judge Dyer.

JUDGE D. P. DYER of the United States District Court for the Eastern Missouri District, and for 50 years a civil and criminal practitioner, said:

"A man who takes another man's life should pay the penalty with his own life. I think it was a mistake to abolish capital punishment and I think it should be put back on the statute books wherever it was taken off."

Glennon Blames Pardon System.

ARCHBISHOP JOHN J. GLENNON of the Roman Catholic diocese of St. Louis said:

"I did not advocate the abolition of capital punishment. It was abolished while people were swayed by a humanitarian wave. They were getting so good they thought it would hurt people's feelings to inflict capital punishment.

"Such momentous questions should not be determined on any wave of a temporary or emotional character. Just now there is a great deal of unrest and blood lust as a result of the great war and it might be necessary to adopt drastic measures to check crime, but due consideration should be given to the subject before reversing the Legislature's action. In this we should not be moved by impulse.

"I would not be one of those to serve on a committee to demand the reintroduction of capital punishment. I personally believe it never should have been taken off, but I do not think we should tamper with legislation on vital matters of morals and I would not demand the restoration of capital punishment just now.

"It might be said that with capital punishment in force that man would not have been lynched at Lamar. With equal truth it might be said that if the men who did that lynching knew they would be hanged for it there would have been no lynching.

"I am inclined to think both of those views are extreme. The people of Lamar who killed that man not only knew there would be no capital punishment for their offense, but they felt they would not go to jail for it. If all lynchers were condemned to die, there would be no lynchings.

"Life imprisonment might be an adequate punishment for murder if it were absolute and irrevocable. There is a feeling that when a man is sentenced to the penitentiary for life, or for 10 or 20 years he will in time gain his freedom through a parole. I never signed a petition for a parole and will never sign one. If men sent to the penitentiary for life or for definite terms were forced to serve their full sentences there would be less incentive to lynch law. When a man goes to the penitentiary now there is always a feeling that sooner or later friends or politicians will let him out and the law will thus be cheated."

Tuttle "Stands on Scriptures."

BISHOP DANIEL S. TUTTLE of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Missouri and presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, said:

"I am and always have been for capital punishment as the only just penalty for the crime of murder. It stands squarely on the scripture, which says that whosoever sheds the blood of man, his blood shall be shed also. It is the only way to punish the taking of human life."

University Head for Restoration.

CHANCELLOR FREDERIC A. HALL, of Washington University, said: "I am heartily in favor of the re-establishment of some form of capital punishment in Missouri, and of its universal use in cases where it seems to be really needed.

"I have lived in a community where lynching has been resorted to—Springfield, Mo. They have had some lynchings down there that were most regrettable.

"I have not much sympathy with the sentimentality that is always on the side of the 'poor unfortunate,' as they call him. I am a strong believer in a wholesame respect for the law. I am speaking now entirely as a layman. I may be wrong, but my impression is that most of the irregularity and outlawry of lynchings is due to the court decisions, and particularly to the delays in court.

"I think one of the greatest objections to the abolition of capital punishment is the too frequent leniency of Governors in pardoning lifetermers.

"I have not a very clearly defined opinion about the recent dynamite plots. It seems to me they are just another attempt to terrorize the world. I should not think that history would give the plotters much encouragement. It never has worked in the past. These plotters should be severely dealt with. How, is up to the courts, but I think they should receive the death penalty if their deeds resulted in deaths.

"It seems to me, speaking as a layman again, that England shows us what can be done by rigid enforcement of the law. I do not believe there has been a lynching in England in the last hundred years.

"So far as I know, in all of Canada, which is similar in its respect of law to England, there has not been one in all that time. There have been but two or three train hold-ups in Western Canada in some years. I think that this condition is due to the fact that in England and Canada everybody knows that the laws will be speedily enforced.

"Lynchings are one of the worst outbreaks of mob law. While the types, in my opinion, are different, the anarchist is more guilty than the mob, but the effects are not so different. Mob law injures the community much more than it injures the victims of the mob. Anarchy, however, is a form of mob law.

"The death penalty is not really barbarous, provided it can be conducted in a scientific and humane manner."

"Restoration Step Backward."

CHARLES P. JOHNSON, oldest criminal practitioner in St. Louis, said:

"The restoration of capital punishment in Missouri would be a step backward in the line of humane progress. It would be deeply regretted by all who take an interest in questions affecting social conditions.

"All great social science students and criminologists have condemned as useless the practice of capital punishment for the accomplishment of any good. They have shown conclusively that it is harmful in its results.

"The main apology for its infliction is to prevent others from committing crime. Therein is a great fallacy. Experience has proven to the contrary. It encourages cruelty and barbarity. No good can come out of it, but rather much evil. It would be an avowed retrogression.

No Time to Judge Now, Says Lamm.

JUDGE HENRY LAMM of Sedalia, former Chief Justice of the Missouri Supreme Court, said: "I am inclined to the belief that we should not return to capital punishment until we have given the law abolishing death for crime a square-toed trial. One swallow doesn't make a summer and a short test doesn't prove anything. Certainly, if statistics are not available in our own State on the effect on crime of the abolishment of hanging, we should determine the experience of other states in the matter.

"The Lamar case is not connected with the question in my opinion, although I have heard an ugly rumor that it might have been a plotted commentary on the refusal of the Legislature to restore capital punishment. I have heard it said that it was stated on the floor of the House that if the slayer was caught he would be hanged whether or no the Legislature legalized hangings. That should be investigated. But there were lynchings with capital punishment in effect and there probably will be lynchings if it is restored. The question of lynching is a separate problem."

"Only Deterrent of Crime."

JUDGE WILSON A. TAYLOR, Division No. 11, Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, said:

"I favor the restoration of the death penalty in Missouri, not because I would care to see any man expiate a crime on the gallows, but because I firmly believe that capital punishment on the statute books is the greatest deterrent of capital crimes.

"I think I may also say that most of our Judges, both civil and criminal, feel the same way. I remember they were in favor of passing a resolution advocating re-enacting the statue when the matter was up before the last Legislature. Lack of data on crime at that time, I believe, prevented action being taken.

"However, my own judgment is, from the handling of criminal cases, that the fear a man has of extreme punishment will often prevent him from resorting to homicide, and for that reason alone I believe the death penalty should be restored.

"I believe every man who makes a business of crime figures on the punishment he will get if he is caught. In the Court of Criminal Correction, where I once presided, I found it was the custom to fine men conducting lotteries $10. They cared nothing for this fine and lottery games flourished throughout the city. They paid their fines and offended again. I adopted a rule to increase these fines at each succeeding offense until I got offenders up to a point where it was unprofitable for them to do business. Then the lottery business was stamped out. It is the same in everything else. Punishment must be fixed to suit the enormity of crime.

"I believe if the capital punishment statute was in effect today the lynching recently at Lamar, Mo., would not have occurred. I believe those people were incited to do what they did because they felt the slayer of their Sheriff and his son could not get under the law what they justly believed was coming to him. Manifestly, the character of men the newspaper accounts connect with this affair are the kind of men who would have reflected their wisdom in a jury verdict with a death penalty. My judgment is, from the accounts I read, that there were among them some of the best people of the community, and I do not believe they will even begin to convict any of them. In plain words, this was a case where the law was not sufficient vindication, and the people took the case into their own hands.

"The people who argue that capital punishment is barbarous overlook the fact that the purpose of all law, civil or criminal, is to conserve rights, and laws ought to be severe enough to answer their purpose. Society would have no purpose in punishing anybody if it could be assured a crime committed would not be repeated. Society could safely allow the original offender to go free if it were safe to do so. But the purpose of society in assessing adequate punishment is to prevent its recurrence for the sake of protecting the whole social fabric.

"I think the best interests of all will be conserved if it is left to juries to decide whether the punishment be life or death in capital cases, just as circumstances warrant.

"In that way it will give the people a chance to express what they want done with offenders. If the people are to be the judges of punishment why not give them the right to say what it will be.

"As an instance of what drastic enforcement of rigid law is I noticed some time ago that in London, during the period of a year, 15 persons were charged with murder, 13 of whom were executed for their crimes. I compared the record with St. Louis for the same period. I found that 100 homicides were committed here during the same period, but none had paid a death penalty. St. Louis is perhaps a fifth of the size of London, and this example serves to show the wonderfully deterrent force of capital punishment."

"Crime of Murder Increasing."

JUDGE JOHN W. CALHOUN, Division No. 13, Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, said.

"Since the law abolishing capital punishment was repealed, it seems to me, the crime of murder has been on the increase. Most murders occur while men are engaged in the act of committing another crime, as witness the murder of Alli

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT ONLY DETERRENT OF CERTAIN CRIMES, SAY CIRCUIT ATTORNEY AND HIS PREDECESSOR

By Lawrence McDaniel,
Circuit Attorney.

BEFORE the meeting of the Legislature of the State of Missouri in January this year, I appealed to all the prosecuting attorneys throughout the State to aid in having the death penalty restored as punishment for various crimes of violence, and worked earnestly toward this end during the session of the Legislature.

The Senate voted almost unanimously to restore this penalty. When a vote was taken in the House enough votes were cast to pass the measure but three members changed their votes after the roll call, hence by three votes the measure was lost.

Anyone giving thought to existing conditions ought to have seen that strict enforcement of the criminal law and drastic punishment for violations of it is absolutely necessary. There is great social unrest and danger of the spread of Bolshevism, a condition that demands severe punishment.

I did not advocate the restoration of the death penalty just to see someone hang, but have always believed that with the exreme penaly on our statute books, the commission of many crimes could be deterred.

In my judgment life imprisonment is not adequate punishment for some crimes. Shortly after the abolition of the death penalty, a man in this city criminally assaulted a very young girl and his act resulted in her death. Was life imprisonment adequate for him?

Would a mob have lynched a man in Lamar, Mo., if the death penalty had been on the statute books?

Opposition to the restoration of the death penalty came from well meaning persons, who, unfortunately, were not experienced in the enforcement of the criminal law.

The argument is advanced that taking life legally is brutal. This may be true, but many murders are far more brutal than a legal execution, and punishment should fit the crime.

Under the law as it now exists the murderer has little to fear. He may murder a great number of people, yet life imprisonment is the only penalty. A convict in the penitentiary for life may murder a guard or guards to effect an escape and suffer no further punishment.

Life imprisonment rarely means that a man shall spend the rest of his life in the penitentiary. With but very few exceptions, no person committed to the penitentiary for life has served over fifteen years.

By Thomas B. Harvey,
Former Circuit Judge and Mr. McDaniel's Predecessor as Circuit Attorney.

I OPPOSED the repeal of the statute which provided the death penalty on the ground that certain murders are so atrocious that death is the only adequate punishment. I feel, too, that the community feels that death should be the penalty for premediated murder.

The absence of capital punishment, to my mind, encourages lynchings, which always are a disgrace to civilization. Take the case at Lamar, Mo. It is possible that the people there believed that the State was without adequate remedy for the offense that Jay Lynch committed, and as a result took the law into their own hands.

Some crimes are so heinous and outtrageous that it seems that the only thing that will act as a deterrent to the others is the sure and swift administration of justice through the death penalty.

I think that fear of the gallows is the only thing that will deter hardened criminals and those naturally disposed to commit homicide from the commission of such acts. I believe it would be far better for the public at large if power is given to juries to decide whether death or life imprisonment be assessed against capital offenders.

SHOULD CAPITAL PUNISHMENT BE RESTORED IN STATE

Chandler on North Broadway, when his saloon was robbed, for which three men have been sentenced to life, and the killing of "Kid" Becker, for which four are to be tried on murder charges. The lack of regard for the value of human life, it would seem, calls for more drastic punishment than mere life sentences.

"Authorities on crime and its punishment hold that the true object of punishment for crime is to prevent its recurrence, not to reform criminals; therefore the certainty of a full measure of punishment for shocking crimes seems to be the best deterrent on others who may be contemplating such offenses.

"I would like to see capital punishment restored, giving the jury the option of assessing life sentences or death penalties in capital cases. My idea of it is that experience shows just what punishment is necessary to prevent crime. I feel that men drawn from the commonwealth for juries invariably assess a true measure of punishment. Forty-seven men are drawn in capital cases. The defendant has the right of challenging 20, the State 15, leaving 12 men to pass on the defendant's guilt or innocence after he either denies the commission of a crime or stands mute in court, refusing to make a plea. Now, if we have confidence in a jury drawn in this way, and experience has taught us that this is the best and safest method to pursue in assessing punishment, why should we limit the penalty they can impose in a capital case where human life is taken by saying that they shall not order execution of a man where they believe that it is the only punishment that should be inflicted and would result in compelling others in a community to obey the law and keep them from committing a similar offense.

"Some may claim that capital punishment is barbarous and inhuman, but I believe they approach the subject from the wrong angle. They are concerned in reforming a few individuals, but not in preventing crime. In trying to reform criminals they do not reckon with these people who do not want to be reformed. Did the leader of the Lewis brothers show any signs of wanting to reform after departing from St. Louis. Instead he launched into a carnival of crime that eclipsed anything done in St. Louis. He even took a sister into his gang and she, too, was sent to the penitentiary. Society does not benefit by sentencing a man to prison for life, allowing him to serve 10 or 15 years of this term, and then returning him to society to repeat his offenses and set bad examples."

St. Louis U. Head for Hanging.

THE REV. BERNARD J. OTTING, S. J., president of the St. Louis University, said:

"Major-General Leonard A. Wood said at the university commencement exercises:

" 'Liberty is found only within the bounds of law, never outside of them.' As we treasure liberty, so must we treasure law; as we safeguard liberty, so must we safeguard law. There were and are and always will be lawless men; men without respect for law and order, men who carry evil-doing about them in their hearts, and who will perpetrate crime for even slight self-advantage. The murder statistics of all history show this. Such men are the greatest enemies of liberty and law and order and society; they must be restrained, they must be deterred from their evil purposes, they must know that if they inflict upon others the greatest of evils, the greatest penalty will be meted out to them. No sanction will protect us against the murderer save that of the death penalty.

"Missouri abolished capital punishment. A wave of crime has since swept over the State. No doubt, many factors contributed to this; but I am convinced that highwaymen and safe blowers and gunmen now feel easy in the plying of their trade. Logically, the State has placed itself at the mercy of criminals. It has disarmed itself by abolishing capital punishment; it must now disarm its police and its militia, and must work to disarm its country. This is the true end of the full argument. Would we we wish to follow to the end? I am convinced that, if Missourians love 'Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness,' they will insist that the present law against capital punishment be repealed at the next session of the State Legislature."

O. B. WHITAKER, member of the Legislature from Hickory County, who was the author of the law abolishing capital punishment, and who prevented the repeal of that law in the recent Legislature, said:

"No one's life should be taken after he has surrendered or even captured. Death penalty does not deter criminals, but has a tendency to increase crime. All reliable statistics prove. Murders were on the increase in Missouri before the death penalty was abolished two years ago, and have decreased since. The Lynch case at Lamar is the only case of lynching in the State since the death penalty was abolished, and Lamar had lynched at least two before. Besides, there were scores of other lynchings in the State before capital punishment was abolished. Homicides in the United States are less than one-half as many per 100,000 population in the states that have abolished the death penalty as in those that still retain it. As to the Lewis brothers, Lynch, the Johnson County case and others, the Lewis brothers committed their crime before the death penalty was abolished, and crimes equally as repulsive have been and are being constantly committed in states that still inflict the death penalty.

"I asked the following questions of each of the Governors of the states that have abolished the death penalty:

"1. Has crime increased in your State as a result of abolishing capital punishment? Eight answered 'No;' one expressed doubt; none answered 'Yes.'

"2. Have the particular crimes for which you formerly inflicted the death penalty increased as a result of abolishing capital punishment? All answers were in the negative.

"3. Has lynching increased in your State as a result of abolishing the death penalty? All answers again in the negative.

"4. Would you or the people of your State favor the repeal of the law abolishing the death penalty? Again all answers in the negative.

"It seems a strange thing to me that wise, intelligent, reasoning men will permit themselves to violate every rule of dependable logic by being thrown off their feet and swept away by some isolated case or cases of atrocious crime (such as are being committed even more frequently where the death penalty is still inflicted) and arrive at conclusions and make demands such as would be absolutely refuted by a calm, deliberate, logical procedure."

JUDGE VITAL W. GARESCHE, Division No. 10, Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, said:

"I have always been in favor of capital punishment for the reason that I believe, and my belief is based on my experience, that it is the only punishment that effectively acts as a deterrent to others who may contemplate committing kindred offenses such as murder and rape.

"While the jury in a given case

Illinois Abstractors' Convention.

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., June 7.—The Illinois Abstractors' Association opened its twelfth annual convention here this morning and selected Chicago as the meeting place for next year. Officers were elected as follows: President, Walter Ayres, Jacksonville; vice president, Edwin Filson, Champaign; secretary, B. F. Hildebrand, Bloomington; treasurer, Frank Cole, Marshall; Executive Committee: H. C. Schrader, Belleville; W. F. Burkett, Benton; C. M. Conrad, Sycamore; A. R. Marricott, Chicago; J. K. Payton, Springfield.

SHOULD CAPITAL PUNISHMENT BE RESTORED IN STATE

may assess the death penalty, the question of whether it shall be carried out is always subject to the discretion of the trial Judge in the first instance and that of the Governor of the State in the last instance, either one of whom had the power under the law to commute the sentence to life imprisonment. The average defendant who goes to the penitentiary for life for murder nowadays does not serve over 15 years of his sentence, and sometimes less. A term of 15 years in the penitentiary is not sufficient punishment for an aggravated case of murder in the first degree, and there are among the lawless element many who would not hesitate to take a human life knowing that the penitentiary alone awaited them, but who would shrink from the commission of a crime the penalty for which is death.

"The claim that the death penalty is barbarous and a relic of the dark ages is to my mind a wholly impractical theory and nothing short of fanatical hysteria. Nothing is thought of shooting a soldier for the crime of treason in war time, or the execution of an enemy spy. Punishment in criminal cases is designed for a twofold purpose, first to penalize the offender and second to furnish example to others that will deter them from the commission of a life offense, thereby benefiting society as a whole.

"Nothing short of the death penalty by way of punishment is sufficiently drastic to measure up to the offense of murder in the first degree. In this connection I cite the case of "Lord" Barrington, who was convicted of one of the most foul, most aggravated and most dastardly murders in this State, who was first sentenced to death and whose sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, and who was released from the penitentiary after serving less than 15 years."

Vigilance Head for Present Plan.

WILLIAM H. O'BRIEN, President of the Vigilance Bureau of St. Louis, said:

"I am unalterably opposed to capital punishment. It is barbarous and uncivilized and never did have the effect of minimizing crime. I believe that 99 of every 100 murders are committed in the heat of passion and under conditions that would preclude from the mind of the offender any fear or thought of the consequence. Murder should be analyzed from a pathological standpoint."

RABBI LEON HARRISON of Temple Israel, said:

"I do not believe in capital punishment. The mistakes of the law cannot be corrected once they are made. I do not believe in the principle of an eye for an eye and a life for a life.

The institution of capital punishment, it seems to me, has not proved a deterrent against murder. My impression is that it has not been a success in the states in which it has been tried.

"The swiftness and certainty of justice, in whatever form of punishment it may have, are sufficient deterrents in themselves, without applying capital punishment. Our justice, especially in cases of homicide, is not swift and is not certain. In this phase the administration of justice should be changed, but not by the installation of the death penalty."

WALTER L. HENSLEY, United States District Attorney, said:

"I have prosecuted in quite a number of criminal cases. I have also been in the defense of several persons charged with crime, and I thought my judgment was fixed with reference to this important matter. I have for a while been constrained to the belief that what was most needed as a deterrent of crime was speedy and swift punishment. But recently, and especially since crime seems so prevalent, so rampant, over the country, the lives of public officials and innocent persons are being sniffed out in the most awful and violent ways imaginable, I feel that I should revise my opinion with respect to capital punishment, and I say that organized government must put a stop to crime at any cost; that if this reign of crime continues, we should pass such laws as are necessary and be vigorous in the enforcement of such laws to mete out punishment adequate and effective to stop it, though it is necessary to repeal the law against capital punishment and even add to those crimes which call for capital punishment, robberies and like offenses, which are so terrorizing the country."

"Don't Step Backward," Chubb's Warning.

PERCIVAL CHUBB, leader of the Ethical Society, said:

"There is a scare on now, just as there always is at times like this. While these crimes may stir the question, they do not affect the principle of capital punishment. I am opposed to capital punishment, just as I always have been.

"As I understand it, murders are done, for the most part, by persons mentally diseased, or in the heat of anger. We can dismiss the latter, as it is admitted that a man in a fit of passion is not sane for the moment, and largely irresponsible for his acts. That leaves only the diseased. The question, then, is whether the threat of hanging deters them from killing. The whole history of study on the subject has been that it does not.

"In the old times, there would be an epidemic of sheep stealing, and sheep owners, in a panic, would order the death penalty for sheep thieves. It did not deter them, and it does not deter men bent on murder.

"It is not the severity of the punishment, but the certainty that punishment will be inflicted, that deters men, if anything in the nature of punishment deters them. When a man plans a crime, he doesn't do so because he believes he will get off with a light sentence, but because he believes he will get off without any.

"As a matter of fact, I think democracy is committed against the principle of capital punishment, because democracy is based on the sacredness of individual life. If some one person violates that sacredness, it does not justify society as a whole in violating it.

"A discussion of the question brings up the whole problem of criminology, of course, and the question as to whether any punishment, as such, should be inflicted; the question of whether we need vengeance or correction. What we need, I think, is more measures to keep people from wanting to commit crimes, and fewer measures to avenge ourselves breeding places for crime. Irregularity of employment is another great cause of crime. The man who steals, and then kills to get away, rarely is a man who has a steady job.

"One foult to be found is that our children have no moral or ethical teaching in the schools. On the excuse that home and church are the proper places for that sort of teaching, we let our school children grow up without any idea of practical goodness or badness, never giving them an idea as to what crime, lawagainst them after they have committed them.

"Murder is nearly always incidental to something else. No man murders just to kill somebody. It usually has its source in stealing. In the cases of the Lewis boys and of Lynch, they had been arrested for stealing, and they killed officers to escape.

"We are grossly and criminally indifferent to the causes of crime, the chief one of which is evil environment. Any person who goes through our slums can see that they are lessness or good citizenship are.

"And right here, I would take occasion to say, that if the officials want to increase the amount of crime, they couldn't adopt a more effectivev method than by shutting up the playgrounds and public recreation places, as they are proposing to do. Let them do that, on the contemptible plea of economy, and we

A Special Sale Tomorrow of 250 Summer Dresses for Women

at the Special Price of $12.75

This is a specially planned event, to which we gave much time and effort, with the result that we believe the Dresses offered in this sale are of a most unusual value.

They are developed in dotted Swiss, woven madras and checked, figured, dotted and plain voiles.

While this event includes several hundred Dresses, we urge an early attendance, so that you may have a wider range of choice.

Charmingly cool and dainty Summer Dresses—some fashioned in the new apron effect with panier pockets on the sides, others have tunics, a model very becoming to the large figure.

Unusual pockets, organdie vestees, attractive collars and cuffs, finished with lace or frills and youthful sashes are all interesting features.

⅓ to ½ Less Than Regular Prices

This, the Greatest Sale of Remnants we have ever attempted, is an event that should prove of extraordinary interest and value to thousands of St. Louis women tomorrow.

The enormous quantity of $22,500.00 worth of Remnants, gathered from the various Departments, is the result of the greatest season of selling in our history of 69 years of merchandising.

You who are familiar with the Great Basement Events at Vandervoort's will at once appreciate the importance of this tremendous sale to which we have given over practically a quarter of a block of space—50 large tables—and plenty of experienced salespeople to wait upon you promptly.

Aside from the large quantities of Yard Goods, Ribbons and Drapery Remnants gathered from the departments for this event, we have made special purchases from manufacturers of short lengths at great price concessions, enabling us to offer them to you at savings of one-third to one-half.

$14,000.00 Worth of Silk Remnants

Thousands of Silk Remnants of all descriptions, shades and sizes, the accumulation after a tremendous Spring season's business, the largest in our history—and in addition, we had added thousands of lengths just purchased from prominent manufacturers—making this Silk Remnant Event one of the greatest St. Louis has ever known.

This is a wonderful opportunity for you to buy beautiful Silks and Satins for future use—for fancy work, bags, waist lengths, skirt lengths, dress lengths, in fact, any purpose—at savings averaging one-third to one-half.

$1,000.00 Worth of White Goods Remnants

White Goods Remnants of practically every description and washable materials—included are hundreds of lengths suitable for waists, dresses, skirts, children's suits, lingerie and fancy blouses.

Among the Remnants are many pieces of all-over embroideries, voiles, batistes, fancy skirtings, pencil cord piques, Oxfords, Pekin skirtings, gabardine suitings and crash linens. Substantial savings in every piece offered, many at less than cost.

$2,000.00 Worth of Colored Wash Goods Remnants

This lot offers wonderful opportunities for obtaining short length materials of the newest and best quality, suitable for waists, dresses, skirts, children's dresses, and many other uses, at a remarkable saving.

The materials included are printed and woven voiles, tissues, batiste lawns, plain voiles, plain and fancy cotton suitings, silk and lisle tussah, ginghams, printed percales, plain poplins, and others.

$2,000.00 Worth of Woolen Dress Goods Remnants

A very large accumulation of Woolen Dress Goods, consisting of serges, shepherd checks, mohairs and plaids in plain and the new fancy weaves—lengths suitable for children's garments, separate skirts, coats and frocks. All greatly reduced.

$500.00 Worth of Lining Remnants

In this lot are numerous pieces of plain and fancy Sateens suitable for petticoats, coat linings and quilt linings—all offered at prices that represent savings of practically one-half the regular prices.

$1,000.00 Worth of Ribbon Remnants

Hundreds upon hundreds of pieces of beautiful Ribbon Remnants, including satins, faille, moire, taffetas, silver and gold effects, plaids, striped velour velvets, prints, brocades and others—the majority being in the wide widths—and all varying from 3½ to 14 inches wide.

There are lengths suitable for the popular vests, girdles, bags, sashes and many pieces just the thing wanted for Hat Trimmings.

$2,000.00 Worth of Lace and Embroidery Remnants

The Lace Remnants include numerous pieces of Val., Venise, Filet, Cluny, Net Flouncing, Georgette, Voiles, Net and Real Filet and Irish Laces.

Embroideries in white and colors in serviceable lengths and all the wanted widths from the very narrow edge to the 40-inch flouncing, in cambric and Swiss, suitable for many purposes.

SHOULD CAPITAL PUNISHMENT BE RESTORED IN STATE

soon will be spending more money for reformatories than all the parks and playgrounds cost."

"No Lynching at Lamar if Mob Had Thought Punishment Adequate"

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 7. —Porter Gilvin, warden of the Missouri Penitentiary, who is considered one of the most practical and experienced criminologists in Missouri, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he believes the failure to repeal, or at least to modify, the law which abolished capital punishment, is a serious mistake.

Gilvin has served as disciplinary officer of the prison for 20 years and, though a Democrat, was carried over through the Republican administration of Gov. Hadley because of his ability to handle prison problems.

Gilvin is not so vehement in his demand for the restoration of capital punishment, generally, to the statutes, as he is that the killing of peace officers, including prison officials, be punishable by the forfeiture of the life of the murderer.

He cited the killing last fall of Eli Jenkins, a guard at the penitentiary, who was stabbed to death and his body locked in the cell of three life-term convicts, who then escaped.

He also referred to the plot for a general escape, discovered by him a few weeks ago, in which several murderers, serving life terms, had collected two automatic revolvers, 100 rounds of ammunition and several knives, and planned to escape after killing three prison officials in their dash for freedom.

"Lifer" Has Everythnig to Gain.

"A life-term convict has everything to gain and nothing to lose," said Gilvin, "when he attempts to escape. Under the present law he can be punished no more for killing one or more officials than if he failed to perform his daily work.

"This condition makes it harder on the life-term convicts here. Prison officials naturally are forced to take as small a chance as possible in handling them.

"If the infliction of capital punishment generally must be discontinued, then rules should be suspended where the killing of peace officers is concerned.

"I understand in one of the States they have a law under which a man convicted of capital crime may be sentenced to death, but sent to prison pending good behavior. A plan of that kind might furnish the necessary safeguard."

Gilvin does not believe that exceptions in the law abolishing capital punishment would be "class legislation," and, therefore, unconstitutional. He cited the habitual criminal act as proof.

"It can send one man to prison for two years, and another for life for the same offense, if he has been found guilty of similar crimes in the past," he said.

Cause of Lamar Lynching.

Gilvin believes that the lynching of Jay Lynch at Lamar was due to the fact that the maximum punishment was life imprisonment.

"If the people of Lamar and Barton County had known that the man who killed their sheriff and the sheriff's son in cold blood, would be executed by the State, in all probability they would have been glad to permit the law to take its course The fact that the mob did not molest the prisoner nor his custodians until after his guilt had been determined is evidence that they lynched the murderer, not because they feared he might escape punishment, but rather because they were possessed of a firm conviction that the maximum punishment under the law was insufficient to atone for the character of the crime."

$200,000 FURNITURE STOCK

BOUGHT LAST NOVEMBER WHEN THE BOTTOM DROPPED OUT OF THE FURNITURE MARKET—IT'S WORTH $300,000 TODAY—NOW MARKED ACCORDING TO SENSATIONAL LOW PURCHASE PRICES

Just after the armistice was signed the furniture market went to pieces. Retailers everywhere wired to furniture manufacturers to cancel their orders and, as a consequence, prices dropped to rock bottom. Instead of canceling we placed the biggest orders of our entire career. We foresaw present conditions—that hundreds of thousands of returning soldiers, also civilians who had delayed because of war, would be married and go housekeeping, that they would need millions of dollars' worth of furniture causing, not only a scarcity, but tremendous advances in prices. In order to get enough materials, furniture manufacturers are paying topnotch prices and buying from every American and foreign source of supply. There will be no relief from these conditions for at least three years. We are giving the public full benefit of our foresight. Our entire stock is marked according to sensational low purchase prices. June brides and home beautifiers, you can't afford to spend one cent for furniture before seeing these rare bargains.

WILL MEASURE CHILDREN

Webster Groves Women to Carry on Work for Week.

A conference will be held in Webster Groves for one week, beginning tomorrow, for weighing and measuring children under 6 years of age. Any healthy child free from contagious disease is eligible. The tests are to be held in Webster school buildings.

The examination will include careful physical analysis of each child, in which the child will be weighed, measured and compared point by point with the normal child. Mothers will be given the records of their children.

The tests are conducted under the direction of the Department of Labor Children's Bureau. No charge is made to mothers and physicians and nurses of Webster Groves will be present to direct the work of a committee of women. Mrs. R. H. McMath, chairman of the Webster Groves Woman's Committee, has appointed Mrs. George chairman of the work.

CHAIN SELLING PLAN SUGGESTED FOR DRIVE

Telephone System Proposed to Reach Quota in Armenian Relief Campaign.

"The national campaign for relief in the Near East is to be closed before long, and unless St. Louis and other cities in its class get to work it will close $5,000,000 short of its goal," Malcolm Lockhart, organizer of the campaign here, declared at an inspirational luncheon for the workers at Hotel Jefferson. "If you fail, St. Louis will be everlastingly disgraced," he declared.

Lockhart suggested a telephone chain bond selling system. Under this plan 100 women must undertake to get $30 each. Each woman will pledge two friends to obtain an equal amount, and these will continue the chain. Lockhart predicted that the chain will bring in $100,000 in two days. The Red Cross has given $3,000,000 to the campaign, and turned over the entire Near East with the exception of a station in Jerusalem to the committee, the organizer said. Five dollars will preserve a life in the East for a month, said Lockhart.

The campaign is being carried on by means of the sale of bonds in denominations ranging from $1 to $1000. The bonds pledge the signers to spend the face amount for relief work. St. Louis has a quota of $300,000 to achieve by Wednesday.

A touching incident at the luncheon was the appearance of an Armenian girl about 5 years old in her native costume. She had been with the advertising truck, and was held up before the committee members by George E. Day of the Army Y. M. C. A. "Not one of you is willing she should perish," Day declared. "Four hundred thousand children of this splendid type have no home, no father and no mother. Unless we give they must perish."

Turks' Pledge Violated.

This challege was taken up by Miss Elizabeth Pashayan, native Armenian worker, who sounded the keynote of the session when she declared, "They shall not perish! Buy a bond to save a life!" Miss Pashayan told of Turkish deportations and massacres even in peace. The Young Turks pledged Armenia safety, she said, but this was violated soon after the revolution.

The inspirational speakers at the luncheon were former Senator Xenophon P. Wilfley and George S. Johns, editor of the editorial page of the Post-Dispatch. James W. MacIvor of Second Presbyterian Church presided.

"Four million Armenians, Jews and Serbs in the Near East have died of massacre and starvation," Wilfley said. "To save the rest we must work and work with spirit.

"Bolshevism is considered the greatest menace we now have to face," Wilfley continued. "There is no question that it is a menace and an immediate one. We must save the world from Bolshevism. It is conceded that the best way to fight the menace is with food—by fighting starvation. We are pledged to save Armenia from famine. It is the greatest philanthropic proposition in history."

Question of Humanity.

Johns declared that the question "is not one of race, nationality or religion, although the appeal is directed to us because the Armenians are Christians. The question is one of humanity," Johns said. "We would help starving Jews or starving pagans, why not starving Christians? It is the bond of humanity.

"We have spent millions to gain nothing except to establish justice and humanity. We have spent precious lives for this cause. Now the appeal is presented again in the name of humanity and justice. We cannot fail. We are going to rescue the Armenians. The whole proposition is that the people are starving."

Immediately before the close of the meeting Johns suggested that the Armenian child be made the captain of an army of children, to be recruited by means of the chain plan, who will pledge themselves to enlist their parents' aid and money to the campaign. "It is just a matter of starving children and no one could withstand an appeal made by a child," he said. "We are appealing to the spirit and the emotions. Who could refuse a child $5 if she asked for it in the name of starving childhood."

HUNGARIAN BOLSHEVISTS DRIVE AGED CARDINAL FROM PALACE

ESZTERGOM, Hungary, June 3, via Paris, June 6.—In this picturesque city of Hungary, the primate of the Roman Catholic Church, Cardinal John Csernoch, known as a kindly and charitable man, is homeless, suffering heavy oppression under Bolshevist rule. Cardinal Csernoch, 70 years old, always divided his income with the poor.

As the head of the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy in this country he was singled out to be an object lesson of how the new regime deals with such leaders.

When the Bolshevist Government seized the control of the territory in which this city is located, it ordered Cardinal Csernoch to leave his palace. He was forbidden to keep his horses and carriage. He was finally permitted to make his humble home in the humble dwelling of one of his country priests.

The Semi-Annual—the Most Important Event of the Year

EVERY woman is conversant with conditions which have made very difficult the securing of plentiful supplies of Silk Hosiery

REALIZING that in order to combat these conditions, it would be necessary for us to take time by the forelock, we made our preparations further in advance than ever. And as a result tomorrow's offerings are of the sort that will give added prestige to this great semi-annual Hosiery event. For instance:

3000 Pairs of Women's Full-fashioned Silk Hose, $1.15

All first qualities—regular $1.75, $2.00 and up to $3.00 grades.

THIS, indeed will prove a harvest for St. Louis women who have found it so difficult to buy the fine hosiery that they required, except at exorbitant prices. Imagine what splendid choosing. Of course, blacks and plenty of them, but also navys, browns and grays. Every pair made with double soles, toes and high spliced heels; $1.75, $2.00 and all the way up to $3.00 qualities in this great semi-annual sale event at, pair, $1.15.

Also at $1.15 Pair—600 pairs of White Silk Hose, seconds of regular $2.00 quality. All made full-fashioned, with double lisle soles, toes and high spliced heels, and lisle garter tops.

VILLA FIRING SQUAD ENDS MEXICAN FEUD

Bandit's Former Comrades Who Joined Carranza Are Executed, Fulfilling His Oath of Revenge.

By the Associated Press.

JUAREZ, Mexico, June 7.—When old Jose de la Luz Herrera and his two sons trudged out to the Parral cemetery before the Villa firing squad in the dawn of Easter morning, a Mexican feud more bloody than any of the Kentucky mountains came to a climax.

Francisco Madero's call to the mountain men of Chihuahua in the fall of 1910 brought Villa from his brigand rendezvous in the Sierra Madres, Crozco from the San Andres llanos, and the Herrera brothers from the copper mines of Parral. Together they fought the revolution of 1910-11 and together they marched into Mexico City in the triumphal entry. "Pancho," Maclovio and Luis all wore the tri-color of the revolutionary army.

When Madero was killed and the Constitutionalist revolution started, the Herreras and Villa again took up arms against the Huerta Federals. But the inevitable break between Carranza, the educated, and Villa, the bandit, occurred. All of Villa's old friends and followers remained with him, but the Herreras, father and five sons. They joined Carranza against Villa. A quarrel on the station platform at Jimenez, during which denunciations and dares were hurled at Villa by Maclovio Herrera, was said to have been the prime factor in breaking this long friendship.

Villa Swore Revenge.

Maclovio, the deaf, and Luis, the lame, joined Carranza as Generals of the line. Old Jose de la Luz (Joseph of the Light), the father, went back to Parral and became Mayor. Melchor moved to Juarez and became Mayor here. Villa led his hosts to defeat against Obregon, fighting under Carranza's banner. To his Golden Ones Villa swore an oath he would exterminate the entire Herrera family. Later Maclovio was killed by a concealed machine gun as he crossed the border to join Carranza's forces. The report said it was a case of mistaken identity.

Christmas week, 1917, Villa sprang a surprise attack on Torreon, commercial capital of the rich Laguna district. Luis Herrera was the Carranza commander. He was captured, tortured and mutilated, then hanged to a telegraph pole with a picture of Carranza suspended from the body.

Two years elapsed and Villa rode into Parral at the head of his troops on Easter morning, 1919. The Defensa Socialies, or Home Guards, had surrendered. Jose de la Luz Herrera, Malchor Herrera and Zeferiano Herrera were commanders in this organization. Villa disarmed and pardoned all but the three Herreras. The other officers interceded for them.

Denounces Villa as Traitor.

"No! This is a personal matter," Villa said.

Old man Herrera advanced, saluted and offered his hand. Villa refused it. Realizing his fate was sealed, the head of the Herrera house denounced Villa as "the greatest traitor and worst enemy Mexico had ever known."

"Take them out to the Camposanto," Villa ordered and, to the dead march of the drums they were led out and executed on Easter morning. All died bravely, without eye bandages and facing the firing squad squarely. This done, Villa announced that his oath had been fulfilled, his grudge satisfied and that the younger Herrera boy would be spared.

76 WAR SAVINGS SOCIETIES FORMED IN ST. LOUIS IN MAY

Number, Including 1406 Persons, Compares With Three Clubs Organized in April.

Seventy-six War Savings societies were formed in St. Louis in May, according to a report just completed by the War Savings Organization for the Eighth (St. Louis) Federal Reserve District. During April the Metropolitan Division organized but three societies in the city. The membership of the societies is 1406 persons for May, a marked growth over any previous month.

Postal authorities of St. Louis have co-operated in the Thrift campaign by distributing more than 600,000 pieces of Thrift and War Savings literature. Three pieces of this literature went into every home in the city. More than 2000 copies of the War Savings Pictorial Reviews have been posted in show windows.

The members of the Retail Merchants' Association are pushing the Thrift campaign by enclosing in their mail and packages sent out in the city timely thrift advertisements. Many industrial plants are enclosing thrift propaganda in their pay envelopes.

A well-organized Women's Division for the district is in force. Miss Catherine Cranmer is Missouri director, and Mrs. Charles A. Houts, St. Louis director for the women. Americanization thrift work for both men and women in St. Louis is under the direction of Mrs. Fannie Bonner Price.

Thrift study clubs are being started by Mrs. Houts throughout the city as well as women's war savings societies in many business houses and factories.

Recital by Mrs. Lee-Cunningham's Pupils.

Pupils of Mrs. Georgia Lee-Cunningham will be presented at two song recitals to be given at the Recital Hall, Musical Art Building, Boyle avenue and Olive streets, tomorrow and Thursday evenings at 8:15 o'clock. A large chorus will present portions of the "Stabat Mater" of Rossini. Mrs. David Kriegshaber will be the accompanist.

HOW U. S. MISSIONARY WAS TRIED IN KOREA

The Rev. E. M. Mowry, Convicted of Sheltering Agitators, Had No Attorney to Represent Him.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

TOKIO, May 5.—The Rev. E. M. Mowry of Mansfield, O., an American Presbyterian missionary, had no lawyer to represent him in the court of Pyeng Yang when he was convicted recently and sentenced to six months penal servitude for sheltering Korean agitators in the independence movement. The trial was held after one day's notice to the accused and neither he nor his friends, who were in court watching but taking no part in the case, were notified until after the trial that they could have asked for and obtained a postponement.

These facts are stated by the Rev. Samuel A. Moffett, who has charge of the American Presbyterian missionary at Pyeng Yang. The Rev. Mr. Moffett has called them to the attention of the Japanese authorities at Pyeng Yang and forwarded a statement of the facts to the American consul at Seoul.

Circumstances Surrounding Case.

Moffett attended the hearing before the district court and made a detailed report of the proceedings in which he stated that he called upon Mowry, then under arrest, on April 10. A detective informed Moffett that Mowry probably would be sent to Seoul, but on April 14 both Mowry and Moffett were notified that Mowry would be put on trial the next morning.

Moffett's transcription of the evidence shows that Mowry told the court that he was a teacher of the Union Christian College and principal of both the boys' and girls' grammar schools at Pyeng Yang, and that he had taught there since 1911. He said that he had admitted to his house five Korean students for two days in March after the beginning of the independence movement. One of these had been his secretary for six years and was so engaged until he was arrested by the Japanese.

The missionary had given him money for school expenses for five years. The others were pupils he had taught. Mowry told the court that he had heard that the Christians and students had held an independence meeting at the boys' grammar school, that he had nothing whatever to do with it but heard they had read a declaration of independence, raised the Korean flag and marched down the streets shouting "mansei" (long live Korea). The missionary declared that he had heard that the police were going to arrest the students, but that when the boys came to his home they did not tell him why they wanted to stay there, did not say they were in hiding from the Japanese and that he told them that he could not protect them if they were doing anything they should not do.

Questioned by Judge.

"Would you not think that in coming to the house of a Westerner there was something up?" asked the Judge through an interpreter.

"Koreans often slept at my house and I could only guess at it in view of the times," replied Mowry.

"Did you know that they secretly distributed announcements and that the police were hunting for them?" asked the Judge.

"I knew the police were trying to arrest such men," said Mowry, "but I did not know these boys had done it. I guessed that the police were hunting for them. They said nothing to me about fleeing from the police. I did not hide them as fugitives. I made no effort to conceal them and I told them I could not do so.

"If I had been informed that the police were trying to arrest them and had concealed them it would have been wrong; but I did not know that they were criminals. If anyone had come to arrest them and I had concealed them it would have been wrong. Concerning the independence movement, I had nothing whatever to do with it and kept free from it and, as an American, told them that I could have nothing to do with it and could give no advice."

Has Right of Appeal.

The procurator, in demanding a sentence of six months' imprisonment, and addressing Mowry before the Court, said, "on one side your taking employes and students who had no place to flee to was in a sense a manifestation of human kindness."

The wicker basket was then put on Mowry's head and face and he was led off by a policeman. Moffett visited the office of another procurator who admitted to him that Mowry was not notified of his trial until the day before it was held and that he was not asked whether he wanted a lawyer. Moffett complained that the trial was brought off so suddenly that Mowry's friends had no chance to engage a lawyer.

The procurator told him they could have obtained a postponement and Moffett replied that "we were given no such information," and that he had no opportunity to confer with Mowry about engaging a lawyer and that in the interview he had held with Mowry in jail he was strictly forbidden to talk with the prisoner about his case.

The procurator told Moffett that they had a right to appeal, but the friend of the convicted missionary pointed out that if the appeal were not successful, Mowry would have suffered by reason of the fact that he did not have a lawyer on his first trial.

DIRECTOR NAMED FOR CITY OPEN AIR OPERA

John McGhie to Conduct Performances—300 Singers Will Take Part.

John McGhie, one of the best known figures in light opera circles of America, has been engaged as musical director for the St. Louis Municipal Opera's summer season of six weeks in the Open-Air Theater, Forest Park, June 16 to July 26, under the auspices of the St. Louis Municipal Theater Association, of which Mayor Menry W. Kiel is president.

The operas will be presented by the largest cast ever assembled for operatic production. There will be more than 300 participants, including artists, chorus, ballet and orchestra. The stars are singers of national reputation. The principals will be supported by a chorus of 200 carefully selected voices and a large ballet.

McGhie has pronounced the Municipal Theater the "most marvelous open-air theater in the world."

The personnel of the stars engaged includes Blanche Duffield, prima donna who was soloist for two seasons with Sousa's Band, and Victor Herbert's concert singer for several years; Craig Campbell, leading tenor of the Society of American Singers. Carl Ganvoort, baritone, who was with the Boston Opera Company for several years; Caroline Andrews, light lyric soprano; Mildred Rogers, contralto, who was Aurelia in the Whitney Opera Company's presentation of "The Chocolate Soldier;" Frank Moulan, well known to St. Louisans as the leading comedian in the old Castle Square Opera Company; and more recently in local stock opera companies; William Danforth, high comedy artist, for many years with Frank Daniels in most of the latter's successes, and Charles Gallagher, basso, who was heard in St. Louis with the Scotti Opera Company.

Stella de Mette, St. Louis contralto, who was here in April with the San Carlo Opera Company, has been engaged to sing in "Bohemian Girl," "Fra Diavolo" and "Carmen."

Charles Jones, Satge Director.

The stage direction will be under Charles Jones, who started his career as stage director with the McCaul Opera Company, more than a quarter of a century ago. He made the original production of "El Capitan," and "The Black Huzzar," and staged "King Dodo" in which Raymond Hitchcock starred. He was with Henry W. Savage for a number of years. Jones was stage director for the Society of American Singers last season.

Ralph Nicholls, assistant stage director, was with Montgomery and Stone for years. In the past two seasons he has been stage director of 76 operas; season of 1917-18 in Washington, D. C., and season of 1918-19, 41 weeks, in Columbus, Ohio. He was two years assistant to Edward P. Temple.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra has been engaged for the season. This is one of the many evidences of the unity of all St. Louis interests in the undertaking.

At Popular Prices.

The operas which will be presented at popular prices of 25 cents to $1, will afford the public an opportunity of hearing the best singers and seeing a large and most artistic production. The operas are:

Week of June 16—"Robin Hood," comic opera in three acts; libretto by Harry B. Smith, music by Reginald de Koven.

Week of June 23—"Bohemian Girl," ballad opera in three acts; text by Alfred Bunn, music by Michael William Balfe.

Week of June 30—"El Capitan," comic opera in three acts; words by Charles Klein, music by John Philip Sousa.

Week of July 7—"Fra Diavolo," comic opera in three acts; libretto by Scribe; music by Daniel Francois Auber.

Week of July 14—"Mikado," comic opera in two acts; text by W. S. Gilbert; music by Sir Arthur Sullivan.

Week of July 21—"Carmen," grand opera in four acts; libretto by Meilhac and Halvey after novel by Prosper Merimee; music by Georges Bizet.

HEROES IN "BATTLE OF BUGS" PRAISED BY SURGEON GENERAL

Ireland Tells of Volunteers Who Submitted to Experiments With Disease-Bearing Cooties.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.— A company of soldiers who faced death in a "battle of the bugs" to save the American army in France from trench fever, was praised today by Surgeon-General Merritt W. Ireland, at the Jefferson Medical College ninety-fourth commencement.

"The unsung heroes," the Surgeon-General explained, "submitted themselves as volunteers for experiments with disease bearing cooties to determine the cause of trench fever. The men survived the experiments, results of which led to the eleborate delousing plants.

In a review of work in Porto Rico to eliminate the hookworm, the Surgeon-General said: "The death rate has fallen to one-half and the wealth of the island has increased tenfold."

R. O. T. C. 1918-19 Term Ended.

The Military Department of Washington University, known as the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, concluded the 1918-19 term Friday, to permit members of the senior class in the corps to devote their entire time to examinations for graduation next Thursday. Maj. Wallace M. Craigie, in charge of the department, and Capt. L. W. Lummis, his assistant, are expecting assignment of one or both to the Officers' Training Camp to be inaugurated June 21 at Camp Funston, and to which 19 members of the Washington University unit will be sent.

BLANK IN "THE GOD OF LOVE"

Jewish Character Actor Will Appear at Odeon Tuesday.

Leon Blank, Jewish character actor, will appear with his own company and production, "The God of Love," at the Odeon Tuesday evening. An excellent New York cast has been provided. Blank will appear as the Bachelor in the performance. Six months ago he appeared in St. Louis in the leading role of "The Drunkard."

"The God of Love" is from the pen of S. Steinberg and is staged by Blank. Miss Annie Lillian will take the leading woman's role. The performance is the third New York attraction arranged for St. Louis by Edwin A. Relkin of this city.

Greek Play at Washington U.

"The Threads of the Fates," a Greek play, interpretation of which is by pantomime and dancing, written by Miss Frances Broerman, a student, for the annual May day event by McMillan Hall girls attending Washington University, is to be produced tomorrow, the first performance starting at 5 and the other at 8 p. m. More than 100 girls take part, there being 11 dancing groups. Two dates in May were designated for production of the play, but rain prevented in each instance.

Washington U. Glee Club Officers.

The Glee Club of Washington University has elected Herbert Hausman president, James Carter vice president, and Knight Roy, secretary-treasurer. Wilson Bliss is now president of the Mandolin Club, and Harold Lange, secretary-treasurer. The business manager of the combined clubs is Walter Haase, with Al Welle, assistant.

ROSTER OF 356TH MEN WHO WON DECORATIONS FOR DEEDS OF HEROISM

The roster of recognized heroes in the 356th Infantry, a section of which paraded here yesterday, and the other sections of which passed through the city last evening, is an imposing list.

It includes four winners of the Congressional Medal of Honor—the highest decoration this Government can bestow—two of whom lost their lives in the acts for which they were posthumously honored; one Medaille Militaire—the highest French decoration; 18 winners of the American Distinguished Service Cross, five of whom made the supreme sacrifice achieving the distinction, four Knights of the Legion of Honor, and two winners of the Croix de Guerre.

Those who won the Congressional Medal and the official accounts of their deeds follow:

Sergt. M. Waldo Hatler, Company B, 356th Infantry. For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action near Pouilly, Nov. 8. While a member of a patrol sent to reconnoiter the banks of the Meuse River, when all means of crossing the river had been destroyed, Sergt. Hatler and another man volunteered to swim across, although the other bank was held in force by the enemy. His companion was seized with a cramp, caused by the cold water, and drowned, but Sergt. Hatler continued on, and, after securing the information desired, swam back again and made his report. Troy C. Hatler, father, Neosho, Mo.

Sergt. (then private first class) Harold I. Johnston, Company A, 356th Infantry. For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity, above and beyond the call of duty, in action with the enemy, near Pouilly, France, Nov. 9, 1918. When information was desired as to the enemy's position on the opposite side of the river Meuse, Private Johnston, with another soldier, volunteered without hesitation, and swam the river to reconnoiter the exact location of the enemy. He succeeded in reaching the opposite bank, despite the evident determination of the enemy to prevent a crossing. Having obtained his information, he again entered the water for his return. This was accomplished after a severe struggle, which so exhausted him that he had to be assisted from the water, after which he rendered his report of the exploit. Home address: Mrs. Belle Renshaw (mother), 1148 Speer boulevard, Denver, Colo.

Private David B. Barkeley, Company A, 356th Infantry (deceased). For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity, above and beyond the call of duty, in action with the enemy, near Pouilly, France, Nov. 9, 1918. When information was desired as to the enemy's position on the opposite side of the River Meuse, Private Barkeley, with another soldier, volunteered without hesitation and swam the river to reconnoiter the exact location. He succeeded in reaching the opposite bank, despite the evident determination of the enemy to prevent a crossing. Having obtained his information, he again entered the water for his return, but before his goal was reached, he was seized with cramps and drowned. Next of kin: Mrs. Antonio Barkeley (mother), 1121 East Quincy street, San Antonio, Tex.

Capt. Marcellus H. Chiles, 356th Infantry (deceased). For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity, above and beyond the call of duty, in action with the enemy, near Le Champy Bas, France, Nov. 3, 1918. When his battalion, of which he had just taken command, was halted by machine-gun fire from the front and left flank, Capt. Chiles picked up the rifle of a dead soldier, and, calling on his men to follow, led the advance across a stream waist deep, in the face of the machine-gun fire. Upon reaching the opposite bank, this gallant officer was seriously wounded in the abdomen by a sniper, but before permitting himself to be evacuated he made complete arrangements for turning over his command to the next senior officer, and under the inspiration of his fearless leadership, his battalion reached its objective. Capt. Chiles died shortly after reaching the hospital. Home address: John Horne Chiles, 2815 West Thirty-seventh street, Denver, Colo.

Winners of the D. S. C.

Those who received the Distinguished Service Cross, with their citations, follow:

First Lieutenant Ellert Heiken, 356th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action in the Argonne and St. Mihiel, France, drives, Sept. 23, Nov. 9-10, 1918. On the night of Sept. 23, though wounded in the shoulder at the beginning of the attack on Dommartin Wood, Lieut. Heiken continued until his mission was successfully accomplished. On the night of Nov. 9, with eight men, he was the first to cross the Meuse and patrol enemy lines. On the night of Nov. 10, with 20 men, he covered the crossing of his battalion until severely wounded. Home address, Mrs. Caroline Heiken (mother), 1010 Cedar street, Ottawa, Kan.

Maj. Henry W. Hobson, 356th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12, 1918. Within 10 minutes after the beginning of the advance at 5 a. m., Maj. Hobson was twice wounded, once in the shoulder by a machine-gun bullet and once by shrapnel in the leg. Being in command of the assault battalion and realizing the importance of its operations, he continued to accompany and direct his command throughout the day, notwithstanding his wounds, which caused him great pain and difficulty of movement. At halts he had to be assisted to lie down and get up by his Adjutant; nevertheless he remained on duty until the fighting of the day was over. Home address, Mrs. George McKenzie, care of A. D. Parker, 1736 Commercial Trust Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

Second Lieutenant Charles R. Hanger, Company I, 356th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Pouilly, France, Nov. 10-11, 1918. When three of the companies of his battalion had become lost in the dense fog, during the crossing of the Meuse, Lieut. Hanger made five trips through extremely heavy shell fire and guided them to the river crossings, thus enabling the battalion to fulfill its mission in the operation. Home address, J. W. Hanger (father), Laddonia, Mo.

First Sergeant Clyde H. Dewalt, Company K, 356th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Pouilly, France, Nov. 10-11, 1918. Sergt. Dewalt volunteered and led a patrol against enemy machine guns which were flanking his company. He captured two of the guns and returned with five prisoners, making possible the continuance of his company's advance. Home address, Solomon Dewalt (father), Danville, Pa.

Private John J. Dorgan, Company C, 356th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Beney, France, Sept. 23, 1918. Although wounded four times at the start of the engagement, Private Dorgan continued with the advance of his platoon. Under heavy fire, his comrades began to waver, and Private Dorgan immediately went to the assistance of the Sergeant and aided greatly in keeping the men under control. Home address: Miss Mary Dorgan (sister), Ada, Ok.

Private Ora Lee Butcher, M Company, 356th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action in the Bois de Mort Mare, near Flirey, France, Sept. 12, 1918. Private Butcher, on duty as an observer at battalion headquarters, twice volunteered to carry important messages from his battalion commander to company commanders. In so doing he passed through heavy barrages. Home address, Mrs. Bettie Butcher (mother), R. F. D. No. 2, Pattonsburg, Mo.

Private Clarence Loken, Company H, 356th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Beaufort, France, Nov. 4, 1918. Private Loken was engaged as a runner, and made several trips through heavy bombardment, from the front line to the support battalion. Even after his equipment had been riddled by shell fragments he continued, maintaining liaison between these two points. Home address, Thomas A. Loken (father), General Delivery, Tigerton, Wis.

First Lieutenant Harold W. Kenaston, 356th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Pouilly, France, Nov. 4-10, 1918. On Nov. 4 Lieut. Kenaston was severely gassed during a heavy shelling, but remained on duty. On Nov. 5, still suffering from the effects of the gas, he volunteered and went to a nearby town to assist in the work of supplying reserve rations for the command, working continuously for two days and two nights under terrific fire. During the night of Nov. 10-11 he guided an element to the pontoon crossing the Meuse and while returning he was rendered unconscious by a shell explosion. Gaining consciousness, he voluntarily started on a search for a part of his command which had been lost in the dense fog. Home address, Doris C. Kenaston, wife, 130 Lafayette avenue, Passaic, N. J.

Private Louis H. Loyd, Company F, 356th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Beaufort, France, Nov. 4, 1918. Despite the fact that severe wounds made it impossible for him to take along his automatic rifle, Private Loyd continued in the advance of the company. Again wounded, he refused evacuation, continuing with his comrades until the objective was reached. Home address: Howell N. Loyd, father, Annapolis, Mo.

Corp. Augustine Martinez, Company I, 356th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Pouilly, France, Nov. 10-11, 1918. Corp. Martinez accompanied Lieut. Murphy and three other soldiers in a flank attack on three heavy machine guns Fired on directly at 30 yards they charged the guns, met hand-to-hand resistance, but repulsed the enemy, capturing the guns. Corp. Martinez, followed the fleeing Germans until they were lost in the fog. Home address: Tiofio Martinez, father, Turley, N. M.

Second Lieutenant Oscar P. May, 356th Infantrly. For extraordinary heroism in action near Bois de Mort Mare, France, Sept. 12, 1918. Without assistance, Lieut. May very courageously attacked and captured a machine gun which threatened to wipe out his platoon. Home address: Mrs. Adelia May, wife, Williamstown, Kan.

First Lieutenant John H. Murphy, 356th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Pouilly, France, Nov. 10-11, 1918. Lieut. Murphy and four soldiers flanked a machine gun nest of three guns, only to be fired on directly at 30 yards. Charging the guns, they met hand to hand resistance, but repulsed the enemy, capturing the guns. Lieut. Murphy was wounded twice, and three of his men were killed. Home address: M. J. Murphy, father, Gordon Court Apartments, Detroit, Mich.

First Lieutenant Leon P. Shinn, 356th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Flirey, France, Sept. 12, 1918. Lieut. Shinn continued to lead his platoon until the third objective had been reached, after being wounded in the leg during the first 20 minutes of the advance. Home address, Mrs. L. P. Shinn, wife, 293 Hudson avenue, Newark, O.

Major Mark Hanna, 356th Infantry (deceased). For extraordinary heroism in action near Stenay, France, Nov. 6-11, 1918. Maj. Hanna displayed extreme courage on Nov. 6 by making a daring reconnaissance of the town of Pouilly, near Stenay. This town was held in strength by the enemy, with every indication of determination to prevent a crossing of the River Meuse at this point. He remained in this town over two hours, returning with information of great value. On the night of Nov. 10-11 he was in command of the second battalion of the 356th Infantry, and while waiting to cross the River Meuse Maj. Hanna's battalion was subject to terrific shell fire. During this period he walked up and down the line encouraging and steadying his men. Maj. Hanna was killed at the head of his command. Next of kin: Mrs. Corinne Esther Hanna (wife), 2954 East Twenty-eighth street, Kansas City, Mo.

Corp. John W. McAfee, Company D, 356th Infantry (deceased). For extraordinary heroism in action near Pouilly, France, Nov. 8, 1918. While a member of a patrol sent to reconnoiter the banks of the Meuse River, and when all means of crossing the river had been destroyed, Corp. McAfee, with another soldier, volunteered to swim across, though the other side was held in force by the enemy. Before reaching the opposite bank, Corp. McAfee was seized with a cramp, caused by the extremely low temperature of the water and was drowned. Next of kin: Mrs. Oliver P. McAfee (mother), Gallatin, Mo.

Private Clarence E. Lauber, Company I, 356th Infantry (deceased). For extraordinary heroism in action near Pouilly, France, Nov. 10-11, 1918. Private Lauber accompanied Lieut. Murphy and three other soldiers in a flank attack on three heavy machine guns. Fired on directly at 30 yards, they charged the guns and in the hand-to-hand fight which followed this soldier and two of his comrades were killed. Next of kin: Mrs. Elsie Porter (sister), Archbold, O.

Private Andrew W. Dillbeck, Company I, 156th Infantry (deceased). For extraordinary heroism in action near Pouilly, France, Nov. 10-11, 1918.

Private Dilbeck accompanied Lieut. Murphy and three other soldiers in a flank attack on three heavy machine guns. Fired on directly at 30 yards, they charged the guns, and in the hand-to-hand fight which followed this soldier and two of his comrades were killed. Next of kin: William J. Dilbeck, father, Grossville, Ala.

Private Benjamin T. Tubbs, Company I, 356th Infantry (deceased). For extraordinary heroism in action near Pouilly, France, Nov. 10-11, 1918. Private Tubbs accompanied Lieut. Murphy and three other soldiers in a flank attack on three heavy machine guns. Fired on directly at 30 yards, they charged the guns and in the hand-to-hand fight which followed this soldier and two of his comrades were killed. Next of kin: Homer H. Tubbs, father, Farmersville, La.

The French decorations were bestowed only last Wednesday, at Camp Upton, N. Y., and follow:

Knights of the Legion of Honor—Capt. Arthur S. Champeny, First Lieutenant Elbert G. Heiken of Ottawa, Kan.; First Lieutenant Charles R. Hanger of Ladonia, Mo., and Second Lieutenant Oscar P. May of Williamstown.

Military Medal—Sergt. Clyde H. Dewalt, Company K, Danville, Pa.

Croix de Guerre—Sergt. George G. Hollis, Company E, Reedley, Cal., and Corp. Augustin Martinez, Company I, Turley, N. M.

The citations, describing the performances of two of the recipients of the decorations, says:

Lieut. Charles Hanger, an exceptionally heroic officer, during the crossing of the Meuse, when three companies of his battalion were lost in a very dense wood, went through a violent artillery bombardment to guide them to the river crossing, thus enabling his battalion to fulfill the mission assigned to it."

"Lieut. May attacked and captured single-handed a machine gun which was menacing his platoon."

SEBORRHEA IS KILLING HAIR
Everyone knows that the men and women of America are losing their hair.
The prevalence of seborrhea (the dandruff disease) is appalling. But just as science proved that dandruff was due to bacilli, science now offers the remedy.
It is FAMO.
FAMO destroys the dandruff bacilli and stops the seborrhean excretion. It stops all itching of the scalp.
It penetrates the scalp and unless the hair roots are entirely dead, it encourages and stimulates the growth of new hair.
The ingredients of FAMO have never before been used in the treatment of the scalp. But they are well known to medical science.
Three years were spent in perfecting FAMO in one of the great pharmaceutical laboratories of Detroit.
FAMO makes the hair and scalp healthy. It nourishes the hair in a wonderful way and makes it lustrous and fluffy.
FAMO comes in two sizes—35 cents and a big bottle at $1. Your money back if you are not satisfied.
Seborrhea is the medical name for a morbidly increased flow from the sebaceous glands of the scalp. The seborrhean excretion forms in scales or flakes and is commonly known as dandruff.

Thought 3 Little Children Needed Mother's Care
"My stomach suffering was so severe that I could not have lasted much longer. I did not care so much for myself, but did not want to leave my three little children, who needed a mother's love and care. A cousin in California wrote me about Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and I took a course of it. I have since been entirely well." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. How amply nature provides. Even in corn silk is found medicine that properly used has proven a boon to mankind, suffering from kidney disorders.
When kidney and bladder trouble occurs there is usually inflammation and congestion and experience shows that the concentrated extract of ordinary corn silk, combined with other simple drugs, will quickly correct such conditions and restore the normal action of kidneys and bladder before more serious conditions arrive.
Corn silk extract is found in Balmwort Tablets, a modern and highly successful medicine that has become popularly used throughout the United States. Men and women everywhere now rely on Balmwort Tablets whenever any kidney or bladder trouble affects them.
Mr. John Shore, 1151 South A St., Fort Smith, Ark., writes:
"I have been taking your Balmwort Tablets for a very bad case of kidney trouble and am glad to say they have done me a great amount of good. I had to get up at night, but since taking them I can sleep peacefully all night and do not have any more trouble. Thanking you, etc."
A trial will convince. Ask any leading druggist for Balmwort Tablets. Price, $1.00.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Tobacco Habit Easily Conquered
A New Yorker of wide experience has written a book telling how the tobacco or snuff habit may be easily and completely banished in three days with delightful benefit. The author, Edward J. Woods, T C 27, Station F, New York City, will mail his book free on request.
The health improves wonderfully after the nicotine poison is out of the system. Calmness, tranquil sleep, clear eyes, normal appetite, good digestion, increased strength, strong memory and a general gain in efficiency are among the many benefits reported. Get rid of that nervous feeling; no more need of pipe, cigar, cigarette, snuff or chewing tobacco to pacify morbid desire.—ADV.

MEN FOUND GOD IN NO MAN'S LAND, SAYS GYPSY SMITH

to this action were reported, my promotion was announced by Gen. Plumer."

Capt. Smith's story of his most vivid fighting experience is:

"During the German drive in April, 1918, we were doing some open fighting. I happened to run around the corner of a ruined house, and came face to face with a German officer.

"He fired and grazed my ear. I fired and killed him. I took his helmet, and inside the cover was his name, 'Capt. P. Schmidt.' I doubt if his first name was Pat, but it was quite a coincidence. His regiment was the Fifth Bavarians, and I was in the Fifth Battalion, Northumberland Fusiliers. But he was dead and I was alive."

A new reason for admiring the work of the American army in France has been found by Capt. Smith.

Would Have Won Anyway.

"The American soldier didn't know the Hun as well as we British did," he says. "Therefore, he deserves all the more admiration for fighting the Hun so bravely.

"I am not one who believes that the war would have been lost if America hadn't come in. I believe the Allies would have won some time. But I am quite unable to say when it would have been, or how many of us would have been left alive.

"None of us British ever will forget that time, a few months before the armistice, when we were near the end of our terrain, and knew we could not yield much more ground? We made up our minds then that none of us would see England again. And then the news came that 2,000,000 Americans were in France. That was an exaggeration—the number was nearer 1,000,000 at that time, but before the story had stopped spreading through our lines, it had been boosted up to 20,000,000. That gave us courage. It was the turning point.

"We had a different cause for complaint later, from about Oct. 1 last to the armistice. Our men were getting so that they would almost refuse to fight, because the Huns were so badly beaten that there was no fight in them, and it was more liek rabbit-hunting than like warfare.

"On our part of the line, the Huns would run every time. We knew they were hungry, and we could even believe the complaint of the people of Vambrechy, France, who said the Germans had stolen their cats and eaten them. We found the body of a horse, with a great chunk of meat cut from its haunch, and were told that a hungry driver, in the retreat of the Huns, had abandoned his load, shot his horse, cut out the meat and ate it raw."

Born in Gypsy Tent.

Smith, who is not yet 26 years old, is unmarried. He speaks with a modified Scotch accent, like that often heard among Canadians of Scotch origin. He is of gypsy, or Romany descent, and was born in a gypsy tent and brought up among the nomadic folk on the English highways. He had but two winters' schooling. After he had made a profession of Christianity, he found it dificult to get along with the gypsy caravan, whose methods of livelihood he could not approve. He left the camp, but he returned later, as an evangelist, to convert his parents and his sisters.

The story of his early life resembles that of the older British evangelist, Gypsy Smith, whose name is Rodney Smith, and who is well known in St. Louis. The two men are not related.

Pat Smith, however, did not serve in the Salvation Army, as Rodney Smith did, but entered the Scotch Presbyterian Church, with which he still has an active connection.

He had been preaching four years when the war began, and was about to come to the United States. He turned back, enlisted as a private, and served for the first half of the war in the Scotch cavalry organization, which was transformed into infantry. For a time he was on recruting duty in England.

At the opening of the Somme drive, five-sixths of the battalion in which he served was lost. He was wounded twice, and underwent nine operations in his stay of 19 months in a hospital. A deep depression in his left arm, which is about three inches shorter than the right arm, and a similar mark on his thigh, are the marks of this experience.

After he returned to the front, he was commissioned as a Lieutenant, and he began to find opportunities to preach to the men. He was at no time a chaplain, but was a fighter throughout his stay at the front. Two weeks after the armistice, he relates, he won a silver cup in a cross-country run.

He intends to return to England for the fall and winter, and to come to the United States next spring. His addresses at Union Methodist Church today will be at the regular morning and night services, and at a meeting at 3 p. m., under the auspices of the Church Federation.

TOWER GROVE PARK CONTROVERSY REOPENED

Shaw's Garden Trustees Plan to Make City Pay Rental or Subdivide Strip About Park.

It became known yesterday that the Board of Trustees of the Missouri Botanical Garden (Shaw's Garden), of which Edwards Whitaker is president, has under consideration definite plans to take away as a part of Tower Grove Park the strip 200 feet wide surrounding the park, which has been a subject of controversy between the board and the city for more than 10 years.

The board is proposing to act under the will of the late Henry Shaw and a decision of the Missouri Supreme Court made more than a year ago, placing the title to the strip in the city, but holding that the title is in trust and that the city is obligated to lease the strip in residence lots for the building of villas contemplated in Shaw's deed.

For many years the strip has been used by the city without the payment of rental, as a part of Tower Grove Park, and parts of it have been equipped as athletic fields and for children's playgrounds.

City Will Resist Move.

Mayor Kiel told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the city would resist efforts of the trustees to force use of the ground for residences, and that there would be no change in its present use until the case was taken, if necessary, to the highest court.

Whitaker admitted that the trustees had decided upon measures by which the property would be made revenue-producing for Shaw's Garden, as Shaw had intended it should, but he said the plans were not yet in such shape as to make publicity desirable.

It is understood at the city hall, however, that the trustees have grown tired of ineffectual dealing with the city and have made a final demand that if the city does not pay an amount equal to a 4 per cent return on $800,000, which would be $32,000 annually, as rental for the property, steps will be taken to force the leasing of the property for residences.

After the Supreme Court decided the title to be in the city, the suit being one instituted by the trustees, who sought permission to sell the tract, there was some talk of the leasing of the ground by the city to individuals for the building of homes, but nothing ever came of the movement. It was said at the time that prospective home builders did not wish to build on leased ground, for which a lease for only 30 years could be made. It is understood the leases proposed now by the trustees will be for 30 years, with permission of renewal for 30 years, making in effect a 60-year lease.

City's Offer to Pay Rent Rejected.

A little more than a year ago, Mayor Kiel agreed to a plan to pay the trustees a rental of $12,000 a year for use of the tract for park purposes, but the offer was rejected.

Discussing the latest movement, the Mayor said:

"The Board of Estimate and Apportionment will take the matter up Tuesday, but there isn't a thing that I see can be done. A few years ago we could have paid $12,000 a year, and we offered that, but now we haven't anything to offer.

"However, the city is not going to permit the ground to be taken away from Tower Grove Park without a fight. They will have to mandamus us to make us lease that ground out, and they will have to carry the fight through all the courts if it necessary for us to go that far to protect the park.

"Tower Grove is a small park anyway, and to take 200 feet off of it all around would just about ruin it."

GENERAL OBSERVANCE OF FLAG DAY URGED

Chamber of Commerce Will Furnish Speakers for Celebrations Here Next Saturday.

Following the custom established last year of holding Flag Day celebrations in factories, wholesale houses, department stores, theaters and other centers of activity, the Chamber of Commerce, with the co-operation of the Manufacturers' Association and the Employers' Association, is urging a more general observance of the day this year than ever before, according to James R. Dunn, chairman of the Public Celebrations Committee.

The city-wide observance of Flag Day next Saturday is in charge of the Public Celebrations Committee, and every business concern in the city is urged to communicate promptly with Chairman Dunn in order that speakers and song leaders may be assigned.

The committee decided yesterday to follow the national plan of ceremonies urged by the Secretary of the Interior, which includes a brief program of singing and speaking, the taking of a pledge to the flag, and the recitation of the American Creed.

In urging a renewed interest in all matters pertaining to patriotism, Dunn said: "The inspiration of Old Glory is the strongest incentive to a living, pulsing spirit of patriotism. Loyalty to the Stars and Stripes is loyalty to the America for which it stands.

"With the cessation of war activities, there is some danger of a reaction to the apathy which is a nation's worst peril, hence more now than in the recent stirring years, we should 'rally round the flag' on its national day."

Firms wishing to hold celebrations can communicate with the committee at the Chamber of Commerce, telephone Main 4620 or Central, and arrangements will be made to provide speakers and singers.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

PART THREE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 8, 1919. PAGES 1—16.

From St. Louis to De Soto and Return Picturesque Tour, Made Easily in a Day

Cedar Groves at Cedar Hill—Good Swimming in Season Above Dam at Morse Mill—Ideal Spots for Basket Lunch Outings—Roads Good Greater Part of Way.

One of the most picturesque one-day tours for motorists out of St. Louis is that to De Soto, Mo., and return. By taking the Gravois road to Hillsboro, Mo., where it connects with Lemay Ferry road and returning to St. Louis by way of the latter road, a course is covered which loops through some of the most interesting of nature's beauty in St. Louis and Jefferson Counties. The total distance is approximately 110 miles. From Hillsboro the distance to De Soto on the Lemay Ferry road is approximately eight miles. Just out of De Soto the road has recently been resurfaced with rock screenings for more than a mile which had not yet been rolled the early part of this week. The balance of this stretch of road is in good order. In De Soto there are five ice cream parlors where refreshments may be had and a hotel and cafe where meals may be purchased. The population of De Soto is estimated at 6500. It is principally a railroad town, large shops of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain Railway being located there.

The Lemay Ferry road from Hillsboro to St. Louis is good for three miles north of Hillsboro, being of macadam construction and in good repair. For two to three miles further it is rough in places where the road is being widened and should be classed as fair. Between Antonia and Seckman there are several rough stretches where the road had not been recently dragged, but from Seckmann to St. Louis the road is good practically the entire way, being hardsurfaced the entire distance from there on.

From St. Louis the Gravois road is in good condition to Morse Mill, being hardsurfaced all the way and maintained more or less in good order. From Morse Mill for several miles the road is rough where the road has recently been resurfaced with crushed rock and not rolled. A track has been worn by wheels of vehicles across this stretch, which with slow driving would prevent damage to tires, but nevertheless is a difficult stretch for one car to pass another. After this the road is of turnpike construction to within two or three miles of Hillsboro, where a good rock road that is well surfaced starts again.

Butterflies Make First Appearance.

Butterflies it was noticed have made their appearance during the past week along the county highways and may be seen in all varieties common to the midwest.

The course and bits of information regarding scenery and points of interest are as follows:

Mileage.

0.0 Post-Dispatch building, Twelfth and Olive streets, west on Locust to Lindell cutoff, west to Grand avenue or King's highway, south to Gravois road and turn west.

10.2 AFTON. At top of grade. Good panoramic view of rolling woodland with cultivated patches intermingled. Truck gardens on both sides of road. Entrance to Grant's Farm on right. The log cabin in which Gen. Ulysses S. Grant once lived may be seen from the roadway.

Famous Indian Lived in Fenton.

In Fenton there are stores where soft drinks, groceries or light luncheons may be purchased. Fenton schoolhouse on right. The United States Tire Co. on billboards at various points along roads leading out of St. Louis has data of historical interest concerning that respective locality included in the advertisement. At Fenton one of these signs reads, "In 1769 Pontiac, Ottawa chieftain, lived in Fenton. After Red Jacket he was the greatest Indian the new world ever knew. Pontiac was a warrior beloved by the French." Wheat fields on righ. Corn fields in early cultivation on left. Road ascends in several places from which broad view of landscape may be had. Apple and peach orchards on left. A log hut chinked with mud on right. Wheat fields in full growth on right. Log cabin with old fashioned thatch roof on left. An old wagon of the type used in the sixties which does not appear to have been used in recent years may be seen under a shelter built on the front side of the log house. Wheat three feet high on both sides of the road. Dense thicket of varying shades of green on left and right.

24.3. HIGH RIDGE. — Straight through. Picnic grounds on left. Another sign of the United States Tire Co. at this point reads: "Twelve miles east of here is 'Grantwood,' where Gen. Ulysses S. Grant won his bride, Miss Julia Dent. When Col. F. T. Dent owned the farm it was called 'White Haven.' Long descending hill of more than a mile. At left a quaint log cabin home with large rock chimney at one end nestled in a grove of large oak and maple trees. Valley rich in wheat. At fork in road take right road along bluffs at House Springs to avoid fording a creek which road to right crosses on iron bridge. Turn to right after crossing bridge. At three corners, brick house on right, take road to left along bluffs. Road follows narrow valley winding over hilly country. Reach first of groves of cedar trees. Exceptional view of surrounding countryside at start of descend of long grade. A mobile rock crusher for use in road work, weather beaten and rusty, at right. Songs of birds throughout woods and meadowlands.

34.5. CEDAR HILL. — Straight through, crossing iron bridge over Big River. A dam and grain mill at this point. Saw plymouth rock hen along roadside mothering 16 young ducks. At Cedar Hill there is a hotel where arrangements can be made in advance by telephone for a chicken dinner during the week end. F. W. Detjen is the proprietor. Covered bridge across small creek. Water clear, running over gravel bed. Fragrant sent of over gravel bed. Fragrant scent of Church and schoolhouse on right.

Fishing Reported Good.

39.9. MORSE MILL.—Keep ahead along river, passing grain mill on left. Curve left across iron bridge over Big River. There is a hotel at Morse Mill, where accommodations overnight and country cooking may be had. Just across the iron bridge is an ideal camp site for the motorist who enjoys camping. There is a dam at the mill, which is several hundred yards downstream from the bridge. The backwater forms a small lake which attracts many picnickers, who enjoy swimming throughout the summer months. Fishing is reported good at this point. Road goes through woods for four or five miles. There are numerous places along the road where woods are unfenced that are ideal for parking a motor car while the occupants enjoy a basket lunch in the country atmosphere. Air fresh and fragrant through woods. Log house occupied on left. Wild roses in bloom along roadside. Midway between Morse Mill and Hillsboro where road turns to left after ascending long grade, a beautiful view extending more than 20 miles to the west is had. Peach and apple orchard on left. Cherries ripening at farm on right. Cedar trees line both sides of road.

47.7 HILLSBORO. Turn to right into Le May Ferry road, continuing through town turn to right following poles. Two hotels in town. Cattle grazing in greensward to right. Cotter creek winds along road affording inviting campsites here and there. Cross Joachim creek and railway tracks.

52.5 VICTORIA. 4-corners, turn right. Follow foot of hillside.

Pretty Scenery on Either Side.

7.8 HILLSBORO. Business center. Turn right following poles. Follow direct road over rolling country. Clover hay field on left. Log cabin home on right and another a short distance beyond on left. Long ascending hill more than mile length with equally long descent on other side. Pretty scenery extending for miles on both sides of roadway. Log cabin farmhouse freshly whitewashed situated along creek to left at foot of hill partly hidden from view by trees. Wheat fields of large acreage to right. Bluffs covered in dense foliage of varying shades of green on left.

19.1 ANTONIA. Follow main line of telephone poles on direct road over beautiful country. Another tire sign at this point reads, "At this place French settlers in 177? for protection against the Indians farmed in one big common field. The village owned a narrow which was used in common by all." Road follows along gravel bed of small stream fed by springs. Road very much up and down hill giving very good views from each crest. Rock creek bridge. Oats growing on left. Wheatfield on right.

Strawberry Pickers at Work.

22.4 SECKMAN. Straight ahead on direct road. Farmers haul produce and fruit to this town in horse drawn vehicles from surrounding vicinity and load it on motor trucks for delivery at the St. Louis market. Strawberries and cherries were being brought in in large quantities this week. Strawberry pickers at work in fields on left. Boys picking cherries from step-ladders and clinging onto limbs. Grapevines attractively laid out on right. Spire of church in Maxville appears over horizon at right.

26.7 MAXVILLE. Follow line of poles straight ahead, running down easy grade across Meramec river. Road machinery standing along the road at this town showed signs of recent use as evidenced by the improved condition of the road. There is an inn at Maxville which caters to the needs of motorists. Maxville is a relay depot also for farmers who ship their produce to market from there by motor express. A tire sign near Maxville says of that place, "Once a settlement for fur traders. Often these traders forsook civilized life and allied themselves in marriage with some one of the Indian tribes." The truck gardens start again north of Maxville on either side of the road.

31.0 LE MAY. Brick store on left. Keep straight ahead. Go down long grade under railway culvert and up long winding grade beyond, through Mehlville. Trolley car tracks start at 35.6 and continues across River des Peres bridge. Follow Ivory avenue to Michigan avenue, north to Loughborough avenue, which bounds Carondelet Park on the south. Turn to the left on Loughborough to Gravois avenue, then turn to the right to King's highway, then to the left to Lindell boulevard and east to the 45.0 Post-Dispatch building.

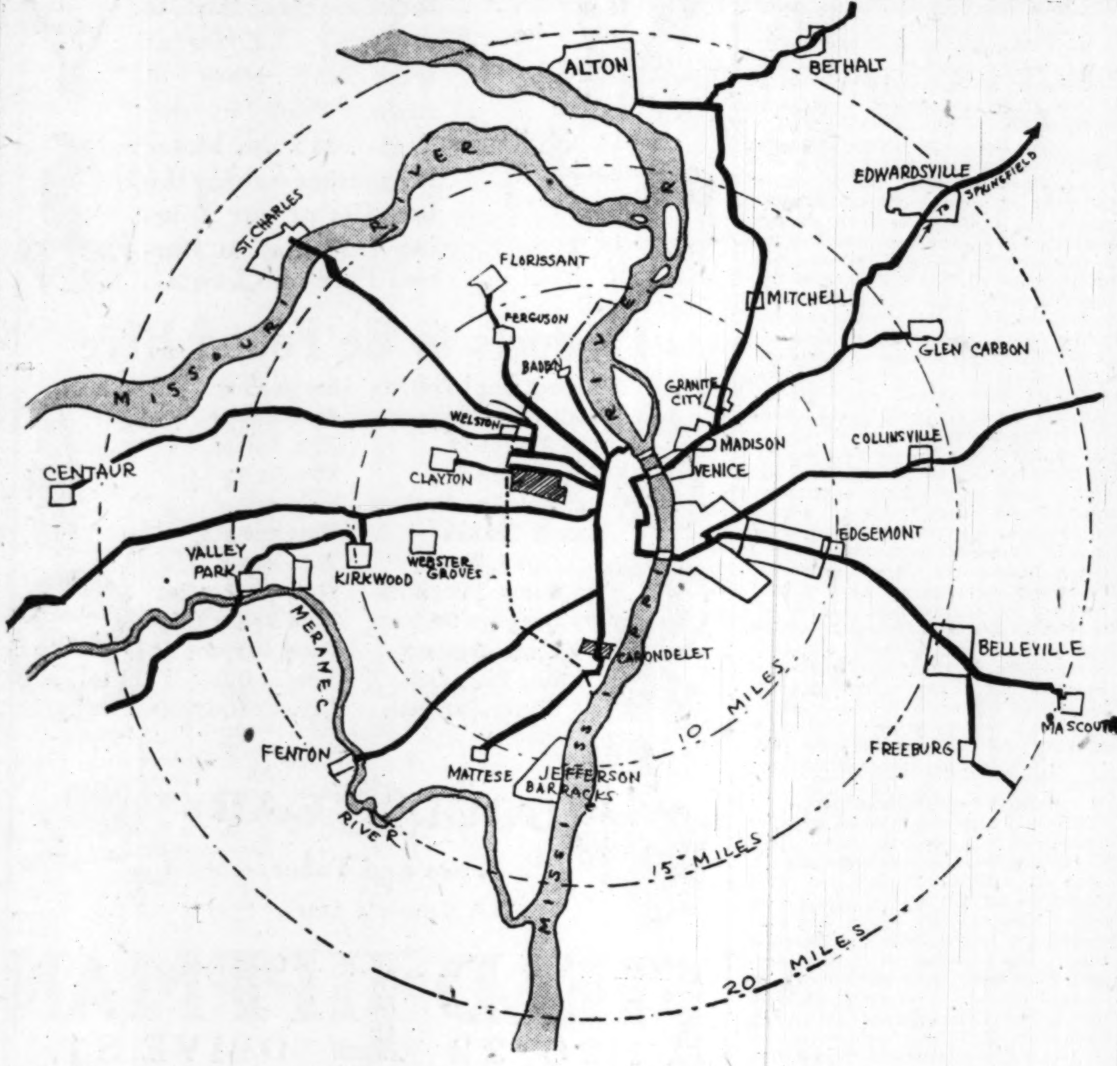
Post-Dispatch Tour Suggestions—No. 2.

TWENTY-EIGHT ROAD BODIES IN NEW GROUP

Twenty-eight interstate highway associations have so far qualified for membership in the Associated Highways of America. They represent about 50,000 miles of marked highways, reaching to nearly every part of the United States, to the borders of Canada and Mexico, and to the coasts. By the time Congress convenes the organization will be further strengthened, and it will back a bill for a Federal Highway Commission, probably one of the bills already introduced. The Associated Highways of America will present the combined system of marked highways of its membership as the plan for Congress to adopt for the Federal system to be built and maintained by the Government.

Rural Motor Express Routes In and Out of St. Louis Operating in 30-Mile Radius



There are at the present time in St. Louis 11 concerns engaged in the operation of motor truck express lines extending in all directions out of the city covering a radius of approximately 30 miles.

Thees concerns operate over regular routes and work on schedule the same as the railroads. Every type of truck on the market can be found among the equipment of these companies whose hauling varies from bulky to light parcels.

Every type of vehicle and body is to be found in this service, so that the great variety of materials being carried can be handled quickly and efficiently. Some of the concerns operate as many as 10 trucks.

A great advantage of motor truck transport has to do with the rehandling of goods. The cost of rehandling is becoming one of the greatest problems of all artnsportation experts.

Rehandling involves more labor, possible damage to goods, warehousing and delay. Within its sphere highway transport eliminates these exceptionable factors and lends its value to the general scheme of transportation.

The policy of shipping by truck has much to recommend it. When a shipment is enstructed to one of these truck transportation companies there is ample assurance of punctual delivery. These companies dispatch their trucks on regular schedules over carefully planned routes. In addition to prompt delivery they offer, extra precaution and special care in the handling of goods. On these trips loads are handled only two or, at the most, three times. The truck backs up to the shipping platform, the consignment is loaded, the truck starts off and on schedule time arrives at its destination. Upon arrival the truck goes directly to the receiving platform of the consignee and is there unloaded. Breakage, as a rule, is in direct ration to the number of times one's goods are handled, and thus breakage is reduced to a minimum. By way of contrast, ask your traffic man to outline the course of an ordinary freight shipment from plant to customer. Learn from him what delays are met with in the rehandling of such a shipment. Look into the complications of transfer and redistribution of belt road collections, freight houses and junction points. The ordinary freight shipment undergoes from six to eight handlings. The consequence is seen in delay, damage and labor expense.

The various companies in the rural motor express business in and out of St. Louis are as follows:

Progressive Transfer Co., 620 South Seventh street—To Belleville, Collinsville, Edwardsville, Granite City, Alton and intermediate points in Illinois.

To Florissant, St. Charles, Valley Park, Fenton and intermediate points in Missouri.

Schedule daily.

Brashear Truck Co., 421 South Theresa avenue.—To Belleville, Ill., and intermediate points.

To St. Charles, Mo., and intermediate points.

Schedule daily.

Wild Horse Creek Express, 2006 Market street.—To Centaur, Mo., and intermediate points.

Schedule—Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Gunn Transfer Co., 708 North Ninth street.—To Clayton, Wellston, Webster Groves, University City.

MOTORISTS MUST BARE PAST TO GET LICENSES

Questions Asked on Drug and Drink Items; Protest Made by A. A. A. Conusel.

Have you ever gone by any other name or alias?

Have you ever been convicted of any felony?

Have you ever been incarcerated in any asylum?

Do you use intoxicating liquors?

Are you addicted to the use of morphine, heroin, or any other narcotic drug?

Are you suffering from any nervous affection?

These are part of a tentative list of questions which applicants for automobile drivers' licenses in New York City will be called upon to answer under the new Knight-Wheelock law which was read to automobile men, representatives of the Police Department, and city magistrates the other day by Francis M. Hugo, Secretary of State.

The law gives the Secretary of State power to revoke or suspend licenses upon the recommendation of any Judge or city magistrate. It calls for the examination of all applicants for chauffeurs' and owner-operators' licenses. Under the old law only chauffeurs had to pass examinations.

The questionnaires for private owners who drive their own cars will be shorter than those chauffeurs will be required to fill out.

Charles T. Terry, counsel for the American Automobile Association, declared that the general effect of questions such as Secretary of State Hugo read would be to irritate the public.

"The thousands of citizens of this city who apply for licenses will not tolerate such questions," Terry declared. "It seems to me that you're simply asking a lot of personal questions which will be resented by honest people, and which will give the dishonest driver ample chance to lie. Because of that, the answers in many cases will be absolutely worthless, and won't help a bit to determine the applicant's fitness to drive a car."

Magistrate Cobb, who favored the questions, is said to have made the statement, "a definite proportion of persons operating motor cars in New York City ought to be driven off the highways. They range from ex-convicts to drug addicts."

What to Do With the Old Auto Tire

The Popular Science Monthly is conducting a contest on "What You Can Do with That Old Automobile Tire." Some of the suggestions offered in the June number are as follows:

An inflated inner tube with several hooks and lines attached is said to beat a "trot line" all hollow for results in fishing. The motion of the tube on the water causes the hooks to jiggle and attracts the fish attention to the bait. (A. Duffy.)

Four auto tires and two tackle blocks made a sling that can be used in lifting sick animals to their feet or supporting them while helpless. (D. E. Johnson.)

Shoes to protect cuts in tire casings can be made from sections of old tires. (C. A. Butterworth.)

Two old tires will make baby a novel walking chair by the use of spokes which will support the one tire above the other, the lower end of the spokes terminating in free moving casters. (R. Maginsky.)

Cut into uniform sizes and laced in pairs, sections of a pneumatic tire casing will make an efficient buffer for a launch or small boat. (W. E. Wylam.)

Cut to proper lengths, old tires make excellent tree guards. Sew the cut ends together with waxed thread. (C. L. Meller.)

For basket ball practice the retired tire makes an improvised basket. The supports should be about a foot long. (R. Maginsky.)

A tire and some wire screening make an efficient ash sifter. (R. M.)

Split open half a tire, hang it under the old grindstone under the stone. Fill it with water and you have an automatic stone-wetter that won't rust. (Whitney Asbridge.)

TIRE DON'TS

Don't run your cars with the wheels out of alignment. Wheels that "don't track" are gluttons for rubber.

Don't let your inflation get below the point recommended by the tire dealer. Under-inflation is keeping thousands of tire builders working overtime.

Don't overinflate. If you like the sensation of solid tires, buy a wagon.

Don't ignore small cuts. A patch in time saves dollars.

Don't buy tires smaller than recommended by the manufacturer of a car of the weight of the one you own. It isn't economy.

Don't forget to remove and reverse your inner tubes every three months. They appreciate a change and will pay for it.

Don't blame the tire if it "blows" after standing idle in a warm garage all winter. Tires don't thrive on a hibernation diet of heat, oil and grease.

St. Louis Motor Expedition Ready for Start Tomorrow on Its 375-Mile Tour

Airplane to Distribute Literature in Advance of Caravans—Participants Advised to Take Rubber Boots Along.

The course to be followed by the St. Louis Truck Expedition and schedule of stops along the route of the 375-mile trip is as follows:

Monday, June 9.

St. Louis to St. Charles—No stop.
Wentzville—Dinner from 12 to 1 p. m.
Troy—Stop, 2:30 to 3 p. m.
Rockyford—Toll gate.
Calumet—Toll gate.
Louisiana—6 p. m., supper and breakfast. Camp in City Park.

Tuesday, June 10.

Hanibal—12 noon. Park on Levee. Depart at 4 p. m.
Quincy—Arrive 6 p. m. Supper and breakfast.

Wednesday, June 11.

Camp Point—Short stop.
Clayton—Arrive noon for dinner.
Mt. Sterling—Short stop:
Rushville — Arrive 2 p. m. Depart at 4 p. m.
Beardstown—Arrive 6 p. m. Supper and breakfast.

Thursday, June 11.

Virginia—Arrive 8 a. m. Depart at 9 a. m.
Jacksonville — Arrive noon for dinner. Leave at 1 p. m.
White Hall—Short stop.
Jerseyville — Stop. Supper and breakfast.

Friday, June 12.

Alton—Short stop.

St. Louis motor truck men who are to take part in the 375-mile demonstration run through Northern Missouri and Western Illinois starting at 6 a. m. tomorrow morning have about completed their arrangements and are now hoping for good weather.

There will be 52 motor trucks of various designs and 10 touring cars, it was announced Friday in charge of Frank Amrine, chairman of the Executive Committee of the St. Louis Truck Expedition. All trucks that are to take part in the expedition will assemble at 1 o'clock this afternoon on the circus lot, Sarah and Pine streets, from which place the caravan will leave tomorrow morning.

Amrine said lots would be drawn from a hat to determine the position of the trucks in the train.

An airplane of the Scudder Aviation Training and Transportation Co., of Wabash, Ind., Amrine said would fly ahead of the caravan after it left St. Louis, dropping literature announcing the arrival of the truck train and the purpose of its mission.

Purpose of the Tour.

The purpose of the truck tour as laid down in the literature to be distributed is to show the people of Missouri and Illinois that the motor truck is a practical, useful, convenient and economical vehicle for the farmer's use and the use of the merchant in the smaller town, that it will go and come and carry full loads on rural roads as well as city pavements.

The carvan will not travel at night, the schedule having been arranged to provide for over-night accommodations though many of the entrants have announced their intention of taking individual camping outfits and cots and living outdoors for the week, sleeping on the floor of their truck. A schedule is being arranged so that the airplane will be enabled to spend each night with the caravan.

During the stopovers along the route motion pictures showing the benefit of good roads to the rural motorist and news pictures of endurance runs, etc. A speakers' committee composed of dealers represented in the expedition will give short talks on the possibilities of the motor truck in small communities as well as larger cities.

The entrants are as follows:

Traffic Truck Corp., Traffic Truck.
Federal Truck Co., Federal Truck.
Welling Motor Co., All-American Truck.
Auto Sales Co., The Autocar Truck.
B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., Pierce-Arrow Truck.
Weber Imp. and Auto Co., Maxwell Truck.
F. C. Meyer Motor Co., Republic Truck.
Southwest Nash Motor Co., Nash Truck.
Master Truck Agency, Master Truck.
De Luxe Automobile Co., Oldsmobile Truck.
International Harvester Co., I. H. C. Truck.
General Motors Sales Co., G. M. C. Truck.
Bethlehem Motor Sales Co., Bethlehem Truck.
Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., Packard Truck.
Packard Motor Car Co., Packard.
Scudder Motor Truck Co., Service Truck.
Dorris Motor Car Co., Dorris Truck.
Rottersman Auto and Truck Co., Wheat Tractor.
Midwest Motor Co., Clydesdale Truck.
Aldrich-Stephens Motor Co., Dearborn Truck.
Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., White Truck.
Newell Motor Car Co., Paige Truck.

The participants have been advised to provide themselves with a raincoat, blanket, rubber boots, money for toll gate, etc., in a letter announcing that police protection will be had tonight while the trucks are parked at Sarah and Pine streets.

Officers of the expedition who will be in charge are Robert E. Lee, trip commander; Preston W. Duffy, train master in charge of movement of train and drivers. He will be assisted by three lieutenants, Lee said.

Practical Paragraphs for the Motorist.

The Dry Cells.

The simplest dampness of the pasteboard covers of dry cells will more or less short circuit them and run down the amperage. Some prudent car owners make cases of sections of old inner tubes and cover the dry cells with these, thereby protecting them from dampness.

Oil for Bronze Bearings.

Never forget that cooling with water a bronze bearing that has been running hot is the last thing to do. The best thing to do is to wait for the bearing to cool in the ordinary course of events, but if you are in too much of a hurry for this, cool it with oil instead of water.

Sticking Valve Caps.

Occasionally a valve cap will stick and defy all ordinary efforts to loosen it. When this occurs, run the engine for a little while until the cap is heated and then pour a little water in the recess of the cap. This causes a sudden cooling which makes the metal contract, permitting the cap to be easily unscrewed.

Pressure Feed.

On cars that have pressure feed systems, operated by means of the exhaust gas, the car owner should make a periodic examination of the feed strainers and other cleaners through which the gas passed on its way back to the tank. If a car is in continual use or is using excessive amounts of oil and gasoline the dirt accumulated in the strainers will naturally be heavier and the inspection should be made more often.

Tightening Radiator Cap.

Many car owners have trouble with leakage at the radiator cap. The reason for this is that the velocity of the water circulation exceeds the capacity of the radiator or there may be some condition in the cooling system whereby boiling takes place faster than the overflow will take it off. To cure the trouble make a gasket of red fiber 1-16 of an inch thick and place it over the filter cap. This serves to prevent the cap from working loose and also keeps the water from leaking out to stain the radiator with blotches of rust.

Cleaning Plugs.

Very often in cleaning spark plugs by hand the point of the plug is broken. A good way to avoid this is to stick the plug in the ground, upside down, fill it with gasoline and touch a match to it. After the gasoline has burned out the plug will be found entirely clean of soot.

Sticking Screws.

In dealing with a small screw that refuses to yield to the blandishments of a screwdriver, try holding a hot soldering iron against the head. This will often do the trick by loosing the rust between the metal surfaces. Heating a screw head as mentioned and then soaking it with kerosene will bring out practically any screw, no matter how tightly it may have been wedged in its place.

Questions and Answers.

Q. Kindly advise me what you know about the roads to Lebanon, Mo., best route, condition of the roads, etc.—Walter J. Wolf, St. Louis.

A. The Ozark Trails route is the best from St. Louis to Lebanon. The route is as follows: St. Louis to Union, Leslie, Owensville, Belle, Vienna, Dixon, Crocker, Richland, Stoutland and Lebanon. The total distance is 201.3 miles. From St. Louis to Union the road is good, there being but a few rough stretches between Grays Summit and Union. From Union to Vienna the road is more or less unimproved and can only be classed as fair. From Vienna to Lebanon the road is reported in need of repair. Culverts are reported out in several places. The road, while generally up and down hill between these two points, crosses a number of flat mud lanes.

TOWER GROVE PARK CONTROVERSY REOPENED

Shaw's Garden Trustees Plan to Make City Pay Rental or Subdivide Strip About Park.

It became known yesterday that the Board of Trustees of the Missouri Botanical Garden (Shaw's Garden), of which Edwards Whitaker is president, has under consideration definite plans to take away as a part of Tower Grove Park the strip 200 feet wide surrounding the park, which has been a subject of controversy between the board and the city for more than 10 years.

The board is proposing to act under the will of the late Henry Shaw and a decision of the Missouri Supreme Court made more than a year ago, placing the title to the strip in the city, but holding that the title is in trust and that the city is obligated to lease the strip in residence lots for the building of villas contemplated in Shaw's deed.

For many years the strip has been used by the city without the payment of rental, as a part of Tower Grove Park, and parts of it have been equipped as athletic fields and for children's playgrounds.

City Will Resist Move.

Mayor Kiel told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the city would resist efforts of the trustees to force use of the ground for residences, and that there would be no change in its present use until the case was taken, if necessary, to the highest court.

Whitaker admitted that the trustees had decided upon measures by which the property would be made revenue-producing for Shaw's Garden, as Shaw had intended it should, but he said the plans were not yet in such shape as to make publicity desirable.

It is understood at the city hall, however, that the trustees have grown tired of ineffectual dealing with the city and have made a final demand that if the city does not pay an amount equal to a 4 per cent return on $800,000, which would be $32,000 annually, as rental for the property, steps will be taken to force the leasing of the property for residences.

After the Supreme Court decided the title to be in the city, the suit being one instituted by the trustees, who sought permission to sell the tract, there was some talk of the leasing of the ground by the city to individuals for the building of homes, but nothing ever came of the movement. It was said at the time that prospective home builders did not wish to build on leased ground, for which a lease for only 30 years could be made. It is understood the leases proposed now by the trustees will be for 30 years, with permission of renewal for 30 years, making in effect a 60-year lease.

City's Offer to Pay Rent Rejected.

A little more than a year ago, Mayor Kiel agreed to a plan to pay the trustees a rental of $12,000 a year for use of the tract for park purposes, but the offer was rejected.

Discussing the latest movement, the Mayor said:

"The Board of Estimate and Apportionment will take the matter up Tuesday, but there isn't a thing that I see can be done. A few years ago we could have paid $12,000 a year, and we offered that, but now we haven't anything to offer.

"However, the city is not going to permit the ground to be taken away from Tower Grove Park without a fight. They will have to mandamus us to make us lease that ground out, and they will have to carry the fight through all the courts if it necessary for us to go that far to protect the park.

"Tower Grove is a small park anyway, and to take 200 feet off of it all around would just about ruin it."

GENERAL OBSERVANCE OF FLAG DAY URGED

Chamber of Commerce Will Furnish Speakers for Celebrations Here Next Saturday.

Following the custom established last year of holding Flag Day celebrations in factories, wholesale houses, department stores, theaters and other centers of activity, the Chamber of Commerce, with the co-operation of the Manufacturers' Association and the Employers' Association, is urging a more general observance of the day this year than ever before, according to James R. Dunn, chairman of the Public Celebrations Committee.

The city-wide observance of Flag Day next Saturday is in charge of the Public Celebrations Committee, and every business concern in the city is urged to communicate promptly with Chairman Dunn in order that speakers and song leaders may be assigned.

The committee decided yesterday to follow the national plan of ceremonies urged by the Secretary of the Interior, which includes a brief program of singing and speaking, the taking of a pledge to the flag, and the recitation of the American Creed.

In urging a renewed interest in all matters pertaining to patriotism, Dunn said: "The inspiration of Old Glory is the strongest incentive to a living, pulsing spirit of patriotism. Loyalty to the Stars and Stripes is loyalty to the America for which it stands.

"With the cessation of war activities, there is some danger of a reaction to the apathy which is a nation's worst peril, hence more now than in the recent stirring years, we should 'rally round the flag' on its national day."

Firms wishing to hold celebrations can communicate with the committee at the Chamber of Commerce, telephone Main 4620 or Central, and arrangements will be made to provide speakers and singers.

JEWISH ENTERTAINMENT TODAY

St. Louis Young Judaea Will Have Program at Liberty Theater.

The St. Louis Young Judaea, a branch of the national organization, will give a free Shovouth entertainment at 10 a. m. today at the Fox Liberty Theater, Delmar avenue, near Grand avenue. In addition to musical and literary numbers, motion pictures will be shown.

The purpose of Young Judaea is to further the development of the Jewish youth along mental, moral and physical lines; to advance the cause of Zionism, and to arouse enthusiasm for the study of Jewish history, literature and language.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH
AUTOMOBILE NEWS

PART THREE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 8, 1919. PAGES 1—16.

From St. Louis to De Soto and Return Picturesque Tour, Made Easily in a Day

Cedar Groves at Cedar Hill—Good Swimming in Season Above Dam at Morse Mill—Ideal Spots for Basket Lunch Outings—Roads Good Greater Part of Way.

One of the most picturesque one-day tours for motorists out of St. Louis is that to De Soto, Mo., and return. By taking the Gravois road to Hillsboro, Mo., where it connects with Lemay Ferry road and returning to St. Louis by way of the latter road, a course is covered which loops through some of the most interesting of nature's beauty in St. Louis and Jefferson Counties. The total distance is approximately 110 miles. From Hillsboro the distance to De Soto on the Lemay Ferry road is approximately eight miles. Just out of De Soto the road has recently been resurfaced with rock screenings for more than a mile which had not yet been rolled the early part of this week. The balance of this stretch of road is in good order. In De Soto there are five ice cream parlors where refreshments may be had and a hotel and cafe where meals may be purchased. The population of De Soto is estimated at 6500. It is principally a railroad town, large shops of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain Railway being located there.

The Lemay Ferry road from Hillsboro to St. Louis is good for three miles north of Hillsboro, being of macadam construction and in good repair. For two to three miles further it is rough in places where the road is being widened and should be classed as fair. Between Antonia and Seckman there are several rough stretches where the road had not been recently dragged, but from Seckmann to St. Louis the road is good practically the entire way, being hardsurfaced the entire distance from there on.

From St. Louis the Gravois road is in good condition to Morse Mill, being hardsurfaced all the way and maintained more or less in good order. From Morse Mill for several miles the road is rough where the road has recently been resurfaced with crushed rock and not rolled. A track has been worn by wheels of vehicles across this stretch, which with slow driving would prevent damage to tires, but nevertheless is a difficult stretch for one car to pass another. After this the road is of turnpike construction to within two or three miles of Hillsboro, where a good rock road that is well surfaced starts again.

Butterflies Make First Appearance.

Butterflies it was noticed have made their appearance during the past week along the county highways and may be seen in all varieties common to the midwest.

The course and bits of information regarding scenery and points of interest are as follows:

Mileage.

0.0 Post-Dispatch building, Twelfth and Olive streets, west on Locust to Lindell cutoff, west to Grand avenue or King's highway, south to Gravois road and turn west.

10.2 AFTON. At top of grade. Good panoramic view of rolling woodland with cultivated patches intermingled. Truck gardens on both sides of road. Entrance to Grant's Farm on right. The log cabin in which Gen. Ulysses S. Grant once lived may be seen from the roadway.

Famous Indian Lived in Fenton.

In Fenton there are stores where soft drinks, groceries or light luncheons may be purchased. Fenton schoolhouse on right. The United States Tire Co. on billboards at various points along roads leading out of St. Louis has data of historical interest concerning that respective locality included in the advertisement. At Fenton one of these signs reads, "In 1769 Pontiac, Ottawa chieftain, lived in Fenton. After Red Jacket he was the greatest Indian the new world ever knew. Pontiac was a warrior beloved by the French." Wheat fields on righ. Corn fields in early cultivation on left. Road ascends in several places from which broad view of landscape may be had. Apple and peach orchards on left. A log hut chinked with mud on right. Wheat fields in full growth on right. Log cabin with old fashioned thatch roof on left. An old wagon of the type used in the sixties which does not appear to have been used in recent years may be seen under a shelter built on the front side of the log house. Wheat three feet high on both sides of the road. Dense thicket of varying shades of green on left and right.

24.3. HIGH RIDGE. — Straight through. Picnic grounds on left. Another sign of the United States Tire Co. at this point reads: "Twelve miles east of here is 'Grantwood,' where Gen. Ulysses S. Grant won his bride, Miss Julia Dent. When Col. F. T. Dent owned the farm it was called 'White Haven.' Long descending hill of more than a mile. At left a quaint log cabin home with large rock chimney at one end nestled in a grove of large oak and maple trees. Valley rich in wheat. At fork in road take right road along bluffs at House Springs to avoid fording a creek which road to right crosses on iron bridge. Turn to right after crossing bridge. At three corners, brick house on right, take road to left along bluffs. Road follows narrow valley winding over hilly country. Reach first of groves of cedar trees. Exceptional view of surrounding countryside at start of descend of long grade. A mobile rock crusher for use in road work, weather beaten and rusty, at right. Songs of birds throughout woods and meadowlands.

34.5. CEDAR HILL. — Straight through, crossing iron bridge over Big River. A dam and grain mill at this point. Saw plymouth rock hen along roadside mothering 16 young ducks. At Cedar Hill there is a hotel where arrangements can be made in advance by telephone for a chicken dinner during the week end. F. W. Detjen is the proprietor. Covered bridge across small creek. Water clear, running over gravel bed. Fragrant sent of over gravel bed. Fragrant scent of Church and schoolhouse on right.

Fishing Reported Good.

39.9. MORSE MILL.—Keep ahead along river, passing grain mill on left. Curve left across iron bridge over Big River. There is a hotel at Morse Mill, where accommodations overnight and country cooking may be had. Just across the iron bridge is an ideal camp site for the motorist who enjoys camping. There is a dam at the mill, which is several hundred yards downstream from the bridge. The backwater forms a small lake which attracts many picnickers, who enjoy swimming throughout the summer months. Fishing is reported good at this point. Road goes through woods for four or five miles. There are numerous places along the road where woods are unfenced that are ideal for parking a motor car while the occupants enjoy a basket lunch in the country atmosphere. Air fresh and fragrant through woods. Log house occupied on left. Wild roses in bloom along roadside. Midway between Morse Mill and Hillsboro where road turns to left after ascending long grade, a beautiful view extending more than 20 miles to the west is had. Peach and apple orchard on left. Cherries ripening at farm on right. Cedar trees line both sides of road.

47.7 HILLSBORO. Turn to right into Le May Ferry road, continuing through town turn to right following poles. Two hotels in town. Cattle grazing in greensward to right. Cotter creek winds along road affording inviting campsites here and there. Cross Joachim creek and railway tracks.

52.5 VICTORIA. 4-corners, turn right. Follow foot of hillside.

55.9 DE SOTO. Railway station on left. Several garages where supplies can be had. Return trip.

Pretty Scenery on Either Side.

7.8 HILLSBORO. Business center. Turn right following poles. Follow direct road over rolling country. Clover hay field on left. Log cabin home on right and another a short distance beyond on left. Long ascending hill more than mile length with equally long descent on other side. Pretty scenery extending for miles on both sides of roadway. Log cabin farmhouse freshly whitewashed situated along creek to left at foot of hill partly hidden from view by trees. Wheat fields of large acreage to right. Bluffs covered in dense foliage of varying shades of green on left.

19.1 ANTONIA. Follow main line of telephone poles on direct road over beautiful country. Another tire sign at this point reads, "At this place French settlers in 177? for protection against the Indians farmed in one big common field. The village owned a narrow which was used in common by all." Road follows along gravel bed of small stream fed by springs. Road very much up and down hill giving very good views from each crest. Rock creek bridge. Oats growing on left. Wheatfield on right.

Strawberry Pickers at Work.

22.4 SECKMAN. Straight ahead on direct road. Farmers haul produce and fruit to this town in horse drawn vehicles from surrounding vicinity and load it on motor trucks for delivery at the St. Louis market. Strawberries and cherries were being brought in in large quantities this week. Strawberry pickers at work in fields on left. Boys picking cherries from step-ladders and clinging onto limbs. Grapevines attractively laid out on right. Spire of church in Maxville appears over horizon at right.

26.7 MAXVILLE. Follow line of poles straight ahead, running down easy grade across Meramec river. Road machinery standing along the road at this town showed signs of recent use as evidenced by the improved condition of the road. There is an inn at Maxville which caters to the needs of motorists. Maxville is a relay depot also for farmers who ship their produce to market from there by motor express. A tire sign near Maxville says of that place, "Once a settlement for fur traders. Often these traders forsook civilized life and allied themselves in marriage with some one of the Indian tribes." The truck gardens start again north of Maxville on either side of the road.

31.0 LE MAY. Brick store on left. Keep straight ahead. Go down long grade under railway culvert and up long winding grade beyond, through Mehlville. Trolley car tracks start at 35.6 and continues across River des Peres bridge. Follow Ivory avenue to Michigan avenue, north to Loughborough avenue, which bounds Carondelet Park on the south. Turn to the left on Loughborough to Gravois avenue, then turn to the right to King's highway, then to the left to Lindell boulevard and east to the 45.0 Post-Dispatch building.

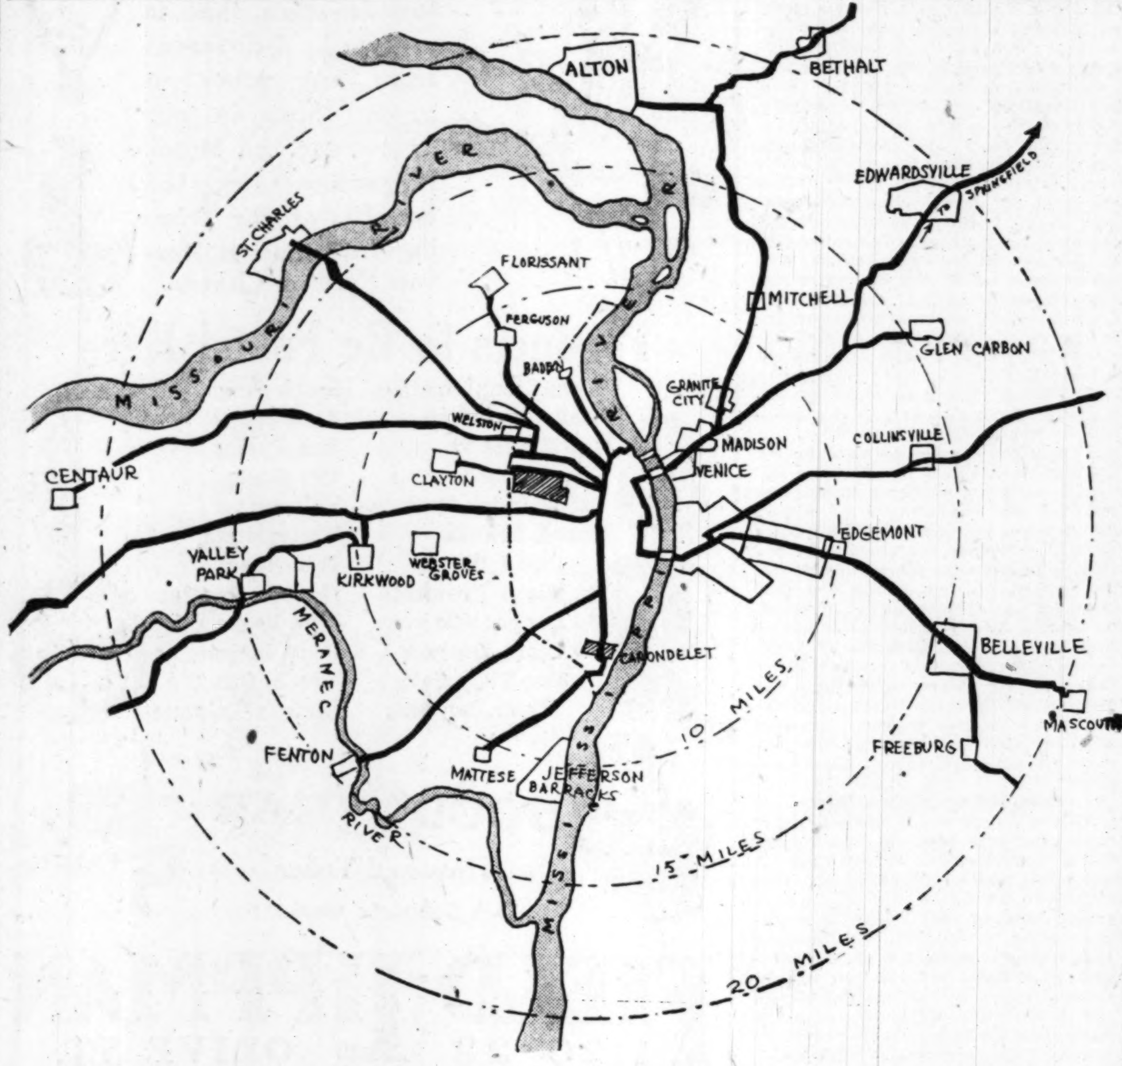
Post-Dispatch Tour Suggestions—No. 2.

TWENTY-EIGHT ROAD BODIES IN NEW GROUP

Twenty-eight interstate highway associations have so far qualified for membership in the Associated Highways of America. They represent about 50,000 miles of marked highways, reaching to nearly every part of the United States, to the borders of Canada and Mexico, and to the coasts. By the time Congress convenes the organization will be further strengthened, and it will back a bill for a Federal Highway Commission, probably one of the bills already introduced. The Associated Highways of America will present the combined system of marked highways of its membership as the plan for Congress to adopt for the Federal system to be built and maintained by the Government.

Rural Motor Express Routes In and Out of St. Louis Operating in 30-Mile Radius



There are at the present time in St. Louis 11 concerns engaged in the operation of motor truck express lines extending in all directions out of the city covering a radius of approximately 30 miles.

Thees concerns operate over regular routes and work on schedule the same as the railroads. Every type of truck on the market can be found among the equipment of these companies whose hauling varies from bulky to light parcels.

Every type of vehicle and body is to be found in this service, so that the great variety of materials being carried can be handled quickly and efficiently. Some of the concerns operate as many as 10 trucks.

A great advantage of motor truck transport has to do with the rehandling of goods. The cost of rehandling is becoming one of the greatest problems of all artnsportation experts.

Rehandling involves more labor, possible damage to goods, warehousing and delay. Within its sphere highway transport eliminates these exceptionable factors and lends its value to the general scheme of transportation.

The policy of shipping by truck has much to recommend it. When a shipment is enstructed to one of these truck transportation companies there is ample assurance of punctual delivery. These companies dispatch their trucks on regular schedules over carefully planned routes. In addition to prompt delivery they offer extra precaution and special care in the handling of goods. On these trips loads are handled only two or, at the most, three times. The truck backs up to the shipping platform, the consignment is loaded, the truck starts off and on schedule time arrives at its destination. Upon arrival the truck goes directly to the receiving platform of the consignee and is there unloaded. Breakage, as a rule, is in direct ration to the number of times one's goods are handled, and thus breakage is reduced to a minimum. By way of contrast, ask your traffic man to outline the course of an ordinary freight shipment from plant to customer. Learn from him what delays are met with in the rehandling of such a shipment. Look into the complications of transfer and redistribution of belt road collections, freight houses and junction points. The ordinary freight shipment undergoes from six to eight handlings. The consequence is seen in delay, damage and labor expense.

The various companies in the rural motor express business in and out of St. Louis are as follows:

Progressive Transfer Co., 620 South Seventh street—To Belleville, Collinsville, Edwardsville, Granite City, Alton and intermediate points in Illinois.

To Florissant, St. Charles, Valley Park, Fenton and intermediate points in Missouri.

Schedule daily.

Brashear Truck Co., 421 South Theresa avenue.—To Belleville, Ill., and intermediate points.

To St. Charles, Mo., and intermediate points.

Schedule daily.

Wild Horse Creek Express, 2006 Market street.—To Centaur, Mo., and intermediate points.

Schedule—Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Gunn Transfer Co., 708 North Ninth street.—To Clayton, Wellston, Webster Groves, University City.

MOTORISTS MUST BARE PAST TO GET LICENSES

Questions Asked on Drug and Drink Items; Protest Made by A. A. A. Conusel.

Have you ever gone by any other name or alias?

Have you ever been convicted of any felony?

Have you ever been incarcerated in any asylum?

Do you use intoxicating liquors?

Are you addicted to the use of morphine, heroin, or any other narcotic drug?

Are you suffering from any nervous affection?

These are part of a tentative list of questions which applicants for automobile drivers' licenses in New York City will be called upon to answer under the new Knight-Wheelock law which was read to automobile men, representatives of the Police Department, and city magistrates the other day by Francis M. Hugo, Secretary of State.

The law gives the Secretary of State power to revoke or suspend licenses upon the recommendation of any Judge or city magistrate. It calls for the examination of all applicants for chauffeurs' and owner-operators' licenses. Under the old law only chauffeurs had to pass examinations.

The questionnaires for private owners who drive their own cars will be shorter than those chauffeurs will be required to fill out.

Charles T. Terry, counsel for the American Automobile Association, declared that the general effect of questions such as Secretary of State Hugo read would be to irritate the public.

"The thousands of citizens of this city who apply for licenses will not tolerate such questions," Terry declared. "It seems to me that you're simply asking a lot of personal questions which will be resented by honest people, and which will give the dishonest driver ample chance to lie. Because of that, the answers in many cases will be absolutely worthless, and won't help a bit to determine the applicant's fitness to drive a car."

Magistrate Cobb, who favored the questions, is said to have made the statement, "a definite proportion of persons operating motor cars in New York City ought to be driven off the highways. They range from ex-convicts to drug addicts."

What to Do With the Old Auto Tire

The Popular Science Monthly is conducting a contest on "What You Can Do with That Old Automobile Tire." Some of the suggestions offered in the June number are as follows:

An inflated inner tube with several hooks and lines attached is said to beat a "trot line" all hollow for results in fishing. The motion of the tube on the water causes the hooks to jiggle and attracts the fish attention to the bait. (A. Duffy.)

Four auto tires and two tackle blocks made a sling that can be used in lifting sick animals to their feet or supporting them while helpless. (D. E. Johnson.)

Shoes to protect cuts in tire casings can be made from sections of old tires. (C. A. Butterworth.)

Two old tires will make baby a novel walking chair by the use of spokes which will support the one tire above the other, the lower end of the spokes terminating in free moving casters. (R. Maginsky.)

Cut into uniform sizes and laced in pairs, sections of a pneumatic tire casing will make an efficient buffer for a launch or small boat. (W. E. Wylam.)

Cut to proper lengths, old tires make excellent tree guards. Sew the cut ends together with waxed thread. (C. L. Meller.)

For basket ball practice the retired tire makes an improvised basket. The supports should be about a foot long. (R. Maginsky.)

A tire and some wire screening make an efficient ash sifter. (R. M.)

Split open half a tire, hang it under the old grindstone under the stone. Fill it with water and you have an automatic stone-wetter that won't rust. (Whitney Asbridge.)

TIRE DON'TS

Don't run your cars with the wheels out of alignment. Wheels that "don't track" are gluttons for rubber.

Don't let your inflation get below the point recommended by the tire dealer. Under-inflation is keeping thousands of tire builders working overtime.

Don't overinflate. If you like the sensation of solid tires, buy a wagon.

Don't ignore small cuts. A patch in time saves dollars.

Don't buy tires smaller than recommended by the manufacturer of a car of the weight of the one you own. It isn't economy.

Don't forget to remove and reverse your inner tubes every three months. They appreciate a change and will pay for it.

Don't blame the tire if it "blows" after standing idle in a warm garage all winter. Tires don't thrive on a hibernation diet of heat, oil and grease.

Friday, June 12.

Alton—Short stop.

St. Louis motor truck men who are to take part in the 375-mile demonstration run through Northern Missouri and Western Illinois starting at 6 a. m. tomorrow morning have about completed their arrangements and are now hoping for good weather.

There will be 52 motor trucks of various designs and 10 touring cars, it was announced Friday in charge of Frank Amrine, chairman of the Executive Committee of the St. Louis Truck Expedition. All trucks that are to take part in the expedition will assemble at 1 o'clock this afternoon on the circus lot, Sarah and Pine streets, from which place the caravan will leave tomorrow morning.

Amrine said lots would be drawn from a hat to determine the position of the trucks in the train.

An airplane of the Scudder Aviation Training and Transportation Co., of Wabash, Ind., Amrine said would fly ahead of the caravan after it left St. Louis, dropping literature announcing the arrival of the truck train and the purpose of its mission.

Purpose of the Tour.

The purpose of the truck tour as laid down in the literature to be distributed is to show the people of Missouri and Illinois that the motor truck is a practical, useful, convenient and economical vehicle for the farmer's use and the use of the merchant in the smaller town, that it will go and come and carry full loads on rural roads as well as city pavements.

The carvan will not travel at night, the schedule having been arranged to provide for over-night accommodations though many of the entrants have announced their intention of taking individual camping outfits and cots and living outdoors for the week, sleeping on the floor of their truck. A schedule is being arranged so that the airplane will be enabled to spend each night with the caravan.

During the stopovers along the route motion pictures showing the benefit of good roads to the rural motorist and news pictures of endurance runs, etc. A speakers' committee composed of dealers represented in the expedition will give short talks on the possibilities of the motor truck in small communities as well as larger cities.

The entrants are as follows:

Traffic Truck Corp., Traffic Truck.

Federal Truck Co., Federal Truck.

Welling Motor Co., All-American Truck.

Auto Sales Co., The Autocar Truck.

B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., Pierce-Arrow Truck.

Weber Imp. and Auto Co., Maxwell Truck.

F. C. Meyer Motor Co., Republic Truck.

Southwest Nash Motor Co., Nash Truck.

Master Truck Agency, Master Truck.

De Luxe Automobile Co., Oldsmobile Truck.

International Harvester Co., I. H. C. Truck.

General Motors Sales Co., G. M. C. Truck.

Bethlehem Motor Sales Co., Bethlehem Truck.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., Packard Truck.

Packard Motor Car Co., Packard.

Scudder Motor Truck Co., Service Truck.

Dorris Motor Car Co., Dorris Truck.

Rottersman Auto and Truck Co., Wheat Tractor.

Midwest Motor Co., Clydesdale Truck.

Aldrich-Stephens Motor Co., Dearborn Truck.

Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., White Truck.

Newell Motor Car Co., Paige Truck.

The participants have been advised to provide themselves with a raincoat, blanket, rubber boots, money for toll gate, etc., in a letter announcing that police protection will be had tonight while the trucks are parked at Sarah and Pine streets.

Officers of the expedition who will be in charge are Robert E. Lee, trip commander; Preston W. Duffy, train master in charge of movement of train and drivers. He will be assisted by three lieutenants, Lee said.

Practical Paragraphs for the Motorist.

The Dry Cells.

The simplest dampness of the pasteboard covers of dry cells will more or less short circuit them and run down the amperage. Some prudent car owners make cases of sections of old inner tubes and cover the dry cells with these, thereby protecting them from dampness.

Oil for Bronze Bearings.

Never forget that cooling with water a bronze bearing that has been running hot is the last thing to do. The best thing to do is to wait for the bearing to cool in the ordinary course of events, but if you are in too much of a hurry for this, cool it with oil instead of water.

Sticking Valve Caps.

Occasionally a valve cap will stick and defy all ordinary efforts to loosen it. When this occurs, run the engine for a little while until the cap is heated and then pour a little water in the recess of the cap. This causes a sudden cooling which makes the metal contract, permitting the cap to be easily unscrewed.

Pressure Feed.

On cars that have pressure feed systems, operated by means of the exhaust gas, the car owner should make a periodic examination of the feed strainers and other cleaners through which the gas passed on its way back to the tank. If a car is in continual use or is using excessive amounts of oil and gasoline the dirt accumulated in the strainers will naturally be heavier and the inspection should be made more often.

Tightening Radiator Cap.

Many car owners have trouble with leakage at the radiator cap. The reason for this is that the velocity of the water circulation exceeds the capacity of the radiator or there may be some condition in the cooling system whereby boiling takes place faster than the overflow will take it off. To cure the trouble make a gasket of red fiber 1-16 of an inch thick and place it over the filter cap. This serves to prevent the cap from working loose and also keeps the water from leaking out to stain the radiator with blotches of rust.

Cleaning Plugs.

Very often in cleaning spark plugs by hand the point of the plug is broken. A good way to avoid this is to stick the plug in the ground, upside down, fill it with gasoline and touch a match to it. After the gasoline has burned out the plug will be found entirely clean of soot.

Sticking Screws.

In dealing with a small screw that refuses to yield to the blandishments of a screwdriver, try holding a hot soldering iron against the head. This will often do the trick by loosing the rust between the metal surfaces. Heating a screw head as mentioned and then soaking it with kerosene will bring out practically any screw, no matter how tightly it may have been wedged in its place.

Questions and Answers.

Q. Kindly advise me what you know about the roads to Lebanon, Mo., best route, condition of the roads, etc.—Walter J. Wolf, St. Louis.

A. The Ozark Trails route is the best from St. Louis to Lebanon. The route is as follows: St. Louis to Union, Leslie, Owensville, Belle, Vienna, Dixon, Crocker, Richland, Stoutland and Lebanon. The total distance is 201.3 miles. From St. Louis to Union the road is good, there being but a few rough stretches between Grays Summit and Union. From Union to Vienna the road is more or less unimproved and can only be classed as fair. From Vienna to Lebanon the road is reported in need of repair. Culverts are reported out in several places. The road, while generally up and down hill between these two points, crosses a number of flat mud lanes.

Hawker Forced Down in Mid-Atlantic by Clogged Cooling System—

Intrepid British Aviator, Half Way to Goal, Picked Up by Tramp Steamer.

With the motor in his Sopwith plane working perfectly, Hawker in his game attempt to be the first to fly across the Atlantic is brought down by trouble with the cooling system.

Here is the whole story of water cooling—an outside system that can easily destroy the efficiency of the most perfectly built motor.

It is the unfailing dependability of the Holmes Improved Air-Cooled Motor that makes it the choice of the motor wise.

With no radiator to clog, no water connections to give way, nothing to boil or freeze, the motor is always working at its highest efficiency.

There are no moving parts to the cooling system that are not working parts of the motor. The fly wheel is a suction fan. The radial cooling fins are a part of the cylinders.

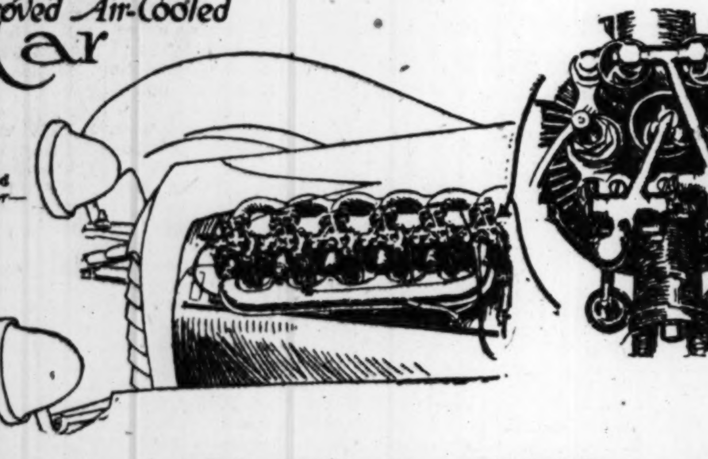
The cooling is always in proportion to the heat developed in the motor. Aviation type Dual Exhaust valves give silent operation and flexible power.

See the Holmes—

The seven-passenger touring car, 126-in. wheel base, travels eighteen to twenty miles to the gallon of gasoline, 10,000 miles to the set of tires and from three to fifty miles an hour on high gear.

High operating cost is no longer necessary in a large car; the price of economy is no longer restricted carrying capacity and cramped discomfort.

The HOLMES Improved Air-Cooled Car



This is the Holmes Improved Air-Cooled Motor—unfailing in dependability—unequalled in economy.

TRANSPORT CHAIRMAN'S VIEW ON RURAL EXPRESS

Logical Extension, He Says, of Automotive Industry.

"Rural motor hauling is a logical extension of the automotive industry in a new and untried field. The motor truck as an auxiliary transportation facility is relatively so new that its actual possibilities and limitations are not thoroughly understood even by those who have been most intimately in contact with the problems of highway transportation. It is but natural then that the development of rural motor express routes has proceeded on anything but a systematic or carefully conceived program. Early efforts in this direction, therefore, have been productive of much practical experience which will prove very helpful to those just entering the field of rural transportation," said J. H. Collins, member of the Highways Transport Committee of the Council of National Defense and Investigator of Market Survey of the Department of Agriculture, in an address on rural motor express surveys at the recent conference of the National Highway Traffic Association in New York.

The most common error of the beginner is not as a rule in the selection of his operating equipment, but lies rather in his failure to properly analyze his business prospects in advance. Because securing equipment involves the expenditure of money in advance, the ordinary operator usually exercises reasonable discretion in purchasing his rolling stock. Conversely, because of the fact that no direct outlay of money is involved, he fails to devote sufficient attention in advance to his business arrangements. The common assumption is that a proper volume of business will develop as the route becomes established as a regular carrier. The character of this business and its permanence appear as minor considerations.

Careful Survey First Step.

Where a new motor route is being considered it is essential that a careful survey be made in advance. A territory which appears at first glance to be admirably adapted to motor hauling may prove very disappointing to the man who actually undertakes to establish such a service. First-hand information can be secured only by a direct canvass of the prospective field of operation. Such a survey to be of value must include all the primary factors which will mean success or failure, yet in actual practice these considerations are only the dictates of good business judgment.

Coming now to a consideration of ways and means, it will be found that two general factors influence the future of a rural motor route. These factors are (a) the volume of business or tonnage, and (b) those surrounding conditions which have a direct bearing on the business.

Primarily, of course, the profits of a route will vary directly with the tonnage. The greater the prospective tonnage, the greater the profits, other factors considered. Equally important, however, is the distribution of tonnage throughout the season. The truck operator in a district producing grain exclusively, who has offered to him a greater tonnage than he can possibly care for during one month in the year, and who has little or nothing to haul during the other 11 months, is obviously headed toward failure. It is apparent, therefore, that the total quantity of agricultural products moving from the territory under consideration is not an entirely accurate guide for the prospective operator. The ideal territory from the point of view of the motor operator is the area whose total productivity is large, but whose products move to market in a fairly steady stream throughout the year. Regions given over to dairying, important truck farming districts, and areas of intensive but diversified farming have, therefore, proven the most profitable to pioneers in motor transportation.

In making a preliminary survey it is equally important that consideration be given to the character of the tonnage to be moved. Low priced, bulky, staples such as hay, as a rule, will not bear the motor truck tariff. On the other hand, perishables, which must move to market promptly if deterioration is to be avoided, may readily bear an express tariff because of the speedier service given by the motor truck. Light, bulky products require an undue amount of space and may prove unprofitable as a load. In general, loads which have a high value per unit of weight or size offer the most profitable return.

Although rural express routes may be developed for the purpose of affording more adequate transportation facilities for agricultural communities, it does not necessarily follow that loads should be confined entirely to agricultural products. In many cases tonnage furnished by small industrial plants, country merchants and city dealers with a rural clientele, has made possible the profitable operation of a rural motor route whose primary function is to serve the farmer. Few farming districts can support a motor route with a tonnage of farm products alone. The operator who serves the farm as distinguished from the rural community generally is pinning his faith to a rather slender support.

Return Load Important Feature.

The original surveys should also cover the return load feature. It is fairly safe to assert that no rural motor express route can exist entirely on a one-way load. Here again arises the necessity for establishing contact with commercial shippers whose dealings include loads both ways. Country merchants as a rule provide a considerable part of the load coming from the city, and the importance of this business cannot be overlooked.

During the first five months of 1919, the Post-Dispatch printed 31,258 Automobile "Wants"—9524 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

PAY DAY

If your Truck drew union wages on the hour basis for services while actually delivering, would it receive a check for full time each pay day?

The man or the Truck working 10 hours a day 300 days each year is the money-maker for you, and the man or the Truck working spasmodically and laying off when most needed is your BIG LOSER.

THEREFORE

In buying a motor truck, give 85% of your time to the selecting of the engine, as 85% of your "grief" is chargeable against it.

Check These Points and Eliminate Guesswork

(1) Ask to see the crankshaft and personally try to file the journals—if they are not case hardened the file will bite into them readily, but if they are glass hard, you will ruin the file.

(2) Then make sure that the main journals on the crankshaft are at least 3 inches in diameter—even on a one-ton truck. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link—neither is an engine one bit better than its crankshaft. Large journals mean power to resist shocks, minimum chance of scoring or burning and practically no chance of wearing "out of round" when case hardened.

(3) Try your file again on the engine timing gears; they should also be glass hard, likewise the camshaft journals; in fact, every moving part on an engine that you expect to net you continued profit over a long period must have the same ample dimensions of quality built into it from start to finish.

This is why the "Louis Rich Construction Company" of East St. Louis, recently bought four 3½-ton CHAIN-DRIVE MACKS; three equipped with all-steel dump bodies and hoists and one equipped complete as a Hot Road Oiler. This is also why Keen Representative Concerns of St. Louis bought 30 MACKS within the past 60 days.

MOTOR NASH TRUCKS

KOMMERS MOTOR COMPANY
Now Sells Nash Trucks

The selling franchise for Nash trucks, including the famous Nash Quad, for St. Louis and surrounding territory, has been awarded to Kommers Motor Company.
Kommers Motor Company was selected to represent Nash trucks because its high standing and its splendid service facilities were found to be in every way in keeping with the high quality of Nash products themselves.

Especial stress is being laid by Kommers Motor Company upon the service end of its business. A complete and large stock of spare parts for Nash trucks will be carried at all times and owners are assured of a service, when required, which will be courteous, prompt and thoroughly efficient.

Nash trucks in the hands of the owners throughout the country have shown themselves to be unusually powerful, economical and practical hauling equipment.

The splendid war-time record of Nash trucks is your best assurance of their high quality. The Nash Motors Company built during the war period, we believe, more trucks for the Government than were furnished by any other maker.

Further proof of their dependable performance is the fact that they are now being operated by such big and careful buyers as Morris & Company, the Palmolive Company, the American Steel Foundries Company, the Texas Company, the Standard Oil Company and others. You will understand why buyers are quick to realize that Nash trucks are unusually attractive investments when you have inspected their many mechanical superiorities.

You are cordially invited to visit the showrooms of Kommers Motor Company for this purpose at your earliest convenienc.

ADVOCATES MOTOR TRUC TO CURTAIL R. R. SHORT

Chairman of Highways Transport Committee Says Vehicle and Road Are Inseparable Parts of Great Agency of Public Service.

"I firmly believe that the development of road construction and the use of the motor truck is the next great national industrial development," said John S. Cravens, chairman of the Highways Transport Committee, Council of National Defense, in a recent address to the National Association of Motor Truck Sales Managers in Philadelphia.

A copy of his address which appears in a bulletin just issued by the Highway Transport Committee of the U. S. Council of National Defense says, in part:

"I firmly believe that the development of road construction and the use of the motor truck is the next great national industrial development.

"It has been the council's policy not to undertake the study of engineering features of road construction, nor to enter too much into the detail of how the value of road construction and use is to be realized.

"The council also believes that the application of the use of the truck is something which should be properly left to the producers, for it is, in a real analysis, their business problem.

"The Council of National Defense is not selling trucks—we try rather to sell ideas. But one of the purposes of the Highways Transport Committee has been to educate the people as to the proper place of the motor vehicle as an agency of transport in order that it might seek and maintain the place to which the usefulness entitles it.

"The vehicle and the road must be demonstrated to be complements of each other and inseparable parts of a great agency of public service. Once the people thoroughly realize this, they will demand and have good roads when and where they will serve.

We have felt that advocacy of road building as such would not have so good a reaction as education as to what the roads can really do for the people.

"It is a fact, however, that the people are beginning to understand what roads mean—not as a means of enjoyment nor as a conveniece, but as a great factor in the economic growth of the country. They realize that poor roads mean resruction of the social as well as the commercial opportunities of life, and that good roads mean quicker transportation, cheaper transportation, a saving of labor, and the consequent opening of new channels of employment, broader and nearer markets, and that they are the avenues for a wider and better social relation.

"It is being realized, moreover, that to no class does road improvement mean so much as it does to the farmer. Let the people once understand that and we have no fear concerning road construction.

"No less important than road construction is provision for road maintenance. To build roads without adequate provision for maintenance is an economic waste.

"How is this to be brought about? Without particularizing too far, it might be taken as a fair working basis that in the future the maintenance charge should be imposed upon the traffic and the capital expense involved in the construction should be extinguished by taxation. If at the end of the retirement period our roads were still good, we would have gained that much; and if they were not, we would at least have free credit with which we might build again.

"There is another feature of our work that is of interest to you who are concerned with the future of the motor truck. It is the declared policy of the United States Railroad Administration greatly to curtail the construction of spur or feeder lines. This at once opens possibilities to the motor truck, for the demand for transportation is constantly growing. Some of the railroad authorities openly advocate the establishment of country truck lines, especially those running at right angles to the main rail routes, and I believe this entente could be fostered to the mutual benefit of both parties.

"Some have even invoked the aid of ourselves and our State committees in a study of the short-haul problem, in order that relations of both rail and truck thereto might be better understood, and the economic field of usefulness of each be better determined.

"We have also endeavored to codify all we learn on this great subject, to co-ordinate the efforts of different bodies all working to the same purpose, and to act as a clearing house in which may center the knowledge of the activities of various State highway departments which again be disseminated in order that all may receive the benefit of that which is developed by one.

"I am happy to state that under the authority of the council the committee is to be continued and is now composed of representatives of those Federal departments most closely connected with road use and road construction—the Postoffice Department, the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Commerce. J. I. Blakslee, Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General; J. M. Goodell, Consulting Engineer of the Bureau of Roads; J. H. Collins of the Bureau of Markets; Dr. Roy S. MacElwee, Assistant Director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, G. B. Clarkson, Director of the Council of National Defense; Charles W. Reid, Executive Secretary, and myself as chairman, constitute the committee.

"This composition is a warrant that the committee has the co-operation and support of the Government Departments named, and, I think as constituted it is singularly well chosen for the work of the post-war period and I believe its labors will be broader and more useful even than heretofore."

WHY PRICE???

We have always maintained—"Do Not Buy a Motor Truck By Its Price." Towering above everything else must be quality. The best is the cheapest in the long run. The prices of trucks vary. For example: One make 2-ton sells for $2390—another popular make sells for $3750. If a single, solitary, advantageous feature in quality or endurance is in the higher-priced truck, advantages that not necessarily equalize the difference of $1360, our advise is buy the higher-priced truck, but when you can buy a 2-ton truck with a Timken Detroit worm-drive axle that has seen years of usage and not one has as yet worn out; a Continental Red Seal Motor, adopted by more than 47 out of 105 leading truck manufacturers; Brown-Lipe Clutch and Transmission, used by over 36 of the 105 makers; Radius Rods that are found only on quality trucks, and a guarantee for 1 year (instead of 90 days) together with service by a reputable distributor, then RURAL MOTOR EXPRESS AS REDUCER OF H. C. L.

Should Induce Farmer to Cultivate and Produce More Foodstuffs.

"Highway transportation is one of the oldest forms or modes in existence. It has had its development through centuries of evolutionary progress from the times when the pyramids were new, and then some, up to the present time," said F. W. Fenn, secretary of the Motor Truck Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Fenn is expected to arrive in St. Louis today to attend the start of the St. Louis Truck Expedition which will go on a five-day tour through Hannibal and Quincy and intermediate points on the Missouri and Illinois side of the Mississippi River, starting tomorrow morning.

Transportation over the highways from the dawn of Egypt's greatness was carried on by caravan over the desert, over a trackless waste, which may not be called a highway, as we know it, but a highway nevertheless. This was followed by the pack mule, the horse and finally we come to the great Roman highways, through which Rome conquered the world.

From the birth of our nation transportation over the highways has been rather slow in advancement, for with the horse as the pulling power distance could not be covered economically or swiftly and so we were forced to turn our attention to transportation by water and the later development by rail. These methods served well in building up an inland empire and in blazing the way for civilization in its march to the Pacific.

Scope Was Limited.

But while our waterways and our railways opened the way they were limited in capacity and were soon overburdened by the commerce which followed in their wake. Then too the new work of rails which reached across the continent passed by and failed to reach vast areas of our country, which in later years were to furnish the great bulk of our food products.

So, after centuries, when we had thought of transportation over the highways as a thing that was dead and past recovery, the motor truck comes on the scene, and not only revived this method of transportation in a time of need, when three-fourths of the world was carrying on a way for liberty, but breaks all records in smashing time in war and peace time hauling.

The advance of the Germans was halted by the dispatch in which troops and ordnance went forward on the battle fronts of France.

Food products which were raised on millions of acres, remote from our railways and waterways reached tide water via the motor truck, so that we were able to produce more and send more to our armies and our allies.

The war is now over, but still, we must feed the world, and if we are going to do it, and in addition, lower the cost of living, we must induce the farmer to cultivate and produce more. He will do it if we can furnish the means of transportation.

Need Motor Express.

You have the means when you apply the motor truck—when you organize and operate a rural motor express. If you will do this and give its management as much intelligent thought as you would any business you will not only succeed but you will have rendered your nation a service which is worth while.

Motor transport days are being held in many states and hundreds of cities through the country. Many have already been held and great results have come from them in making a bigger, better and richer community." Make your slogan "Rural Motor Express and Better Highways Will Lower the Cost of Living."

The motor express business is developing to such an extent that some means should be adopted to co-ordinate their work, said F. C. Rudisell, manager of the Firestone Tire Co., and for that reason, he said, there has been established in their St. Louis headquarters, 3201 Locust street, a "ship by truck" bureau, which will act as an interchange or clearing house for persons desiring information on rural express service. The "ship by truck" bureau, which is the first of its kind in St. Louis, was opened this week. Information regarding routes, schedules, tonnage capacity of trucks, rates, etc., are kept on file, Rudisell said, for the express purpose of benefiting the shipping public.

CROWD BEATS MEMBERS OF NEW RHENISH REPUBLIC CABINET

Disturbance Follows Act of President Dorten in Establishing His Regime at Wiesbaden.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 6.—Dr. Dorten, who on June 1 was named as President of the Rhenish Republic, installed himself and his new Cabinet in office at Wiesbaden yesterday. Reports reaching this city state that, taking advantage of the half holiday for Government employes, he entered the Government building, which had been proclaimed as the seat of the new regime, and took office. He then ordered a white and green flag, the colors of the new republic, hoisted from the roof. This was impossible, because the men sent to hoist the flag could not get into the garret of the building.

The efforts made to unfurl the Rhenish Republic colors attracted a huge crowd, which, according to report, surged into the building and severely beat Dr. Eckermann, Minister of Justice, and Dr. Klingenschmidt, Minister of Education. The latter was so seriously injured that he had to be taken to a hospital. President Dorten hid in the building and escaped, it is declared.

A VIGOROUS AND PERMANENT INSTITUTION BACK OF YOUR TRUCKS

The business man who analyzes his truck transportation requirements will tell you that it is not sufficient for a manufacturer simply to make a good truck—the manufacturer must be willing to assume and able to carry the responsibility for the proper installation of that truck and the maintenance of it throughout a number of years.

THIS is no question of a paper guarantee on mileage or performance—not an offer of free service and repairs.

The problem is bigger than that.

To get the proper answer you must understand the institution that stands back of the trucks you purchase.

The right institution can help you work out your transportation problems—furnish you with the right hauling equipment and stick with you, year after year, with a thorough service. The right institution will do this because they believe it is fair.

In a few short years a practical science of transportation engineering has developed.

Hauling casts over a period of years, for any business can be determined in advance with accuracy.

No guess work is necessary.

It has been the pioneer work of Packard in this new and important field which has helped give the Packard national institution its high standing.

Through the recent re-organization in St. Louis, the services of the Packard national organization have been made available to every business man.

The new organization is the Packard Motor Car Company of Missouri.

The men and the facilities you will find here today are a tangible expression of a most vigorous and permanent institution.

We cordially invite you to use our services.

The Big Truck Expedition leaves St. Louis, 6 A. M. Monday, June 9th, and running via St. Charles, Louisiana, Hannibal and Quincy, and covers 370 miles, returning June 14th.

The many large firms whose trucks will participate in this Expedition evidence their recognition of the economy of motor transportation.

BOTHELL ON SCIENCE OF TRUCK OPERATION

Use of Better Maintenance, Routing and Shipping Will Keep Truck Moving Faster With Capacity Load, He Says.

While automotive transportation engineering is a new subject, a science, if you please, in the making, its meaning is not difficult to understand. It can be reduced to a mathematical equation. In this form it reads "Transportation Engineering equals the proper application of the motor vehicle to transportation."

All of the discussions so far on the future of the motor truck—good roads, elimination of street congestion, relation of motor trucks to railroads, development of loading and unloading devices, and the growing interest in and the developing realization of the importance of motor transportation engineering — all come under this subject of the proper application of the motor vehicle to transportation, and this is Transportation Engineering.

Shipping and Maintenance.

It is just now being realized that the use of better maintenance, dispatching, routing and shipping room methods will keep the truck going faster with capacity loads all of the time, says C. A. Bothell, manager of the truck department of the Packard Motor Car Co. and for several years manager of the largest truck operating concern in Philadelphia.

Maintenance methods are now being studied and applied from a standpoint of keeping the truck moving as well as reducing the cost of actual maintenance.

Proper dispatching will enable a truck to get away quicker; and proper routing will cover the same delivery points with a shorter mileage, with less wear and tear, and with more nearly capacity loads.

In considering these things, the shipper will realize their relation to shipping room methods, and shipping room methods will also receive detail study and consideration. Maintenance, dispatching, packing, routing, billing, invoicing, etc., will all be co-ordinated to the end that the truck may be served better; and of course when this is done the truck can do more work and will be in greater demand.

As perfect as chassis and engine design and construction may be at the present time, we can naturally look for refinement and improvements in this respect. These improvements, making for more economy in operation, greater dispatch in repairs and longer life, will reduce truck operating costs, and naturally increase the use of the motor truck.

Increasing Interest in Details.

Everything that has been said here comes under the head of Motor Transportation Engineering, and it is the application of motor transportation engineering that will open the new fields and bring about the improvements mentioned.

The shipper is beginning to see that the use of the motor truck involves something more than the use of a mere operating unit. He is beginning to see that there are other factors which must be taken into consideration with this unit to make it more efficient. Quite naturally in comprehending this he is beginning to investigate and on investigation he is finding that his whole matter of transportation is quite involved and quite expensive and that it will pay him to have the advice of someone versed in these matters. When one so versed has an opportunity to examine the shipper's transportation problem, the opportunity will then come to suggest improvements that will make for more extensive use of the motor truck.

Motorists Should Avoid Terrors of Self-Dug Grave

"By remembering that the slower a wheel turns the more traction it has, will enable many motorists to avoid the terrors of a self-dug grave when stuck in the mud or sand," said R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Co.

"Nine owners out of ten when stuck in the mud will put their cars in low gear and then race their engines for dear life, shortening the life of both tire and motor. With the wheels going at such a pace it is impossible to get any traction, even if straw or twigs are placed beneath the treads, and tire chains will be slipped around idly. The effect is usually to dig a deep hole and increase the difficulty.

"The correct way is to pack cloth or twigs beneath the wheels, use low gear and only speed the motor sufficiently to take the clutch without stalling. Above all things, don't race the engine. Fine cars, like the Hudson Super-Six, have the power to extract themselves from any difficulty if they are only given the chance."

Stewart Eliminates 600 Parts And Builds a Stronger Truck

And They Cost $200 to $300 Less; Reduce Maintenance and Operating Cost; Save Every Day and Hour of Operation. Always Reliable

STEWART trucks outwear and out-perform others because of simplified design. It eliminates 600 points of wear and waste power. The strains of many parts works self destruction in complex types. It is responsible for breakdowns, for interrupted transportation, and big repair costs.

Note How Stewarts End These Faults

Stewart design disposes of more than 600 weighty parts by combining their functions in a few mechanisms of great strength. Most of this weight comes from the unsprung portions. That means less wear on tires and greater riding ease.

Also materials and assembling costs are saved. You get the saving in the $200 to $300 lower cost.

The value of such simplicity is shown in reduction in operating costs, and in maintenance. But most important of all it gives practical freedom from repairs. That accounts for the Stewart records in longest continuous service. You can depend upon uninterrupted service with Stewarts.

Stewarts Cost Less to Operate; Less to Maintain

That is why they are the choice of more than 200 lines of business in 27 countries, daily meeting with satisfaction every truck demand in every climate, under all varied conditions.

The choosing of a truck always narrows down to which will give the most lasting satisfactory service for the lowest cost.

Investigate the Stewart. Have it demonstrated. See for yourself why it outlasts and out-performs others. We feel sure the same logical engineering and manufacturing reasons that led operators of great truck fleets to adopt Stewarts, will convince you too.

Within the past year some large truck operators disposed of their old fleets entire, replacing them with Stewart trucks. They pocketed a loss in selling the old fleets at used truck prices. But they regard that more than offset by Stewart advantages of dependability, freedom from repair and operating economy.

Stewart Endurance Is Choice In City and On the Farm

Consider what a share of the world's transportation is moved by Stewarts. In every end of the earth truck users rely on it.

BISHOP TRUCK & TRACTOR CO.

FRANK BISHOP, Pres. Central 1671—Bomont 590

You will find them in the fast interborough truck-trains, rushing raw materials and finished products to and from cities, linking up small towns with rapid transportation. These trains must keep an average of 15 to 18 miles an hour, day after day, without interruption. Their endurance is tested by heavy loads, fast travel, and all sorts of road and weather conditions. Stewarts always prove reliable.

Every truck need is met with proper sized Stewarts. Grocers, bakers and tradesmen of all sorts find the ¾-ton size convenient for city deliveries. Contractors, storage companies, department stores, manufacturers and general hauling concerns have the choice of any size up to 3½ tons. Farmers reach their markets, and return with farm supplies, far more quickly and cheaply with Stewart trucks. They are used in the distribution of dairy products.

Suitable bodies are available for any requirement. Stewarts will supply your every transportation need.

The First Fifty Are Still Giving Economical and Satisfactory Service

Reliability is what men most seek in a motor truck. They know their business is no better than their transportation. And they are learning that most truck disorders are unnecessary and are eliminated in Stewart design.

If you are a user of trucks you know the importance of uninterrupted service. Trucks steadily at work. No disappointment caused by delays. Confusion and clogging of shipping and delivery departments eliminated. No breakdowns and repair expenses.

CADILLAC

For every prospective purchaser of a Cadillac—either open or enclosed—we have a word of warning.

We have never—without warrant—cautioned our patrons to guard against possible disappointment in delivery, but a combination of events RIGHT NOW makes our duty plain.

The hosts returning from France are spreading everywhere the gospel of Cadillac precedence the world over; thus the Cadillac Army of old and faithful friends has been augmented by a second army of admirers.

The resulting demand for Cadillac cars threatens to swamp the factory. Production is going forward normally, but the tremendous increase in the demand cannot be wholly cared for.

Therefore, we want to urge upon every person who is contemplating the purchase of a Cadillac—whether it be his intention to buy this Summer or next Fall, to place an order NOW.

4000 LB. MOTOR TRUCK DOES WORK OF 3 TEAMS

T. C. Brandle Says Motor Truck Is Utility, Not Luxury; Never Bought Through Pride, but to Make Money.

"Everyone realizes that the motor truck being a vehicle of transportation is never purchased through pride of ownership or simply to have one in the family," said T. C. Brandle, vice-president of Traffic Motor Truck Corporation, in an interview yesterday. "The motor truck," he said, "is purchased for business reasons, first, to move merchandise; second, to save and make money for its owner."

The motor truck is purely an article of utility and not a luxury and is never purchased except to fill a definite need.

Every possible influence is favoring the truck industry. Merchandise and tonnage heretofore moved with horses and mules and other slow moving methods of transportation is today being handled by the motor truck.

Cost of feed for mules and horses is constantly increasing. I have been told by those who own horses that the cost of upkeep, including feed, bedding and shoe bills, is fully $30 per month each. The requirements of the late war have practically drained the country of good teams and have made it more difficult and more costly to secure them.

Quick transportation of merchandise from one point to another has proven an important factor in favor of the motor truck. Waiting for needed material is costly. In case of perishable goods, such as farm products, adequate truck transportation means a saving for the farmer of hundreds of dollars value in produce that would otherwise spoil on the ground. Trucks also are being used to and from interurban communities at a great saving over railroad transportation, and in many instances motor trucks are being used for long hauls between different communities.

A 4000-pound capacity truck will do the work of at least three teams and further save from two to three men who would ordinarily be required to handle the teams and loads. Motor trucks mean the saving and making of money for owners for the reason that the cost of hauling is very considerable less than the same hauling by teams, and in most cases the amount of capital tied up in the physical transportation facilities is very much less in case of trucks than in case of teams.

The good roads movement all over the United States is developing tremendous activity for motor transportation. Roads are being put in condition everywhere for the use of automobiles and trucks. This movement will undoubtedly continue. Already there are a number of large concerns distributing their entire production by trucks within a radius of from 50 to 200 miles, with a great saving in transportation charges, packing and crating, damage in transit and delay. Some concerns have found it possible to eliminate branches and invariably the company using the truck system for transportation has found that the superior service rendered their patrons greatly multiplies their business as well.

The railroad situation is forcing the people of the nation to resort to trucks wherever they can be used. Railroad building is at a standstill and together with the ever-rising railroad rates there is no prospect at this time of new roads being constructed. The only solution to this question is motor trucks. I believe that in a few years fleets of motor trucks hauling freight on the public highways will be as common as the railroads are today.

In 1918 there were ten times as many pleasure cars built as trucks, yet it is clear that the sale of trucks must in a very short time exceed the sale of pleasure cars. The reason is obvious. The truck is an economic necessity, while in a large number of cases the pleasure car is a pure luxury. The truck is an asset. It pays its way and makes a profit for its owner as it goes. The truck business really started only seven years ago. In the last three years it has received a tremendous impetus and the truck business as a whole is growing at a much faster rate than the pleasure car did in its early days. It is my opinion in a very few years the manufacture and sale of motor trucks will make the number of automobiles sold last year look small.

The very best proof of the efficiency of the motor truck is in the fact that the manufacturers of motor trucks all over the country are taxed to their capacity to supply the demand. Since the truck is never purchased for any other purpose than actual necessity and only for the purpose of moving merchandise, it is clear that the economical demand is well defined.

The only thing needed to make the motor truck as popular as the pleasure car was to popularize the size and price, and the Traffic Motor Truck Corporation has filled that need by not only building a truck that will answer 80 per cent of all users requirements, but in building the lowest priced 4000-pound capacity truck on the market.

Save Half Your Tire Bills

And All Tire Worry

It takes very little tire trouble to spoil a day's outing.

Why take chances?

By adopting an improved principle in tire construction—the Gates principle—500,000 automobile owners have taken the tire worries out of their motoring. They are getting 5,000 to 10,000 more miles than they ever had before from their casings, and are cutting their tire bills in half.

Fleets of delivery cars in every big city in the United States are being equipped with these tires because business men know it pays.

You can share in this motoring economy, made possible by Gates Half-Sole Tires.

Every Gates Half-Sole Tire is sold with a mileage guarantee, and, more, is guaranteed puncture proof.

You can't buy that kind of insurance with any other standard tire—and it adds to the pleasure of motoring.

Let your nearest Gates dealer show you these Gates Half-Sole Tires—guaranteed puncture proof—yet cost only ½ as much.

You will be interested—and it will pay you to investigate.

PNEUMATIC TIRES ON TRUCKS GROW IN FAVOR

Absorption of Vibration Adds to Life of Truck—Better Traction Means More Mileage.

By Otto Mobile.

There is a rapidly growing tendency toward the use of pneumatic tires on motor trucks, especially those trucks of capacities under three tons. Every indication points to a still greater increase in their use in the future, as the special truck types of pneumatic tires become more generally appreciated. Pneumatic tires are not going to supersede solid rubber tires in the truck world, according to the automobile tire dealers, because the solid tire for the majority of uses fits the needs of service and its dependability is a leading feature, but in many lines, however, where the considerations of greater speed, better traction and less vibration are important and the work is over roads where serious danger from punctures and cuts does not exist, the pneumatic tire offers a means of better service.

Speed is the prime consideration in determining tire choice. A higher speed with safety means greater radius and greater mileage per day. The "overhead" expense of a truck—driver, insurance, garage, interest, amortization charges and like items—are a large part of the cost of operating a motor vehicle, and an increase in speed, in some cases amounting to 100 per cent, means a greater reduction in this charge per unit of delivery, whether that be tons, packages, trips or miles. Greater speed means a much bigger day's work at a trifling increase in cost for fuel.

Reduced vibration, even at the higher speeds, results in a longer useful life to the motor truck. Vibration is the greatest foe to the structure of a motor truck. It breaks down in time even the finest grade materials. The best materials and the most skillful heat-treating delay the destructive action of vibration, but any truck, however well built, will last longer on pneumatic tires than on solid tires, for this reason.

The marked absorption of vibration given by pneumatic tire equipment is also a protection to a fragile load. Some commodities which could not otherwise be handled except with most careful packing or crating can be successfully transported with but ordinary care.

The increased traction aside from making higher speed safe enlarges the usefulness of the motor truck in many lines. In snow, mud, sand and on dangerous mountain roads the better traction means greater ability and to a greater degree freedom from weather conditions.

The partial failure in the use of pneumatic tires in the past on commercial motor cars was due to the fact that the only tires available were those designed for passenger cars. Punctures, blowouts and short life often more than offset the savings. Reliability was lessened.

But it was not long until the tiremakers went after the situation seriously and they made progress. They made the tires bigger, added layers of fabric and more rubber, with relatively smaller inner tubes. This stopped the punctures and rapid wear, but did not wholly solve the problem.

Internal friction was too great. The condition was analogous to that faced by racing drivers. Heat and the resistance or stiffness of the tire were the destructive elements. The solution was the same in both cases—cord construction.

Today cord truck tires are piling up wonderful records in bigger tonnage, in mileage, in service and in earning power.

THREE GREAT HIGHWAYS TAKE PERSHING'S NAME

The Pershing highway, a proposed transcontinental route from New York to San Francisco, was organized recently at a meeting in Lincoln, Neb., attended by representatives of several states included in the projected itinerary.

The road, as laid out by the organizers' maps, passes through Washington, Springfield, Ill., Laclede, Mo., St. Joseph, Lincoln and Cheyenne, Wyo.—all of which places have figured importantly, at one time or another, in Gen. Pershing's career. Mostly, the route is a composite of established trails, following the Lincoln highway from San Francisco to Grand Island, Neb., and sections of other roads from Central Nebraska to New York.

This is the third Pershing highway project launched in recent months. A north and south Pershing way was organized in December in Minnesota, and the Pike's Peak Ocean-to-Ocean highway has adopted as an official subtitle the Pershing Transport route.

Goodrich Co. Announces New Adjustment on Tires

The Goodrich Victory announcement of more mileage adjustment on tires has made a decided hit with Goodrich customers in the St. Louis district, said W. C. Dold, manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., 3001 Locust street. He said this new adjustment stands back of all Goodrich tires, including tires already purchased, in the hands of the user or dealer. The new adjustment figures are: For fabric or safety treads, 6000 miles, and Silvertown cord tires, 8000 miles. The old adjustment was 3500 and 5000 miles, respectively.

Dold said the adjustment mileage has been increased because Goodrich knows the mileage in its tires and wants to give every motorist a share in their economy and allround benefits.

Motor trucks fully equipped with the latest up-to-the minute machinery to repair shoes at the customer's door are being inaugurated in Baltimore.

Announcement was made this week by Standard Auto Service Co. that they had enlarged their quarters to include 3948 to 3954 Olive street that their service might be improved. George Graupner is general manager.

Festus J. Wade, a nephew of Festus J. Wade, financier, has been appointed manager of the new Exide Service Station, 3408 Lindell avenue, to succeed A. H. Baebler, who has left to take up other work. Wade has recently returned from service, he having enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1917. Employes of the firm presented Baebler with a traveling set upon his departure.

S. L. Carvey has returned as service manager of the Newell Motor Car Co., 2621 Locust street. He but recently obtained his discharge from the military service.

C. A. Cole has been appointed general sales manager of the F. C. Meyer Motor Car Co., 16th and Chestnut streets.

J. N. Magna has been appointed sales manager of the Federal Truck Co., of St. Louis, Grand avenue and Forest Park boulevard.

Ship by Truck

The Sign of Good Trucking Service—
Manufacture—Operation—Maintenance

MOTOR TRUCK SHIPPING HAS won its way to a prominent and permanent place in the distribution system of America. "Ship by Truck" is the National transportation motto of today. These truck-transportation companies are ready. Take advantage of their facilities.

HARVEY S. FIRESTONE,
President,
Firestone Tire & Rubber Company.

The Firestone Ship by Truck Bureau

The growing interest in the shipment of goods by motor truck has reached a point where a clearing house for information on this new industry should be of great value to all classes of shippers and truck operators.

As an aid toward bringing "Ship by Truck" to its greatest usefulness to all we have established a department to gather, compile and circulate information.

It will pay you to send us at once the information called for below

SHIPPERS: Manufacturers, merchants and farmers are invited to get in touch with our "Ship by Truck" bureau for information regarding motor express routes and lines covering their requirements. Let us know what you have to ship, in what volume, with what frequency, to what destinations, etc.

MOTOR EXPRESS OPERATORS: Send to our "Ship by Truck" bureau all information of interest to shippers, such as the route or routes you cover, tonnage capacity of trucks, schedules under which you operate, rates, etc.

These 16 Maxwell Trucks Ran 90,010 Miles; Total Repair Cost, $830.59

IT is one thing for a motor truck to show long mileage on gas, oil and tires—and quite another to stay out of the repair shop. Maxwell trucks have become well known for their obvious economy. This deals only with the repair side of the Maxwell.

It is printed after the second mail of returns has come in from a canvass of 10,000 Maxwell owners. The first fifteen trucks examined showed a mileage of 109,700 at a total repair cost of $313.07.

These sixteen did not do quite so well, yet they hung up the magnificent average of $.009+ per mile on repairs.

One ran 20,000 miles at a cost of $220. A second covered 12,000 miles at a cost of $12. A third did 5000 miles at a cost of $15. Another passed 4320 miles without a penny's cost. Still another passed 3000 at no cost. Again a fifth did 4000—and no cost.

It is further proof of the contention that Maxwell trucks are efficient in more ways than one: they run at small cost and it doesn't cost much to keep them running.

A further analysis disclosed 15, 18, 22 miles to the gallon of gas, 200, 250, 275 miles to the gallon of oil. And not a single owner among these sixteen hesitated to state he would purchase Maxwells again!

Maxwell is the efficient motor truck. Because it earns its cost in a short time, and saves many a good dollar in freedom from repairs. Price for chassis $1085 f. o. b. Detroit.

MOTOR TRUCK DESIGN SHOULD SUIT LOAD

Frank A. Martin Likens Work of Motor Truck to That of Bridge —Stress Problems the Same.

"The day of questioning the efficiency of the motor truck has passed. This was demonstrated beyond a question of a doubt when during the war it became necessary to speed up business and production to meet the demand of war time stress," said Frank A. Martin of the Martin Motor Truck Co.

"The public, and the business man in particular, now realizes that there are a world of good motor trucks on the market. Scores of manufacturers are producing correctly designed and honestly made machines that will perform with credit if they are placed at work which is suitable to their construction.

"The few truck operators who have not made a success of motor transportation can trace their troubles to the lack of proper equipment. They had failed to analyze their needs and procure the right kind of truck for the work which they wished to do.

"I have often heard the motor truck compared to a bridge, closing the gap between two points, and it is very applicable, but consider the innumerable types of bridge construction, each completely filling the want for which it is designed. No engineer would consider building a bridge without weeks of study regarding the kind of traffic that would use it, the stress and strain to which it would be subjected and, in fact, every minor detail that might have a bearing upon its successful fulfillment of every requirement.

"So it is with the motor truck. No prospective user of motor transportation should blindly buy a truck. He should give every thought and consideration to determine just what is expected of that machine and then analyze the various types and sizes to insure his purchase of being able to meet the specific requirements of his work.

"The majority of buyers are not sufficiently conversant with the possibilities of the various types to make this decision for themselves without the aid of men trained to solve transportation problems. Unless he knows from past experience the one style best suited, he should call in a man who can and will advise him correctly.

"Having once fully decided the exact kind of a truck that he needs, there is then ample time for him to consider the different companies making such a truck. The truck buyer who adopts this policy will find that his truck is doing the work for which it was purchased and after a year's operation there will be no doubt in his mind as to the efficiency and economy of motor transportation.

ENGINEERS ESSENTIAL.

They Are Needed on Staffs of Highway Departments.

"Traffic engineers will be essential members of the general staffs of national and State highway departments if the enormous and intensive needs of traffic are to be met," says George C. Diehl, chairman of the Good Roads Board of the American Automobile Association.

"Highway traffic is already at a point where it overshadows railroad traffic and has given rise not only to the engineering problems of building highways durably, but to traffic problems which call for wider highways on main routes and involve consideration of such traffic questions as co-ordinating parallel roads, providing detours, economically locating roads with reference to tonnage and passenger requirements, routing traffic, sign posting highways and the conduct of construction and repair work to interfere as little as possible with the flow of traffic. The Federal Highway Commission, when it is established, can do more to bring order out of confusion in the handling of these great traffic problems than any other conceivable agency.

"To emphasize the magnitude of traffic we should bear in mind that probably 75 per cent of the 7,000,000 motor vehicles which will be registered this year will be confined to not over 20 per cent of the highway mileage in addition to city streets. This would mean about 12 vehicles to the mile, or about one to every 450 feet. To show how easily traffic may become congested on a narrow road, take for illustration the Baltimore-Washington road and assume that a motor truck passes a given point at a speed of 15 miles an hour at 15-second intervals.

"As the truck would travel 22 feet a second, there would be one truck for every 330 feet, and it would only take 628 trucks to thus fill up the whole space between Baltimore and Washington. Any fairly long train of trucks would, therefore, congest all passenger travel to a degree where the situation would become acute. We do not have to look far into the future to see just such conditions and we must realize that only by wide roads or parallel roads can such situations be met. Just where and how much the road should be widened, where the parallel roads should be built, where the heavy types of construction should be located, where detours should be provided are problems which call for traffic surveys."

This Pretty Girl Tells How She Defies Age by Using Ordinary Oatmeal to Beautify Her Complexion

New York—According to Mae Edna Wilder, the "wheels of time" may be turned backward if a little common sense is used in taking care of the skin. Like everything else the skin needs food, care and attention. The pores to do their work properly should be kept open and scrupulously clean. After being thoroughly cleansed they should be fed, to nourish and bring to the skin that beautiful youthful appearance every normal woman craves. Miss Wilder, though well past the time of life when most complexions fade, is famous for her beautiful complexion, and when asked how she retains her youthful appearance said:

"It is a simple process to appear youthful. No one comes within ten years of guessing my age. Here is my secret. Go to any grocery store and get ten cents worth of ordinary oatmeal. Put a small quantity of the oatmeal in a bag of cheesecloth about the size of your hand. Drop on or into the bag 10 drops of derwillo which can be obtained at any up-to-date drug store, dip in warm water and use as you would a wash cloth. Wash your face, hands, arms, neck and shoulders, night and morning. Let it remain on the skin for a minute, thus allowing the pores to absorb the food value of the oatmeal. Wash off with warm water, rinse with cold water and dry thoroughly. Then apply derwillo. This is very important. In a short time your skin will undergo a marvelous change. A rosy hue mounts the cheeks, and a baby softness comes to the skin. The very first application will convince you that this combination is a most effective one for beautifying purposes. It is especially recommended for freckles, tan, sunburn, wrinkles, large pores, rough skin, as it freshens and beautifies the complexion and makes rough, red hands and arms smooth and white. It gives the skin the appearance of youth and whatever success I have had in preserving my complexion I attribute to derwillo and oatmeal. Every woman, no matter what her station in life, can well afford to spend five or ten minutes night and morning in caring for her complexion. There is not enough money in the world to cause me to neglect mine. I have known women over fifty to follow this method and frequently pass for forty. Women thirty years of age look like girls in their teens. Just cut this out so you won't forget it; try it for a week, and at the end of that time you will thank me for publishing my formula."

MAE EDNA WILDER

NOTE—To get the best effect be sure to follow the complete instructions given above. You have only to get derwillo and oatmeal. You need nothing else and it's so simple that anyone can use it, and so inexpensive that any woman can afford it. Derwillo can be obtained in this city from department stores and all up-to-date druggists, including the Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle stores.—ADV.

An Owner Test The Kind That Counts

It is the day-in-and-day-out record of stock cars in the hands of owners that has built up the public appreciation of Overland.

A recent demonstration of Model 90 power, endurance and dependability was an impromptu round trip between Oakland and Los Angeles.

It was a most severe test, over mountain roads, through a blinding storm, with mud hub deep in places. The Model 90 never faltered, never failed!

The performance of the car and the time made is the more remarkable because it is what more than 150,000 Model 90 owners know their cars are capable of.

This run, on the heels of the Oklahoma victory—where Model 90 stock car set the world's Non-Stop High Gear record, 4370 miles in 7 days, readily shows why owners are proud of their cars—and why you will be proud of a Model 90.

Let us show you a duplicate of the cars that made these records.

Buy Transportation!

Don't Buy "Just a Truck"—Select the Type, Size and Style Best Suited to Do Your Work.

There is but one question to consider in buying a motor truck and that is—Will it do your work in the most economical and efficient manner? Is it the right truck for your business.

Contrary to the belief of many truck men, we know that all trucks are good trucks—each capable of doing a certain kind of work—but all trucks are not good for all kinds of work.

In assembling three of the most prominent makes of motor trucks in this one organization, we have placed at your disposal more than a score of types and sizes, each peculiarly fitted for some certain kind of work and from which every transportation need can be filled.

We do not ask you to buy a DENBY, a FULTON or a DIAMOND T truck because it is a Denby, a Fulton or a Diamond T, but because from our experience we know that it is just suited to your individual requirements.

DENBY, FULTON and DIAMOND T trucks need no introduction to the business men of St. Louis and the surrounding territory. Each day over city streets and country roads score after score of these trucks are proving their stamina and efficiency and the correctness of our recommendation to hundreds of owners.

These three great factories, each strong financially through years of success, stand firmly back of their product, insuring you a quality truck in which you can place every confidence.

We have no ax to grind. We do not ask you to consider only internal gear driven trucks if we feel that the worm drive is more suitable to your needs, because our alignment embraces a complete range of sizes in both of these types of drive.

We only ask that you call us in consultation as transportation engineers, allowing us to analyze your hauling problems and give to you our unbiased recommendation as to style and type of equipment which will give you the most efficient and constant service from your investment.

In asking this we can conscientiously say that no other firm in St. Louis is in this enviable position because their judgment must necessarily be more or less biased by the limitations of the line they represent.

TRUCKS REDUCE LOSS IN FARM PRODUCE

Less Delay in Handling Insures Better Condition on Reaching Market.

There are few farmers that have not heard from the commission men in the city that his last shipment of perishables sent in to market arrived in bad shape and certain deduction must be made from the expected returns. The speed and sureness of delivery will do away with much of this in the opinion of Frank Bishop, president of the Bishop Truck and Tractor Co.

Perishable goods shipped by train are often subjected to almost fatal delays and the numerous handlings which are necessary is far from beneficial to the condition in which they reach the market. When "shipped by Truck" handling is reduced to minimum with often times a great saving to the shipper.

With a motor truck the farmer can act as his own railroad within a reasonable distance. Like every other improvement in farm operation, once he has experienced the convenience of the motor truck and he will wonder how he was ever able to be without it.

This is illustrated by the fact that there are few communities in which there is only one truck. When the first one comes into a section the neighbors watch its operation closely with the result that they too are soon driving their stock and produce to the market.

Hardly a fruit season passes but the newspapers chronicle the amount of fruit that goes to waste from lack of transportation facilities. It has been said that in fruit countries a truck in two seasons would pay for itself in saving.

If the manufacturer can effect a saving from 20 to 25 per cent by a truck system of transportation, the farmer can do even better. He will own his own truck; he will have no overhead to account for; he will have no expensive operators to pay every Saturday night; he will have no dividends to earn for his stockholders. He must show a profit for himself only. This he can do and at the same time lessen his labors.

The day of the motor truck on the farm is only breaking. No individual is keener for profits than the farmer and no field offers such opportunities to profit by better means of transportation.

GOVT. APPROVAL GIVES TRUCK A FIRM FOOTING

"The motor truck battled a long time with public opinion for the acknowledgment of superiority over the horse as a means of transportation and finally won the right-of-way of the streets and highways of the world," says O. H. Browning, of the International Harvester Co. Supported by the silent but potent force of public opinion, it remained only for the motor truck to win its way into the personal affections of the business men of every stamp and creed. Sentimental attachments for old ways and temperamental opposition to change were the principal forces arraigned against it.

Since the war the motor truck has won, in a few months, a standing and prestige in the business and commercial world which, without a universal catastrophe and a sudden striding across decades and ages of time, would have required years and years of steady upbuilding.

All it needed to establish itself in a position of impregnable firmness was governmental sanction and approval. Now, even that has come.

In a direct and up-to-the-minute resolution, the Council of National Defense has approved of the widest possible use of the motor truck and requested all organizations and authorities within its control to take the necessary steps for facilitating the universal use and distribution of trucks. The resolution is a document of far-reaching importance in the motor truck industry. You will be enabled to support this resolution in your territory that it may realize success immediately in helping the country and the Government push forward American business preparation behind the lines of war preparation.

The resolution is as follows:

"Resolved that the Council of National Defense approves the widest possible use of the motor truck as a transportation agency, and requests the State Councils of Defense and other State authorities to take all necessary steps to facilitate such means of transportation, removing any regulations that tend to restrict and discourage such use."

SERVICE STATIONS FOR SPRING TROUBLES

The St. Louis Vulcan Spring Co., a new corporation, which has been formed to take over the business in this territory of the Jenkins Vulcan Spring Co., has just been installed in its new quarters at 3042 Locust street.

Hubert Moog, branch manager, who has recently come to St. Louis from Florida, where he had been acting as State manager for Jenkins Vulcan Spring Co., said it is his desire to give motorists the same service in repairing spring troubles as tire dealers do in replacing tires. It is the object of this concern to establish service stations throughout the city and county, he said, in order that the automobilist may have his spring wants attended to with the least delay. A stock of 10,000 springs will be carried continuously in St. Louis, he said, and will include every type of spring for all standard makes of automobiles.

The Results of Advanced Engineering

WHILE the performance of the Marmon 34 may seem exceptional, it is only what might be expected of a car that is scientifically constructed and refined through three years of wide use. Such examples as these are common:

One Marmon owner remarked at the completion of a 4,200 mile tour, "Not even a screw driver was taken from the tool case and the engine never missed a shot."

A wealthy woman, after intimate experience with four Marmon Cars, recently purchased her fifth.

HE WAS CRIPPLED WITH RHEUMATISM

First Bottle of Prescription C-2223 Relieved Aches and Pains.

Is Now Entirely Well.

Mr. W. E. Nabors, 1416 St. Bernard av., New Orleans, La., writes February 18, 1919, as follows:

"I was crippled with rheumatism before taking Prescription C-2223. A few doses gave remarkable relief and before I finished the first bottle, I hardly had an ache or pain. I have recommended Prescription C-2223 to several people and it has cured every one of them."

Prescription C-2223 was first used by a successful specialist in his practice. The prescription produced such remarkable results in the treatment of rheumatism, lumbago, gout, lame back and similar conditions, that its manufacture in a large way was necessary.

Prescription C-2223 contains no opium, morphine, chloral, strychnine or habit-forming drugs. Its use will not derange the stomach.

If you are suffering from rheumatism or similar diseases, go to your druggist today. Buy a $1.50 bottle of this splendid prescription ready prepared. If you are not satisfied with the relief obtained after taking two bottles according to directions, take back the empty bottles and you will get your money.

FEDERAL

DOUBLE CABLE BASE CORD TIRES

36 BY 4½ RIM
FEDERAL

The Double-Cable-Base consists of four twisted steel cables running through the base of the tire, holding it firmly to the rim, preventing side shifting; the toe of the bead can not pinch the tube; the tire cannot blow off the rim, and rim cuts and blow outs just above the rim are prevented.

This firmness means more miles and less repairs and spells economy.

Economy and Satisfaction

Federal Cord Tires are built to stand the brunt of many miles of road wear.

Strong cords run transversely in layers to withstand punctures, each layer impregnated with live rubber to give resiliency and all moulded to form under air pressure to insure compactness and durability.

More miles — easier riding — less trouble — greater satisfaction — less ultimate cost — all are yours when you use Federal Cord Tires.

TRUCK IS CROWDING "DOBBIN" OFF FARM

Food Costs Less and It Can Be Worked 24 Hours a Day.

Right now farmers are taking more interest in motor trucks than ever before and the next few years bids fair to see a large number of trucks join the equipment of farms in all parts of the country. "There is a good reason for this," says F. C. Meyer, president of Republic Motor Truck Co., of Missouri, Sixteenth and Chestnut streets. "The farmers have been awakened to the fact that a motor truck will do more than carry produce to and from the shipping point. A close acquaintance with the passenger automobile has shown the farmers the economical advantage of a motor vehicle and the way in which the farm tractor has demonstrated its utility has offered a splendid example of the gasoline engine as a motive power for work in the fields.

"So, gradually it has come to the farmer that the motor truck is more than a freight bearing automobile. He sees now that a motor truck is, in reality a hauling unit, practically equivalent to a team of horses. Moreover, it is a better, less expensive hauling device than a team.

"Motor trucks will travel in the fields. They will gather the hay and grain and do all the other odd hauling jobs about the farm in addition to covering the longer distances to town and railroad in quick order and at a big saving of time and money over horses. Moreover, motor trucks do not draw directly on the resources of the farm for food.

"During the last year or so the prices for farm products have been such as to make a farmer begrudge the fodder for his live stock. He could better till the soil for products that could be sold and buy gasoline than to feed his teams off from his own land. Many farmers even bought their hay and grain and thought they were money ahead by doing it. Meanwhile they did a little more figuring and then they saw the light on the motor truc.

"Chiefly, the big reason why a motorized farm yields more crops and more profit is because it eliminates waste. With the truck, the speed alone will save money and that is but a single point. In hauling hogs or cattle to market, this same speed eliminates a large percentage of the shrinkage in weight that every cattleman figures on when he takes his animals to market. Then there is the saving in the farmer's own time, which in a rush of the harvest season amounts to something. The truck can be worked 24 hours a day. Also the truck is cheaper to keep than a team of horses in actual cost of the fuel and oil as against the cost of food at the market price. In a word, a truck is the handy man of any farm. It will haul to and from market; in the field or most any other places, and it will do it day in and day out at less cost than horses. It requires less care than a horse, although it cannot be neglected entirely if results are to be obtained."

The maid has left—bid her successor come today through Post-Dispatch WANT ADS.

CALLS AUTOMOBILE A HEALTH GIVER

Michell Co. President Urges Owners to Drive More in Country Air.

"Half the pleasure of the automobile is completely spoiled," was the statement of John Boe, president of Mitchell Auto Corporation of Mo., 3128 Locust st., "because people have the habit of riding in circles on city pavements when they should be on the country roads, accumulating fresh air; getting a new viewpoint on life and calming by country quiet their tormented nerves.

"More than 60 per cent of us take our automobile constitutionals on the city pavements after the day's work. We may move about, but we don't get out of the secondhand air zone. We ride in the same old noise and the same old grime and smoke that we work in.

"Hence automobiling on city pavements brings little physical change and mighty little relaxation.

"Your automobile, if directed by an intelligent and thinking hand, is a health giver. No, I am not healing the world or anything like that, but I assert on my oath, and many will bear me out, that it is easier any time to take 50 barrels of fresh air than 50 barrels of cod liver oil into your system. And you can't get the fresh air that your lungs crave in a city. You must get into the country to get it, and that is what the family automobile is for; to get you and the kiddies where the unfletcherized air circulates.

"Do you suffer from insomnia? Got a poor appetite? Got the blues and feel sort of restless at times? Then take an automobile ride, but for heaven's sake take it in the country. Keep off the main drags. Get out in the rural highways and byways and let the honest air circulate around through the cinders in your lungs.

Dr. Beck Says Hot Sun and Heat Weaken the Eyes

Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50% In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

New York, N. Y.—Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eyestrain or other eye weakness? If so, you will be glad to know that, according to Dr. Beck, there is real hope for you. He says that exposure to sun, smoke, dust or wind often produces eyestrain, and people living in warm climates should frequently bathe the eyes and be careful to protect them from extreme light. This prescription will prove of great value to many eye sufferers. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind: could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain me dreadfully, now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seemed clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto Tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE—Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist, and is one of the few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." TRUCKS TO TAKE WORLD NEWS TO FARMER'S DOOR

To Permit of Much Wider Circulation of Periodicals and Newspapers.

Rural Americans—more than a million of them—are coming into the city. They are going to live with us each day and enjoy our habits, thoughts and pleasures—not in body—but in mind. This is the cause for their burst of joy at the news of the Postoffice Department that motor trucks are to be put on all rural routes.

Moreover, this announcement means that the motor truck is to extend the circulation of the daily newspapers into each of these rural communities. It will put the news of the world on their doorsteps each day—instead of once a week. So that now, the farmer after a hard day's work, can rest back in his easy chair, leisurely read and keep in touch with what is happening throughout the land each day, said James E. Newell, president of the Newell Motor Car Co.

This plan will also permit a much wider distribution of the leading magazines and periodicals, and it will put them within the reach of all rural inhabitants, thus placing them on the same plane regarding the new things of our national life as those who live in the city.

Do not be surprised if you should go out there for a visit to find the men ready, and armed to the teeth with the latest statistics about baseball and football, the leading teams in the big leagues, the latest thing in motor cars, tractors and trucks—what President Wilson said in this or that speech at Paris; also the women ready to discuss about clubs, music, the newest thing in menus, the latest knitting stitch, the best face powder, perfumes and how to remove freckles.

Through reading the daily papers and the best magazines, the rural residents will absorb a great many new ideas about the selling of their products. We may soon see them working up a good business with the city people for their farm products, transacted entirely by mail or telephone. This reading will also teach the farmers that with a motor truck they can bring their products to the city quicker and cheaper than ever before; and this will be welcomed by all the city people, for it will afford them the chance to get food that is fresh, and more of it, and the farmer will not need to store it in his basement and wait for some buyer to come after it.

The benefit to be derived from this big development suggests almost an endless chain of things at first thought. But the big benefit to be derived is this: It will give our country a more unified thought on all the large problems, and, with so many of them coming up these days, in which the help, the interest and the attention of all is demanded, it is the biggest achievement since the birth of the printing press. Thanks to the motor truck for bringing about this progress, for it fulfills a much needed contribution to the education of rural America.

Discussing the effect of the motor truck to this field, one of the Postoffice Department officials stated that from 3000 to 4000 pounds of newspapers are being shipped out of Denver each day by postoffice trucks, and that these papers reach their destination two hours earlier than they could if delivered by any other means.

Each day finds more proof that our education in adapting the motor truck to greater use in the uplifting of our national life is still in the lower grade. It is interesting to watch the new needs spring up and the satisfactory manner with which the motor truck meets each one.

GUSHER OIL WELL DISCOVERED ON ISLAND WEST OF MEXICO

Flow in Shallow Sand Leads Japanese to Take Leases Along Gulf of California.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MONTEREY, Mexico.—Confirmation has been received here of the recent report that oil has been discovered on the Island Baredito, situated just off the port of Altata, on the Pacific coast of Mexico.

According to authentic advices from Altata, the original well has a flow of several thousand barrels a day. It is of the gusher type and the fact that it was brought in at shallow depth leads to the belief that still greater production may be obtained by deeper drilling, just as is the case in the Tampico region.

Japanese interests have obtained large oil lease acreage on adjacent islands and in the coastal region bordering the Gulf of California. The discovery well belongs to a Mexican company.

MAGNESITE QUARRIES CLOSED

Lifting of Austrian Embargo Would Make Importation Cheap.

SPOKANE, Wash.—The fate of a $2,000,000 investment employing 100 men in this district is undecided as the result of the lifting of the embargo on magnesite imports from Austria. The quarries at Valley, Wash., which contributed largely to the American supply of magnesite following the suspension of the foreign supply, have been closed down pending developments.

It is stated that Austrian magnesite can be delivered to eastern steel manufacturers for less than the freight charged on the western American product.

CALIFORNIA'S OIL YIELD IS 99,459,177 BARRELS

Production for 1919 Promises to Be Second Only to That of 1914.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The State Mining Bureau has just issued its figures on oil and gas produced throughout California during 1918, based on sworn statements from all producers.

The total petroleum production was 99,459,177 barrels. This is an increase of 5,025,630 barrels over 1917 and 12,395,982 barrels more than the production of 1916. The production for 1919 promises to be second only to that of 1914, and demonstrates that the contention that regulation hinders development has no basis in fact, according to the State Mining Bureau.

There were no additions of importance during 1918 to the proved oil lands determined by the State Mining Bureau for the assessment of 1917. The total proved acreage is 89,212, showing an increase of 1852 acres over the year 1918.

"GENERAL" COXEY WANTS JOBS FOR U. S. SOLDIERS

WASHINGTON. — Representative Isaac R. Sherwood of Ohio has introduced a bill in the House at the request of Gen. Jacob S. Coxey of "Coxey's army" fame, to provide situations for returning soldiers. The scheme is similar to that long advocated by Gen. Coxey for the construction of state highways throughout the nation, the money to be loaned to the states without interest by the Federal Government.

MOTOR TRUCKS

NOT the price you pay, but the years of service you get, determines a motor truck's cost Economy of operation and maintenance is the determining factor.

You might buy a motor truck at an extremely low price, yet pay dearly in the end. Inversely, you might invest considerable money in a motor truck, yet pay little per ton mile or year of service.

There is no better indication of any article's actual worth than its "forced sale" price.

At a creditor's sale in Chicago recently, fourteen motor trucks were sold at auction. A SERVICE Motor Truck, 22 months old, brought 84⅞% of its original price. The others, used only 10 to 18 months, sold for less than 40% of the first cost.

From the investment standpoint, SERVICE Motor Trucks are "gilt edge." In fact, SERVICE Trucks are such good investments that it is practically impossible to buy a second-hand SERVICE.

The two-ton truck of the St. Louis Paper Can and Tube Company already has covered 18,000 miles on a set of Goodyear Solid Truck Tires

No Chipping or Base Separation in 18,000 Miles of Thrifty Wear

> "We are using Goodyear Solid Truck Tires on our two-ton truck—singles on the front wheels and duals on the rear. During the past fourteen months, we have driven this truck approximately 18,000 miles without any trouble whatsoever. The tires have given us excellent service, and we have not been troubled with chipping or base separation."

> St. Louis Paper Can and Tube Company

CARRYING capacity loads over rough city streets is not the best thing in the world for truck tires.

But the Goodyear Solids on which the St. Louis Paper Can and Tube Company's two-ton truck rides are standing up under this punishment like veterans.

After covering approximately 18,000 miles in fourteen months of continuous running, these rugged tires are daily bettering their mileage record. That they neither have chipped nor separated from their base is a further source of satisfaction.

Not only are endurance and uncommonly big mileages built into every Goodyear Truck Tire, but these tires are so serviced that the buyer receives the maximum value from his investment.

In fact, no truck is Goodyear-equipped until it receives our "Service Before Application." We analyze each trucking problem and then recommend the type and size of Goodyear Truck Tire that will give the longest wear and greatest satisfaction to the user.

Our "Service Of Application" assures intelligent, prompt and expert attention. We carry a complete stock of Goodyear Truck Tires—Solids, Cushions and Pneumatic Cords. We have the facilities, the floor space and enough competent mechanics to take care of several trucks at one time. Tires are mounted at night or on Sunday by appointment.

And our "Service After Application" includes the checking up of wheels for alignment, an inspection of brakes, and the correction of other mechanical faults so wasteful of truck tire life when neglected.

Goodyear Truck Tires have proven economical tires, and the Goodyear Truck Tire Service is a guarantee that these tires will travel far and last long.

GREAT DEMAND NOW IN EUROPE FOR MOTOR CAR

Embargos Prevent Importation of American Cars—Some Foreign Secondhand Cars Selling for Twice First Cost.

There is a strong demand for motor cars in Europe which cannot be satisfied unless the embargoes over there are raised to permit American cars to enter, according to C. C. Hanch, secretary of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, who has just returned from a four months' investigating trip in European countries. The war proved the efficiency of the motor car and motor truck to such a marked degree that a big potential market for utility cars and trucks, especially for cars, exists in Europe. This is evidenced by the strong demand over there now, where secondhand cars are selling at sometimes twice the figure paid for them when new four or five years ago.

England has permitted imports of 50 per cent of five-twelfth of the 1913 importations, but France and Italy have taken no action. Mr. Hanch feels that the countries over there can take all the cars which the home firms can produce and all of the American vehicles which are available above domestic requirements.

"I was greatly surprised to see the expansion of the foreign factories as a result of war needs. Many of them will be able to produce more motor cars than heretofore. I cannot say that they will soon be very strong competitors of the American product, because their factories are not designed nor are their people trained for producing in what we call 'mass production.' The demand for motor cars, however, is so great that not alone all the European product can be sold, but in addition many American cars provided the embargoes are raised which will permit their importation.

"The importers of American cars abroad have made strong pleas for the raising of the embargoes now that the war is over. It is worth noting that there is only one car for every 400 people in France, one for every 225 in England, while there is one for every 18 in this country.

"The labor situation on the other side is acute, with the final outcome a great deal in doubt. The influence of all kinds of labor unions has increased, but I feel that the thinking minds of Europe will ultimately bring about a solution of the differences of opinion between labor and capital.

"The exports of American motor car manufacturers are at the rate of about $125,000,000 a year, which is about 10 per cent of their total business. It is felt that the increasing recognition of the worth of our product will shortly bring a material increase. Last year we shipped to 82 different countries, including 20 cars and three trucks to Iceland.

"The war was a great thing for the automobile industry on the other side, because it demonstrated that the motor car was no longer a luxury but a highly improved form of transportation."

NEW IDEA IN SELLING HEAVY DUTY TRUCKS

W. V. Bailey, president of the Bailey Auto Body and Sales Co., 2113-19 Olive street, in a talk to heavy duty motor truck dealers, advanced a new idea in the sale of trucks that revolutionize truck selling methods.

According to Bailey and the dealers with whom he talked, appearances or the "looks" of a truck are something that many truck dealers are overlooking. Pleasure car dealers realize that many cars are sold on appearance alone—the purchaser being apparently unconcerned as to what make of motor is in the car, or what its starting and lighting equipment is. For this reason, before contracting for handling any make of car, they look particularly to its lines, etc.

The average motor truck dealer today relies entirely upon the mechanical efficiency of his truck only. He makes demonstrations using a bare chassis, which, because of its unfinished and "raw" apearance, gives the prospect the idea that something is wrong with the truck.

Mr. Bailey believes that his principle of appearances would go a long way in stimulating the immediate sale of an auto truck and has therefore been urging dealers for some time to "dress up" their trucks with attractive bodies of various designs.

His idea is to show a prospective buyer not only the chassis, but the body as well; in fact, show the purchaser the body mounted on the truck. This, then, enables him to see his outfit complete—as it will be delivered to him later, and as he will use it in his business. This plan gives the dealer who can show the truck and body complete, every advantage over the dealer who cannot—naturally enabling him to land the sale without difficulty.

A large stock of heavy duty as well as light quality bodies are in stock at their show rooms and enables any dealer to put into effect this new "dress up" truck idea. Many dealers have adopted it as a standard policy.

POLICE FIRE ON DUBLIN CROWD

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, June 6.—One girl and three policemen were wounded last evening by shots which were fired when the police dispersed a crowd which had gathered in front of the Mansion House to celebrate the birthday of James Connolly, "Commandant-General of the Irish Republican Army," who was executed on May 3, 1916, following the Irish revolt.

The gathering had been forbidden by the city authorities.

AMENDMENT TO LAW TO GUARD AGAINST THEFT

Few Owners Have Known of Its Passage by Last Legislature.

Few automobile owners or men in the trade know that the last Legislature passed an amendment to the State motor laws which will soon become a law which changes the method of selling a used car radically. Under the amendment, Section 5 now requires that to make valid or legal a sale or transfer of a motor car from one owner to another, the seller and the buyer must both sign their names on the back of the registration certificate furnished with the original license plates, in the presence of a notary public. This is to be exhibited to any officer of the law to prove the ownership of the car. This is in addition to the usual transfer blanks which must be filled out and sent to the Secretary of State with a fee of 50 cents for making the transfer of ownership.

It is provided that in case these conditions are not met both the seller and the buyer can be fined $50 and the informer, if not an officer of the law, gets one-half the fine.

The purpose of the amendment was to put one more check on the stealing of automobiles and their sale to innoecnt third parties. Under this law there can be no "innocent third party."

During the first five months of 1919, the Post-Dispatch printed 10,800 Musical "Wants"—1501 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

Autos Confiscated in Georgia.

"Automobile thieves are stealing cars in Georgia and using them for the illicit transportation of liquor. When they fall into the revenue agent's hands the automobiles are confiscated regardless of the fact that the dealer may hold an equity on such a car and irrespective of the fact that the dealer knows nothing about the theft and the owner, who was not only powerless to prevent the use to which his car was put, is also powerless to prevent the wrong and injury to him when the car is stolen," said Harry G. Moock of St. Louis, business manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, at an organization meeting of Georgia automobile dealers held at Macon, Ga., Friday night.

Moock said: "Because of this condition insurance companies are refusing to write theft insurance in Georgia, and the automobile buyer never knows but that the moment after he has purchased a $2000 car that he will ever get to use it and, as a consequence, the dealer is confronted with a new sales resistance.

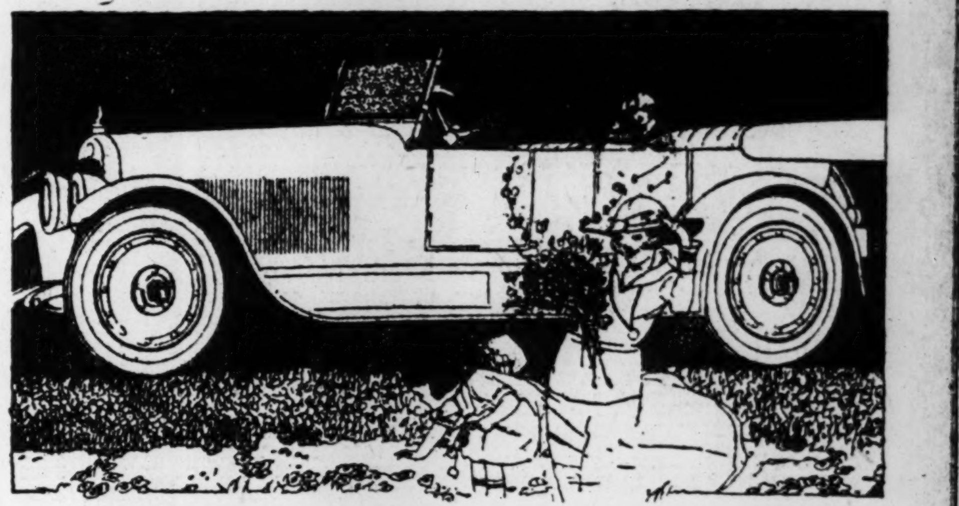
"THE GOLD STANDARD OF VALUES"



JORDAN

The New Silhouette—from France

From France—the land of soul and sunshine, where ideals are never forgotten and beauty is necessary to each day's living—has come the inspiration for the new Jordan Silhouette.

It affords the Continental kind of comfort—mental and physical. You may lounge deep-seated as they do in other lands. Knees are not too high. Wheel is placed right. Pedals and arm rests where you want them.

There is a cocky front seat cowl—slanting sport windshield—perfectly flat top-edge without the slightest bevel—certainly most refreshing in these days.

The whole body is a little more slender with a new French angle at the dash. Mouldings are smartly rectangular. Doors are broad-opening in a full half circle.

A cordovan leather boot and saddle bag is built into the tonneau. Top is carefully fitted. Hardware substantial and artistic.

And the Silhouette is the lightest and best balanced car on the road—for its wheelbase.

Furnished in four or seven passenger capacity in either Brewster Green or Burgundy Old Wine.

COMPARES WORK WITH OTHERS FOR BEST IDEAS

Few Lines of Business but What Can Improve With Study.

"Finding out how the other fellow works it" is a good idea and one which can be observed with profit by the business of which a delivery system forms a more or less important part, according to Lynn B. Dudley, advertising manager of the Federal Motor Truck Co. of Detroit, who spent several days in St. Louis this week.

"There are few lines of business that cannot improve their delivery system by careful study of their own business and comparison with the methods used by others," said Mr. Dudley. "Many times valuable ideas can be obtained and incorporated in the system that will greatly increase the efficiency of the operating unit.

"One good instance of savings that could have been effected was recently brought to our attention in the case of a New York contractor hauling materials for concrete road construction.

"Loading was formerly done entirely by hand, requiring 20 minutes to load two tons. Teams cost $7 per day and made four trips, hauling a little over two tons per trip, an average distance of three miles. This made the commercial ton-mile cost about 29 cents.

"A two-ton truck was put on the job and made eleven trips, making a total of 66 ton-miles. The truck cost $12 a day and thus worked for 18 cents per ton-mile, a fine reduction—saving 11 cents per ton-mile and hauling 22 tons per day as compared to the eight tons of the team.

"Yes, this was fine, but had the truck been loaded by overhead bins, for instance, the savings would have been much greater. Also the tons hauled would have been greatly increased.

"It required 3 hours 40 minutes to load for the 11 trips. Unloading time was kept low by the power dump body with which the truck was equipped. If a loading device had been used the truck could easily have been loaded in two minutes—a total of 22 minutes for the 11 trips. Let us allow 30 minutes, which would easily care for the loading time. This would mean a saving of 3 hours 10 minutes.

"The truck averaged 35 minutes running time per trip. In the 3 hours 10 minutes it could make five trips and still have some time for delays. This would make a total of 16 trips, 32 tons, 96 ton-miles for the day's work.

"The cost per ton-mile would then be a little over 12 cents. This means a saving of 17 cents per ton-mile over the horse method—more than 50 per cent, besides having hauled 24 more tons. This would also mean a reduction of 6 cents per ton-mile—33 1-3 per cent over that of the truck when loaded by hand, besides hauling 10 tons additional.

"No doubt, you will say this does not apply to your business—but how to know? Do you know just what your truck does each day—just what it costs you to operate? A study of your business and the methods of others may prove very profitable to you."

CALIFORNIA TO RAISE $40,000,000 FOR ROADS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 8.—A good roads program to cost $40,000,000 is outlined in bonds for this sum to be submitted to the people of California in the next State election. Chambers of commerce, automobile clubs and commercial and civic organizations generally are advocating the issue, which leads to the belief that the bonds will carry and place California in the lead of all states in the Union in improving its highway system.

According to a recent report of the United States Department of Agriculture, California and Texas, the two largest states, were tied for first place in road improvement plans. If the proposed $40,000,000 is voted, California expects to lead.

Already the State has spent $35,000,000 for its highways, and in addition to this fund there are many county appropriations for road improvements.

According to Government figures, Texas will spend $20,000,000; West Virginia, $16,000,000; Iowa, $15,000,000; New York, $12,000,000; Illinois, $9,000,000; Louisiana, $4,000,000; Colorado, $3,900,000; North Dakota, $3,000,000—all within the next 12 months.

The advantage of good roads is appreciated more each year in Southern California, which took the initiative in the Southwest and is credited with leading in highway systems in the country. Since the signposting of the National Old Trails road by the Automobile Club of Southern California, making easy the road for transcontinental auto parties, it is shown that since 1912 the number of autos coming overland into Southern California increased from 113 to 4240 parties.

Now As Never Before
You Need the Encyclopaedia Britannica
Handy Volume Issue

There probably is not a man, woman or child among the 100,000,000 inhabitants of the United States upon whom the war has not had a profound effect. Great reforms are being hastened and this will be a better and cleaner world after the ordeals of fire through which it has passed. The participation of the United States as never before in the world's affairs has brought to the people new interests not limited to the neighborhood, town or city in which they live, but interests that are world wide. A miracle has been wrought in men's minds, a miracle in which there is a tremendous thirst for knowledge, a knowledge which is absolutely necessary today, as never before. Where can people find correct, authoritative and comprehensive information on the many different subjects in which they are interested, as a consequence of this awakening? They naturally turn to the wonderful storehouse of knowledge—the world's greatest guide to correct and authoritative information—The Encyclopaedia Britannica. The Britannica furnishes practical, detailed and authoritative articles of great value to the business man, to the manufacturer, to the importer, to the worker in the many new industries. The Britannica will give a foundation for study of subjects which will be uppermost in our minds for years to come. The Britannica is the great work of useful information. It is the book for Americans today who are waking up to new thoughts, new work and new interests.

A Complete Library of Knowledge

But this marvelous work with its 41,000 separate articles is more than a guide for the enterprising business man of the United States, fitting him to be a citizen of the world—a world merchant. The Britannica is a complete library of knowledge on every subject. It discusses in a way that you can understand every branch of science, industry, literature, art, religion, inventions and engineering; history and race development; wars and peace; architecture, astronomy, chemistry, sociology, education, steam, electricity, geology and geography, biography, law and physics. You and your family will find in the Britannica a liberal education. In answer to the hundred questions which every day come to your mind and to your wives' and children's minds—it will tell you more about everything than you can get from any other source.

What Is Before Us?

We are in a transitional period between war and peace. There will be many serious post-war problems which will demand settlement. Do you know what the tendencies are in our industrial life? Does peace send the prices of commodities up or down? Will wages go up or down? Will money be "easy" or scarce? Have nations heretofore faced bankruptcy or have they repudiated their war debts? Will there be a tremendous immigration to this country or will there be emigration? Are you inclined to be stampeded with fear of what will happen when peace is finally concluded or are you sitting down and studying the facts of past cases that were somewhat similar? Are you familiar with what happened after other wars—in England after the Napoleonic campaigns—in the United States after the Civil War—to France, to Germany and to Neutrals after the Franco-Prussian War? Do you understand the questions that come up in the Peace Conferences—geographical, political, industrial? Are you equipped to know what is justice and right in dealing with Germany; also with regard to the "new nations" of Europe?

This wonderful book of knowledge—the new Encyclopaedia Britannica—literally brings the whole world to the reader. It tells all about foreign countries, their people, their history, their progress, their resources, their imports and exports. An hour a day with the Britannica will give you as clear and comprehensive an idea of the rest of the world as we Americans now have of the States of the Union.

Woman Needs the Britannica As Never Before

The war has changed the status of women industrially and politically. By the necessities of war women were forced to take the places of men in our industries and they successfully filled positions of great responsibility. The mother must keep abreast of the great thoughts and movements that are taking place throughout the world, that are vitally affecting her. Woman today in her greater and more important place in the world needs the Encyclopaedia Britannica as never before—she needs it to teach her how to fulfill her new status as a citizen—how to make her more efficient in the business world and, as a mother, to make herself broader and a bigger woman so she can bring her children up according to the highest standards.

Cheaper Transportation!

Traffic Specifications:

Red Seal Continental 3¾x 5 motor; Covert transmission; multiple disc clutch; high tension magneto; 4-piece cast shell, cellular type radiator; drop forged front axle with Timken roller bearings; Russel rear axle, internal gear, roller bearings; semi-elliptic front and rear springs; 6-inch U-channel frame; Standard Fisk tires, 34x 3½ front, 34x5 rear; 133-inch wheelbase; 122-inch length of frame behind driver's seat; oil cup lubricating system; chassis painted, striped and varnished; driver's lazy-back seat and cushion regular equipment. Pneumatic cord tire equipment at extra cost.

Chassis $1395
f. o. b. St. Louis

That's what every man who has hauling to do is interested in, whether it is railroads, motor-trucks or teams.

When you buy a Traffic Truck you have purchased something more than simply a motor-truck—you have secured cheaper transportation—cheaper in dollars and cents than the cost of hauling with any other known carrier regardless of its type or character.

It costs twice as much to haul with teams as it does with a Traffic. The Traffic hauls a 4000-lb. load 14 miles in one hour for 30 cents worth of gasoline and negotiates any hill with power to spare.

No conveyance, mechanical or otherwise has equaled the Traffic for economy of operation or surpassed its performance.

The Traffic is the lowest priced 4000-lb. capacity truck in the world.

It is built of standardized units of recognized value, such as Red Seal Continental Motor—Russel Internal Gear Drive—Timken Bearings—Covert Transmission, etc., etc. All units used in its construction are the accepted standards that enter only into the making of a quality truck.

And the Traffic sells for only $1395—a price which saves you hundreds of dollars in first cost—a price you can afford to pay for cheaper transportation and a truck that is solving hauling problems profitably.

Traffic Trucks cost less because we are the largest exclusive builders of 4000-lb. capacity trucks in the world and confine our production to a truck of one design and one capacity.

Records reveal that the 4000 lbs. capacity of the Traffic is better fitted for all forms of hauling than any other type of truck, and the Traffic is proving it daily on the job all over the country—in foreign countries and right here in St. Louis where it is built.

Two Traffic Trucks with full capacity loads will participate in a rapid transportation demonstration on Monday, June 9th, covering a distance of 350 miles. Many trucks from other makers are entered. The trip will be from St. Louis to Quincy by way of Missouri and return to St. Louis by way of Illinois. Stops will be made at towns along the route to exhibit them.

You are always invited to come to the factory and see the Traffic built and perform. Or phone for a demonstration and a Traffic will come to you.

"Beware of Too Much Efficiency," Dr. Adler Warns; "It Wrecked Germany"

Noted Ethical Society Leader Says It Will Take All the Human Elasticity Out of a Nation—Capital Urged to Give Labor Voice in Its Productive Management—Free Discussion Our Antidote

CULTURE—Doing one thing well, and being interested in other things because of their relation to it.

Dr. Felix Adler of New York, leader of the Ethical Culture movement, while in St. Louis last week, gave this definition of culture, which he makes the objective in education.

Dr. Adler has been coming to St. Louis for these 30-odd years, ever since his former co-worker, the late Walter L. Sheldon, became the first leader of the organization which now meets in the building named the Sheldon Memorial.

Here, as in New York, he has been heard gladly by those who prefer what is sometimes called light without heat, but may better be termed seriousness without bombast, and by those who do not require a religious adjunct to their moral and intellectual teaching.

> Unrest is due only in part to the desire for higher wages. In great part, angry feeling is due to suppression. Let expression be adopted and the virus of passion engendered by suppression will have its antidote.— DR. FELIX ADLER.

Dr. Adler, who calls himself a pessimist as to facts and an optimist as to possibilities, is, above all, an idealist. This appears in his attitude toward the league of nations proposal. While some public men are objecting to the league as being an ideality, Dr. Adler condemns it because it does not meet his ideal of a league representing the peoples, rather than the rulers, of the world.

Government Not Representative

His ideal for the United States and at the same time his prescription for the nation's immediate needs, is cultural education, free discussion and a more representative government.

The distinction between that culture which is Dr. Adler's objective, and kultur, was drawn by the noted visitor in an interview at the Washington Hotel.

"The Germans obtained efficiency by their methods," he said, "but it was the narrowest sort of efficiency, and they paid too high a price for it.

"They determined, by scientific and technical tests, what niche a man would fit into. Their people were not supposed to have opinions on general matters.

"Their disaster was due to this false idea of efficiency. The military caste, which had been trained to know all about war, gave no one else a voice. It was their job, and they were the only ones who could do it. They did their job, and they undid the country.

"We in America must avoid repeating the mistakes of our recent adversaries. We must not cultivate efficiency at the sacrifice of general brightness and mental alertness.

"The training which we give must not deaden the elasticity of the mind. President Lowell of Harvard has said, 'One thing well, and a little of everything." That is another way of saying, 'A specialty and a smattering of other things.' That leads to dilettantism. We must correct such a tendency by means of all-around interest, by integration of interest and mental unity, rather than a narrow expertness."

Dr. Adler spoke of the work of the free vocational art school, which is part of the work which has been carried on in New York under the control of the Ethical Culture Society. Plans for a vocational school of commerce are being made.

Preserve Elasticity of Mind

"We start vocational education at 16," he said, "and the course is planned so that the dominant interest shall receive special attention. The art student finds other subjects linked with art. He finds that he must learn etymology, science, economics.

"The student of art learns chemistry because of its relation to etching. Physics is found to be connected vitally with light and shade, or chiaroscuro. Science is related to drawing, anatomy to the portrayal of the body, and commerce has its close connection with art, from the fact that art has always flourished most greatly in commercial centers—Miletus, Rome, Venice, Florence, Antwerp.

"The problem of bringing up the standard of school teaching, especially in the rural districts, is one for all our people. I do not know of conditions in Missouri, but in Massachusetts there are more than 2000 teachers who went directly from high school to take their positions, with no training in the work of teaching. A high school course does not make a teacher. The art of imparting knowledge must be taught, as well as the mere knowledge itself."

(Dr. Adler was informed, in reply to this remark, that the State of Missouri is not boasting of its standing in education, but is using publicity in the effort to raise that standing. The Production Bureau of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, recently organized, has taken this for its immediate task. It is reminding the people of Missouri that the State stands thirty-second in a general average of expenditures for education, and it is showing what the deficiencies are, and what they mean in the training of the individual child).

"More Millinery Than Military."

Dr. Adler, who has for years been identified with Columbia University, is a member of the Reconstruction Commission appointed by Gov. Smith of New York. He and other educators on this commission recently made an unfavorable report on a plan to introduce military training into high schools.

"We found," he said, "that such training was likely, in the case of high school boys, "to be more millinery than military."

In his view of the industrial situation, Dr. Adler does not show any great pessimism even as to the facts of today.

"We are less in danger of revolutionary movements than is any other country," he said. "This is both because our resources are abundant and because the temper of our people is predominantly sanguine.

"Our captains of industry are showing a disposition to estimate the human factor at its proper value. Here, too, the chief need is for more liberal expenditures for education, not in a narrow sense, but as embracing all the agencies which tend to elevate human nature.

"It may be inaccurate to speak of democracy in industry, for our industrial plants, like our governments, must come to that slowly. But in England, under the auspices of the Government, labor has been called into council, and its voice is heard on matters affecting industrial conditions.

"A man in charge of the employment bureau of a large plant told me that the company had installed a suggestion box and invited contributions from the men, and that while some of the suggestions had been of value, the best thing about the plan was that it gave each man a sense of being part of the whole, and of having an influence. It brought the idea of government with the consent of the governed into industry.

Free Discussion Antidote for Mob

"Unrest is due only in part to the desire for higher wages. In great part angry feeling is due to suppression. Let expression be adopted, and the virus of passion engendered by suppression will have its antidote.

"The lot of the poorer classes can be made more endurable and pleasing in many ways. Welfare work, on an adequate scale, and community care for the recreational needs of the people, will put a gleam of joy into the common life, that will help to dispel many clouds and fogs.

"Free discussion is the best antidote for the sort of suggestion that results in the mob spirit. All business men who use advertising know the power of suggestion. In our country, this power is used for good and for evil.

"As I went about a few weeks ago, I could not help seeing everywhere the letter V, with the words 'Victory' and 'Invest.' That was a worthy cause of suggestion, for the help of the nation. There are other uses of the same force which are unworthy and dangerous.

"The influence of the press on thought is overwhelming. It is like a fireman's hose. The world is ruled by journalists—Clemenceau and Northcliffe, who was so long the power behind Lloyd George, are examples.

"Public forums are needed, to correct the possible abuses of these influences of suggestion. In such a forum, the representatives of unpopular opinions should be heard. I do not mean that violence should be encouraged. The appeal to passion, to the psychology of the mob, whether it is a hoodlum mob or a mob of gentlemen, should be clearly distinguished from the free expression of opinion, based on argument.

"One who finds himself stirred to passionate feeling should examine himself, and consider whether it is his own feeling or merely an implanted suggestion, of the sort that impels the acts of a mob. A mob acts on suggestion, not on opinion."

As long ago as 1912, before the Soviet idea of government was known in this country, Dr. Adler declared that the national and state legislative bodies should be made more representative of the people, and he suggested representation by trades and professions.

He still thinks such a change desirable. "We are ruled by lawyers," he says. Proportional representation, he believes, might be a step toward occupational representation. Switzerland has proportional representation, which provides for

How Navy Prepared for Transatlantic Flight Told by Lieut.-Commander Read, Who Took NC-4 Across

Plans Were First Laid in February and, Though Many Changes in Details Were Found Necessary, the Determination to Make the Flight as Soon Before or After May 14 as Weather Indications Were Favorable Was Never Altered—Actual Start From Trepassey Was Made on May 16.

The following article, cabled from London exclusively to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World by Lieutenant-Commander Albert C. Read of the NC-4, relates in detail the elaborate preparations that were made prior to the beginning of the successful transatlantic flight and gives a clear idea of the enormous amount of detail work that was necessary before the three NC planes hopped off from Rockaway Point.

LONDON, June 2.

THE work of preparation for the navy's attempt at a transatlantic flight can be divided into two parts—first, the preparation of the seaplanes themselves, and, second, the preparation of plans for conducting the actual flight. The first of these propositions I will only touch lightly upon, as most of the details were given out prior to starting the flight.

While the NC planes were originally designed with the probable idea of getting them into the war zone by the air route, nothing definite was done toward actual accomplishment of the transatlantic flight until late in the fall of last year. Shortly after the armistice was signed the idea took definite form, with the approval of the project by the Navy Department, and a little later by the assigning of Commander J. T. Powers to the duty of making the necessary preparations.

It was decided early in the game to use four Liberty motors instead of three, on account, principally, of increasing the possible radius of light and for greater reliability. The increase of radius was realized because the fourth motor furnishes power enough not only to enable the plane to carry its own weight and the additional gasoline and oil necessary to run it, but also a larger amount of fuel for all the motors.

The greater reliability was realized for, if one motor should fail completely, even with a heavy load the flight could still be maintained, while if one should fail in the three-motored job under a corresponding load there would be no choice but to land. Further, with light load conditions, such as would obtain near the end of a long run, the four-motored installation could span the push of even two of its propellers and still stay aloft, while two dead propellers out of three would necessitate the immediate transformation of the "monster of the air" into a small and insignificant and inefficient "ship of the sea."

Chose Straight-Drive Motors

Then the question of whether to use the "straight drive" on the "geared" Libertys provoked much discussion. In the "straight drive" the propeller is secured directly to the extension of the crankshaft and, of course, turns with exactly the same speed of revolution as the engine shaft itself. The "geared" engine has the disadvantage of being heavier, but has the advantage of delivering more power and being more economical.

This debate was finally decided in favor of the "straight drive," however, on account of one "disadvantage" not mentioned above—that of its unknown reliability. And to those who were most anxious to show the big planes in European waters "reliability" loomed larger than all other requirements. Incidentally, later experiments have proved the wisdom of this choice.

And thus the rebuilding of the NC-1 and the redesigning and building of the NC-2, the NC-3 and the NC-4 went on. Many conferences of the officers concerned were held and many changes made, but the date set on Feb. 24, on which it was planned to make this start, that of May 14 or as soon thereafter as the weather conditions would permit, was never changed.

NC-1 Mishap a Setback

The partial wrecking of the NC-1 by drifting ashore in a storm was a serious setback and reduced the possible number of planes to start on the big flight from four to three. While it did not delay the completion of the other planes, it did act to delay the obtaining of valuable data required to show the gasoline consumption per mile, the speed under various load conditions and similar information.

Diagram showing how the NC-4's crew was quartered during the transatlantic flight.

This description of the work of preparing the NC seaplanes for this trip to Europe falls far short of indicating the immense amount of detail that had to be worked out, the numerous tests of parts that had to be held and all the troublesome features that had to be adjusted. All bureaus of the Navy Department, the inspectors of aircraft and the manufacturers worked together and worked hard. The result was a type of seaplane that embodied the best features of the smaller flying boats and that filled the crews with confidence that the planes were able, with ordinary luck, to cross the ocean safely.

All Filled With Confidence

Operation plans for the actual flight were made with a view to providing every practicable means of enabling the planes to keep their course and of aiding them in case of a forced landing at sea. This was to be no "do or die" effort. Though there must be, in a project of this kind, some doubt about the "doing," no one considered the "dying" as more than a very remote possibility—any more than there would be in a flight from Chicago to New York.

The plans were so carefully laid and so complete that all were filled with confidence that they would be well looked out for in case of misfortune. In the first place the choice of routes—Newfoundland to the Azores and to Lisbon or Spain—was made because it apepared to be easier of accomplishment, hence safest. The Newfoundland-Ireland route could not be made with the full capacity of the NC's without favorable winds. The route chosen could be.

Another route proposed was that from Rockaway to a point at sea at the limit of the flying radius; refueling there from a ship and then on to the Azores and Lisbon. There were several arguments against this route; doubt was expressed as to the practicability of replenishing gasoline and oil at sea except under ideal conditions, and the point was made that the longest leg would be started first, while to jump off from Newfoundland allowed an opportunity to eliminate defects that might show up on the comparatively short hops to Halifax and from there to Newfoundland. The northern route, via Greenland and Ireland, was not considered very seriously, because it is practicable for only a short period in the year.

Mass of Detail Work Done

Three classes of ships were used: "Base ships," to be at the different stopping places, in order to provide temporary quarters for the crews, to provide extra aviation mechanics to assist in any repair work found necessary, and to carry gasoline, oil and numerous tools, spare parts and supplies that might possibly be needed; "patrol" or "escort" vessels (destroyers) to be stationed at intervals of 50 miles along the course, to aid the seaplanes in keeping track of their positions and to render assistance if necessary, and "meteorological" ships (battleships, five in number) equipped with powerful radio outfits and stationed at points about 400 miles off the track to take and report weather observations in order to assist the official weather prophets in telling us what to expect, especially in regard to the wind.

A great amount of detail work was entailed in getting all the odds and ends of special equipment and supplies together, in distributing this to the various ships and, in some cases, in fitting the ships so that they could take the materials. For this some of them had to go to a navy yard. Two small flying boats were sent on the Newfoundland base ship Aroostook, in order to give the pilots a bird's-eye view of the rather restricted area in which the getaway would have to be made and to try the air while making the same course that would be used later in starting off the big fellows.

This was a comparatively small matter, but navy yard work was necessary before the planes could be received on deck, for although they are "small" when compared with the NC's, they are "big" when resting on the Aroostook's narrow deck and are most unwieldy to handle.

Besides the strictly aviation spare parts and supplies furnished the "base ships," all of the 68 destroyers used in connection with the flight had to be supplied with special apparatus for day and night signaling and with special radio apparatus for the purposes of communication to and from the planes.

Each destroyer that might be in the "night zone" of the Newfoundland-Azores leg was given star-shells to fire in its anti-aircraft guns. With the help of these shells, which are designed to be fired high in the air and then explode and ignite a parachute light of approximately 800,000 candle power, and with searchlights, it was figured that the planes would have a hard time missing the ships at night unless the weather was thick.

Great Array of Apparatus

Then each meteorological ship (including every fourth destroyer) required a special outfit for obtaining detailed information required for the weather men to form their estimate of the situation.

In order that the "air" navigator could obtain the best information as to his progress and his position at any time, he was furnished not only with a compass and the greater part of the equipment of a "sea" navigator, such as chronometers, sextants, charts, etc., but with other special devices—for example, drift indicators, to obtain the effects of the wind as affecting the actual course made good and the speed; ground flares to drop into the water and which gave off a bright flame for night work or a heavy smoke for day work, in order to furnish a stationary point to sight on in using the drift indicators, and special short methods of working out positions by observations and the sun and stars.

In taking these observations it is necessary to obtain the vertical angle between the horizon and the heavenly body observed—easy on a ship in ordinary weather, but quite another matter from a seaplane, as the horizon at an altitude of only a few hundred feet disapepars entirely, lost in the haze. Therefore, our sextants were fitted with "bubble levels" and then they furnished their own horizon. It took many weeks before a satisfactory "bubble" was obtained which would give accurate results.

Could Spin a Web of Talk

A "radio compass" or "direction finder" was carried in addition to the two radio sets, one of which was for the transmission of messages above 200 miles, and the other for shorter distances. Telephoning with the small set could also be carried on between the planes. Then there was a telephone system connecting each member of the crew, and one of our radio experts had the bright idea of switching this system on with the interplane radio telephone, so that one skipper could talk directly with another skipper in another plane, without having to depend on relaying through the operators.

The contingency of a forced landing at night was considered. Experiments were conducted, and flares to be set off by pushing a button on the pilot's "dashboard" were mounted under the bow in order to illuminte the surface of the water in time for the pilot to "level-off" and effect a safe landing.

Plunkett and Lansing Added

For food, coffee in thermos bottles and sandwiches were provided and in addition a number of "emergency rations." In trying the latter it was the unanimous opinion that while they undoubtedly had the theoretical food value required with the minimum of weight and space (the label said so), it would require a considerable emergency before the containers would be opened.

Our clothes were the standard navy one-piece leather suits worn outside of anything the individual might choose to wear. One officer favored wearing two of these suits, on the theory that if he was too warm he could "shed," but if too cold he would only "shiver."

Thus far I have only touched lightly upon the general disposition and movements of the assisting ships. This was all arranged by the commander of the destroyer force, Admiral Plunkett, the same officer who did such excellent work when in charge of the navy "railroad guns" on the western front in France. He sent his chief of staff, Capt. Laning, to Washington to arrange the details. Capt. Laning arrived, obtained from Commander Towers the general outlines of what was wanted, rolled up his sleeves and plunged into the work with a vim that set the pace for the rest of us.

"Smoking" and "Torching"

The first thing he did was to give us twice as many destroyers as we had asked for. All the ships connected with the transatlantic flight project, of whatever type, were to be turned over temporarily to the commander of the destroyer force. It was therefore necessary to arrange for the movements of all of them. Not only was it necessary to allot each ship to its particular position, but dates of departure of each individual ship must be arranged so that it should arrive in its position in plenty of time. Arrangements had to be made for refuelling some ships that did not have sufficient steaming radius to make her stations and return, and, finally, very careful instructions were issued to cover exactly what each ship was to do and how and when.

All probable contingencies were covered. As an example of this, there is quoted below a few paragraphs from the "operation orders" issued to all concerned:

"When a station ship receives a report that a plane has passed the next station to the westward it will commence 'smoking' in daytime and con-

More Mileage
Proclamation

Be it known to every automobile owner and driver in the United States—to Goodrich Dealers—that Goodrich Safety Treads stand ready to deliver 6,000 miles, and Silvertown Cords 8,000, under proper usage.

That is, every SAFETY TREAD in use, and in a Goodrich Dealer's store, is underwritten to be adjusted at 6,000 miles—and every SILVERTOWN CORD at 8,000 miles.

The new adjustment is based upon what Goodrich knows its tires will do, and Goodrich knows from miles and miles of road-testing that Goodrich Tires are the strongest, the best, the rubber industry has produced.

They are so good that Goodrich increases its adjustment mileage to show its patrons they cannot afford not to share in their matchless service and security.

minority groups in the legislative body, and such a system was being advocated in France when the war began.

Calls League Undemocratic.

In stating his objection to the league of nations plan, Dr. Adler said:

"The league is not democratic. Its council is a body of delegates appointed by Premiers and agents of the executive.

"Two years ago I published an address pleading for an international parliament, the members of which should be elected by national parliaments. The Labor party in England has indorsed the same idea.

"I can see no hope of enduring peace through intrusting to a few men so large a measure of power and influence on the destiny of mankind. No four men, and no 40 men, are big enough for such a responsibility.

"While I am disappointed in the form of the league, I am dismayed at seeing the principle of self-determination set aside so tranquilly in the case of Shantung.

"Mr. Wilson, in his writings of former years, pointed out that the executive can commit the people to measures from which they cannot later recede; that he can use his great discretionary powers to create a situation where the people have no choice as to a course of action.

"I am not greatly comforted by Lincoln's saying that you cannot fool all the people all the time. While fooling all the people some of the time, you can render the people helpless.

"I do not wish to imply that the people are now being fooled, but the wisest of executives may err, and some errors might be fatal. I believe that the reduction of the power of the executive, by constitutional methods, is one of the needs of our political development."

tinue to 'smoke' until the last plane passes or is accounted for.

"At night ships will 'torch' (a brilliant flame, with smoke, made by improper firing of boilers) and searchlights will be turned on at once and kept on, trained directly into the true wind (knowledge of the direction of the wind at night is of great value to the flyer) until planes have passed or been accounted for.

"In case of mist or thick weather searchlights shall sweep the heavens in a vertical plane into the true wind until plane reports that the vessel has been sighted, when the beam will be steadied level. At night ships will also commence to fire star shells from three-inch guns at five-minute intervals and continue firing until plane reports sighting. Star shells to be fired to north on maximum elevation with fuses set for five seconds, unless plane requests otherwise.

"Should a station ship be 'off station' during the flight, due to answering an S O S or some other emergency, it will make smoke or 'torch' and fire star shells, as above directed, but will inform planes as directed in special 'communication instruction,' that ship is out of position.

Speeding to the Rescue.

"When an S O S call is received from a plane the two station ships nearest the indicated position of the plane shall proceed to her assistanee with all possible speed, unless notified otherwise. Upon arrival, if repairs are possible, lend all assistance. If repairs are not possible, group S. O. P. (senior officer present) shall designate one destroyer to take the plane in tow and proceed to the nearest port. If the plane is too damaged to be towed, the destroyer, after receiving the personnel, shall use every effort to salvage the engine and equipment.

"Utilize destroyers to the best advantage in an S O S emergency. If an S O S call comes at night destroyers will keep brilliantly illuminated while proceeding to the plane, will 'torch,' will keep searchlight sweeping the heavens and will keep a bright lookout for Very signal, the color of which will indicate the character of the forced landing and the condition of the plane.

"If, while off station for any purpose a destroyer sights a plane in the air, it will signal the duty it is on and if requested will send to plane the true bearing and distance from the destroyer's then position to the nearest station, etc., etc."

The problem of getting all the reports through, especially those of meterological observations, was worked out to the minutest detail. Practically all reports were by radio and, as it is pretty well known in these modern days, two or three messages can only be sent at one time in the airplane area, and to do even this requires a different "tuning" of the radio sets. Therefore it was necessary that the instructions include means of preventing the possibility of one ship "outtalking" another ship which might have an important message to deliver.

Great Mass of Instructions.

Not to go further into details it took 17 pages of closely typewritten official size paper to tell the whole story of 'radio communications" instructions. As the weather information desired was far more extensive than the ships had ever before obtained, special instructions were issued to cover the operation of the meterological apparatus and the codes necessary to transmitting in a few words the complicated data recorded. This alone took 13 pages.

The plan of the formation of the planes themselves, the rules for maneuvering, etc., were made as simple as possible. Eventss in the air happen quickly, and hampering the skipper and pilots with complicated orders would be worse than "Gets-It" Peels My Corns Off!

Any Corn or Callus Comes Off Peacefully, Painlessly. Never Fails.

It's almost a picnic to get rid of a corn or callus the "Gets-It" way. You spend 2 or 3 seconds putting on 2 or 3 drops of "Gets-It," about as simple as

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—ADV.

Is It Your Nerves?

How often you hear the remark, "It's my nerves!" Many strong appearing men and women fret because they do not feel as well as formerly, yet their physicians tell them they have no organic disease. HOW THE NAVY PREPARED FOR BIG FLIGHT OVER SEA giving no orders at all. In a nutshell the idea was to follow the leader, and, when necessary to do otherwise, to do it first and report fterwards.. The seaplane flag-ship would lay the course and set the speed, the others, on each side, adjusting their movements accordingly.

The contingency of suddenly running into fog without warning had to be provided for and to eliminate any chance of a collision all planes were to start to climb out of it, and those on the flanks would shift their courses slightly away from the "flag" to obtain a more comfortable distance from her.

Thus, from the foregoing, some idea may be gained of the extent of, and the care employed in planning for, the project of crossing the Atlantic Ocean in a "heavier than air" craft. As it appeared to be the first effort of its kind by any Government, the problem was to make the crossing with every safeguard provided against the loss of personnel or of material. In time of war a great deal would have been omitted and very few ships employed to assist. But in peace times the navy always pursues the policy of "safety first."

Fewer Precautions in Future.

If the flight were successful, naval aviation, the Navy Department and the whole country would receive the plaudits of the entire world for accomplishing a notable feat in the progress of science; the mass of the people would be made to realize the importance of aviation as a valuable arm of the naval service, the way would be blazed for others to follow and thus act to promote a commercial transatlantic service.

Some may say that no commercial company will ever go to the expense of keeping such an expensive patrol, or of providing such compulcated equipment. We agree. And we do not think it will be necessary after something is learned by actual experience. For instance: A variety of means were provided for finding and keeping the correct course to steer, but no one knows by experience which one would be most suited to the purpose. That was one of the things to learn on this trip. A second flight across would see a much simpler layout, with theelimination of all the safeguards except those found to be best and most reliable.

Some flyers might say there was no sportsmanship in flying across after making such thorough preparations and that anybody could jump from ship to ship when they are but 50 miles apart. Well and good, and all honor to any one who tries it alone, if he gets there or even if he makes an attempt. But we say that accomplishing a translantic flight in a two-seated, single-engine machine proves no more that it is a practical proposition than a hit proves the practicability of obtaining results with that methof of target practice.

How the Three Left Shore.

The start from Rockaway of the three airplanes, NC-1, NC-3 and NC-4 was made under an overcast sky at 10:02 a. m., May 8, 1919. The NC-3, the division "flag plane," took off first. The NC-4 was planing by the time the NC-3 was in the air and the NC-1 followed close behind. After gaining a few hundred feet, heading west, the NC-3 made a wide turn to the left and headed on a course to clear the southern coast of Long Island. The NC-4 and the NC-1 cut in and gradually assumed their positions in formation.

We started a gradual climb, following the "flag," until about 2000 feet altitude had been attained and held. The formation was as follows: The NC-3 flag plane, with Commander Towers, to act as guide; the NC-1, with Lieutenant-Commander Bellinger on the right flank ,not less than 400 yards nor more than three miles distant, maintaining about the same altitude, and the NC-4, with myself in command, in a corresponding position on the left flank.

The planes were not required to keep closely in position, but to endeavor to maintain steady courses an dspeeds as far as was possible, in order to simplify navigation. It can readily be seen that continuous changes in course and speed, in order to maintain a definite relative position with the flag would cause a navigator an immense amount of work in keeping track of his exact opsition. Each boat must be navigated independently, for any time the necessity might arise of proceeding "on its own," or it might be necessary to make a beeline to some position too far away to see.

The formation, therefore, was elastic and inthe exact relative positions varied accordng to the circumstances and as the judgment of the commanding officer dictated. On the stretch from Rockaway to Vineyard Sound it appeared that the commanding officers had considerably varying ideas, for the formation was extremely wobbly. However, between Vineyard Sound and Monomoy Point the three planes started to act more as a unit.

LUXEMBURG WANTS AUTONOMY

Government Accepts Wilson's Invitation to Plead Cause in Paris.

By the Associated Press.

LUXEMBURG, May 28.—Secretary of State Reuter yesterday read in the Chamber of Deputies a letter from President Wilson inviting a Luxemburg delegation to come to Paris. He said the Government was ready to leave for Paris to tell the peace conference that the people of Luxemburg wish their country to remain autonomous and to conclude an economic union with France and Belgium, or, if that was found impossible, to open negotiations with those two countries to learn their conditions.

He added that the Government was also asked that Luxemburg be admitted to the league of nations. According to a Paris telegram, the delegation will be received on Wednesday afternoon.

CUNARD AND ALLIED LINES LOST 45 SHIPS

Effect Fell Most Heavily on Combined Cargo and Passenger Vessels, Board Report Shows.

Figures made public by the Cunard and allied lines, at the first meeting held by the Cunard Steamship Co., Limited, since the war, show that they lost 45 ships of 389,853 tons.

These losses have fallen most heavily on the best type of combined cargo and passenger steamers of moderate speed, and the first place in the building program has therefore been given to vessels of this class. Construction of passenger vessels was not permitted during the war, but good progress is now being made with orders for the Cunard and Anchor Lines.

Sir Alfred Booth, Bart., chairman of the baord of directors, presiding for the tenth consecutive time over the board meeting, summarized these losses in his address as follows:

Cunard Losses Heaviest.

"Now that the war is over, it is possible to tell what has happened to the company during the last four and a half a year. The loses during the war period have been very heavy.

"The Cunard Line has lost the Lusitania, Franconia, Laconia, Ivernia, Carapathia, Andania, Alaunia, Ascania, Ausonia, Ultonia, Veria, Garia, Thracia, Lycia, Feltria, Folia, Flavia, Auriania, Valeria, Vandalia, Vinovia and Volodio, 220,444 tons in all, or 56 per cent of our pre-war tonnage.

"The Anchor Line has lost the Perugia, Caledonia, California, Cameronia, Tuscania, Transylvania and Tiberia, 69,039 tons.

"The Commonwealth and Dominion Line has lost the 'Marere,' 'Port Nicholson,' 'Port Adelaide,' 'Port Hardy,' 'Port Campbell,' 'Port Curtis,' and 'Port Kembla,' 45,215 tons.

"The Brocklebank and Well Lines have lost the 'Assyria,' 'Bengali,' 'Camberwell,' 'Iran,' 'Istrar,' 'Malakand,' 'Matheran,' 'Maizer,' and 'Springwell,' 55,155 tons.

"Thus in all we have lost 45 ships of 389,853 tons.

Have Bought Six Vessels.

It will be noticed that the losses of the Cunard and Anchor Lines have fallen most heavily on the best type of combined cargo and passenger steamers of moderate speed, and the first place in the building programs has therefore been given to vessels of this class. hTe building of passenger vessels was not permitted during the war, but good progress is now being made with orders for the Cunard and Anchor Lines. Meanwhile we have bought six standard ships of moderate size to help us to carry on in the Atlantic trade so far as cargo work is concerned, and we are also chartering as occasion offers to cope with special demands.

"The Commonwealth and Dominion and Brocklebank Lines were both able to complete a certain amount of new cargo tonnage during the war, with the result that both lines are well equipped to meet the demands of their pre-war trades. The Brocklebank Line, indeed, is able to spare some tonnage to assist us on the North Atlantic.

"The 'Aquitania' and 'Mauretania' remain under charter to the Government for the repatriation of troops, but all the other steamers are now running on the Company's account free from requisition. The passenger steamers are, however, carrying troops back to their home under contract rates, and we are also committed to carry quantities of Government cargo at contract rates which are substantially below the market level.

Doing Some Passenger Business.

"There can be no full resumption of passenger business until the movement of troops draws to a close, nor can we do very much in the way of restoring our best ships to their proper condition as passenger carriers. We are however doing some passenger business in the space that remains at our disposal after meeting Government requirements, and it is evident that there will be a large business when the troop movement ends.

"During the war the Cunard Line, apart from the associated companies, carried in our own and chartered ships, and ships placed under our management, 900,000 troops and 10,000,000 tons of cargo, while our vessels were employed at various times as armed cruisers, hospital ships, transports and prison ships, as well as their regular trades.

"Under the liner requisition scheme we were called upon to manage and run in the North Atlantic trade on account of their owners 180 different ships, while we have handled at our various port agencies on behalf of the Wheat Commission or the owners, no less than 350 vessels.

At the Engine Works.

"At our engine works, besides dismantling our own steamers and refitting them for special purposes, we have fitted out seaplane carriers and other vessels for the Government.

"The branch engine shop in Rimrose road, Bootle, purchased by the company in March, 1915, was converted later in that year into a shell factory, employing 1000 people, of whom about 90 per cent were women. The total output of the factory until it was closed down after the armistice amounted to 200,000 4.5-inch shells, 175,000 6-inch and 34,000 8-inch shells. It is a cause of great satisfaction that we were able to help the country to some slight extent in a great emergency. It was, as a matter of fact the first factory in Great Britain in which 6-inch and 8-inch shells were made by female labor. The women worked splendidly right through from beginning, and were, I know, actuated far more by public spirit than by any inducement the wages might have offered. We asked each member of this band of loyal workers to take a finished shell (not loaded) as a souvenir of the part she played in the great war.

"Our laundry, with less ship work to do, was able to undertake a great deal of work for some of the largest military hospitals in the district.

"We were associated from the start with the immense aeroplane factory

A HUMAN FLAT
KEWANEE FIREBOX BOILER

The Big Heart of a Flat

Raising himself on one elbow, the old Flat Dweller delivered this parting injunction to his sons: "Boys, as you journey through life, changing from one flat to another, looking for newer and better places to live, always make it a point to take a slant in the basement first and see if the Kewanee Smokeless Firebox Boiler is there.

"It is the big heart of human flat life. It is the basis of comfort in Winter. It makes your apartment feel like June in January. Insidious Jack Frost is always sticking around looking for an opening. He would like to make the inside of your apartment feel like the outside. And the Kewanee Boiler is his only perfect Jinx.

"Don't let any Smart-Alex relatives pick your flat for you on the basis of style. Don't let your Mother-in-law tell you it isn't good enough for her daughter. If the Kewanee Boiler is there, it is good enough for anybody. Think of style after you have found where your heat is coming from.

"As long as I have known that boiler, it has played fair. It is built of solid steel plate. It isn't any cast-iron affair. It isn't papier mache or a cut-out from the Sunday magazine. It's a real boiler and you ought never to rent a flat or an apartment unless you find it there. Follow this rule and your Winters will be just as sweet as your Summers. If you don't follow it, you're apt to curse and freeze from November to May."

Starving in the Midst of Plenty

Acid-Stomach Steals Strength and Good Feelings From Millions

One of the worst features of acid-stomach is that very often it literally starves its victims in the midst of plenty. And the strange thing about it is that the people with acid-stomachs seldom know what their trouble really is.

No matter how good or wholesome the food may be, or how much they eat, they do not gain in strength. This is clearly explained by the fact that an acid-stomach cannot properly digest food. Instead of healthy, normal digestion, the excess acid causes the food to sour and ferment. Then when this mass of sour, fermented food, charged with excess acid, passes into the intestines, it becomes the breeding place for all kinds of germs and toxic poisons, which in turn are absorbed into the blood and in this way distributed throughout the entire body. And that is exactly why it is that so many thousands of people eat and eat and keep on eating and yet are literally starving in the midst of plenty. Their acid-stomachs make it absolutely impossible for them to get the full measure of nourishment out of their food. And it doesn't take long for this poor nourishment to show its ill effects in a weakened, emaciated body.

You may say: "My stomach doesn't hurt me." That may be true because many victims of acid-stomach do not actually suffer stomach pains. Then again, there are millions who do suffer all kinds of aches and pains—headaches, rheumatic twinges, gout, lumbago, pains around the heart and in the chest—who never dream that an acid-stomach is the real cause of the trouble.

Naturally, the sensible thing to do is to strike right at the very cause of this trouble and clean the excess acid out of the stomach. There is a quick, easy way to do this. A wonderful new remedy quickly removes the excess acid without the slightest discomfort. It is EATONIC. Made in the form of tablets—they are good to eat—just like a bit of candy. They literally absorb the injurious excess acid and carry it away through the intestines. They also drive the bloat out of the body—in fact you can fairly feel it work. Make a test of EATONIC in your own case today. Get a big box of EATONIC from your druggist. See for yourself how surely it brings quick relief in those painful attacks of indigestion, bitter heartburn, belching, disgusting food repeating, that awful bloated, lumpy feeling after eating and other stomach miseries. Banish all your stomach troubles so completely that you forget you have a stomach. Then you can eat what you like and digest your food in comfort without fear of distressing after effects.

If EATONIC does not relieve you, it will not cost you one penny. You can return it to your druggist and get your money back. So if you have the slightest question about your health—if you feel you are not getting all the strength out of your food—if you are not feeling tip-top, ready for your work, full of vim and vigor—do give EATONIC a fair trial this very day and see how much better you will feel.

This entire set of GENUINE rich cut glass will be shipped direct from the factory on ten days' free trial, no money down. Then if you are pleased, remit $2 monthly until the special factory-to-you price of $9.87 is paid; otherwise, return at our expense.

This set is GENUINE cut glass. We cannot emphasize this too strongly. It does not seem possible in these days of high retail prices that this set of GENUINE cut glass can be sold at such a low price. The secret is factory distribution. By getting your home furnishings direct from the factory you eliminate retail store profits. This factory is one link in the chain of nine big factories supplying home furnishings direct to the consumer through our victorious plan.

So thoroughly convinced are we that an investigation will prove to your entire satisfaction the beauty and genuineness of this set and the saving you will make, that we urge you to send the coupon today and let us send this set of twenty-four pieces on ten days' free trial. We are willing that you should be the sole judge. We ask the privilege of submitting this constellation of scintillating gems for your approval. Then if you are delighted with the set, make the small monthly payments until our special price is paid; otherwise return it within ten days at our expense, not yours.

The inherent love of the beautiful in every woman's soul often famishes for such imperishable works of art in the home. Prices of such goods in the past have been prohibitory except for the wealthy. This offer breaks down the barriers, all may take advantage of it. It matters not what your station or circumstance; this offer is for you because you are honest and because you admire things that are what they seem to be,—that ARE good through and through.

So now, while this offer is before you; while the opportunity is so liberally presented to you, just sign and mail the coupon and the set will be forwarded to you promptly for your inspection and approval.

QUEER ANGLES TO FRENCH PLAY

Guitry's "Pasteur" Lacks Woman Character; Portrays Life of Scientist.

PARIS, May 28.—Sacha Guitry's play, "Pasteur," in which no woman character appeared, has had a run of 107 performances, which, for a play entirely devoid of feminine interest, is considered in Paris to have been a great success. The piece, however, hardly had claims to be a play. It was rather a series of unconnected scenes in the life of the great scientist, beginning with one showing him with his pupils, at the outbreak of the war of 1870, continuing with scenes introducing his first application of his vaccination against hydrophobia and ending with his reception at the French Academy.

The absence of any woman's role was not the only remarkable feature of the piece. The "hero" has not been dead 25 years yet, so that many who saw the play remembered him personally. The author found his materials in the life of Pasteur written by Pasteur's son-in-law, M. Vallery-Radot, whose wife, Pasteur's daughter, on seeing Lucien Guitry, the author's father, who played the title role with a marvelous make-up, could not help exclaiming "Papa!" The boy who played the part of the first victim of a mad dog's bite to be treated by Pasteur was a young brother of the boy who really was so treated.

THIN, NERVOUS PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

What It Is and How It Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve Forces in Many Instances

SHOULD BE PRESCRIBED BY EVERY DOCTOR AND USED IN EVERY HOSPITAL

Says Editor of "Physicians' Who's Who."

Take plain bitro-phosphate is the advice of these physicians to thin, delicate, nervous people who lack vim, energy and nerve force, and ther seems to be ample proof of the efficiency of this preparation to warrant the recommendation. Moreover, if we judge from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by Judge & Dolph, Enderle Drug Stores, Johnson Bros.' Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., in St. Louis, and most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Clinical tests made in St. Catherine's Hospital, N. Y. C., showed that two patients gained in weight 23 and 27 pounds respectively, through the administration of organic phosphate; both patients claim they have not felt as strong and well for the past twelve years.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

Physicians and hospitals everywhere are now recognizing its merits by its use in ever increasing quantities. Frederick Kolle, M. D., editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who," says: "Bitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood."

Joseph D. Harrigan, Former Visiting Specialist to North Eastern Dispensatory, says: "Let those who are weak, thin, nervous, anaemic, or run down, take a natural, unadulterated substance such as bitro-phosphate, and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance."

Bitro-Phosphate is made entirely of the organic phosphate compound referred to in the National Standard Dispensatory as being an excellent tonic and nervine and a preparation which has recently acquired considerable reputation in the treatment of neurasthenia. The standard of excellence, strength and purity of its substance is beyond question, for every Bitro-Phosphate tablet is manufactured in strict accordance with the U. S. Pharmacopeia test requirements. Bitro-Phosphate is therefore not a patent medicine and should not be confused with any of the secret nostrums, so-called tonics or widely advertised "cure-alls."

CAUTION—Although Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, owing to its tendency to increase weight it should not be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.—ADV.

How to Make Your Garden Grow

Raising a garden—long ago—ceased to be guesswork. Nowadays, the successful gardener realizes that delicious vegetables or beautiful flowers can't be grown where plants are infested with destructive vermin.

And there's one—and only one—really reliable method of destroying and preventing, in any garden, the vermin, worms and other pests that ruin the health—blight the growth—of cabbage or tomato plants, cucumber and melon vines, and other plants or flowers.

That's by dusting Wolf's GARDITE—the "Made-to-Satisfy" insecticide—on and under the plants after sprinkling, rain or dew. Wolf's GARDITE is a highly concentrated non-poisonous powder preparation, consisting of the best known drugs for the prevention and extermination of destructive garden insects.

Get a handy sifter top can of Wolf's GARDITE today. Use it as directed—the fine powder adheres readily to foliage and sifts down between the leaves, killing the egg as well as the bug or worm.

5000 MEN SOUGHT AS TANK CORPS RECRUITS

Capt. W. H. Williams, Who Was in Overseas Service, Opens Campaign Here.

Five thousand men are being sought for enlistment in the Tank Corps, according to Capt. William H. Williams, who commanded the first light tank company organized overseas and who arrived in St. Louis Wednesday from Washington to establish a tank corps headquarters here.

Men with mechanical experience, Capt. Williams said yesterday, in his office at Third and Olive streets, are wanted most of all, but others will also be accepted. Following enlistment, they will be sent to Camp Meade, Md., and placed in vocational schools at Government expense, where they will learn the rudiments of gas engines. The term of enlistment for previous service men is one year, for others three years. The opportunity to thus develop into a mechanical expert, Capt. Williams pointed out, is exceptional.

Recruiting talks will be made by Capt. Williams within the next few days at the seven recruiting stations about the city. He will tell of his experiences overseas and will explain the disposition and use of tanks in battle.

The Captain was wounded Oct. 2 in the Argonne offensive before Cheppy while supporting the advance of troops of the Thirty-fifth Division, which contained several St. Louis units. A fragment of high explosive shell tore away the calf of his right leg while he was going back through a barrage to the infantry first line. He spent two months in the hospital and, although a plastic operation was performed, his use of the limb is limited.

He commanded A Company of the 344th Light Tank Battalion, which was cited in orders by Gen. Pershing. In 17 months and 18 days' service with the A. E. F. he spent 11 months in the trenches on such fronts as Amiens, Cambrai, Soissons, Cantigny, Montdidier, Tricot, St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse. He was with the British and French for short periods. Capt. Williams has seen 25 years service. He was in campaigns in the Philippines, Cuba and China.

REFUGEES AT OMSK TELL OF TERRORISM IN EASTERN RUSSIA

Cases Cited of Women Who Killed Themselves Rather Than Fall Into Bolsheviki's Hands.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

OMSK, Siberia, April 3.—A thread of suffering runs through the stories told by refugees from all parts of European Russia, hundreds of thousans of whom have found asylum here. Almost all of them fled from Bolshevik terrorism. They tell of murder of the members of their families, deprivation of property, savage treatment, hunger and terrible hardship of their flight from Bolshevik bandits.

Several cases have come to light in which girls unable to escape before the approaching Bolsheviki shot themselves rather than fall into the hands of the terrorists. The wife of a Russian Colonel now at Omsk said to the correspondent:

"We lived a life of comfort and contentment on our land not far from Samara. Warned by our peasants we fled across the hills hidden in a farm cart. My cousin, a girl of 18, who thought she could not escape, took a revolver from the desk in her drawing room and shot herself through the head because she knew what her fate would be. You can understand why it is difficult for us to believe in Bolshevism."

The wife of an assistant minister of state and her sister, a girl of 25, fled from Bessarabia. The girl said with quiet Russian fatalism: "If the Bolsheviki succeed in getting to Omsk, I shall shoot myself."

The refugees tell of several cases in which peasants murdered the proprietors of the land upon which they lived in order to obtain possession of the farms. On the other hand, some of the peasants imperilled their own lives to help the land holders to escape from the Bolsheviki.

BROWN REINSTATED ON EXCHANGE

Broker Had Been Suspended During Bankruptcy Proceedings.

Alexander H. Brown, senior partner of the defunct brokerage firm of Alex H. Brown & Co., which became bankrupt in October, 1918, following secret speculation with the firm's funds, resulting heavy losses, by Anthony J. Schmidt, junior partner, was today reinstated as a member of the St. Louis Stock Exchange, from which he had been temporarily suspended pending the outcome of the bankruptcy proceedings.

Brown assumed the firm's obligations amounting to $640,000 and settled with the creditors on the basis of 40 per cent of this sum.

CUNARD AND ALLIED LINES LOST 45 SHIPS

at Aintree. The foundations were begun in October, 1917, and the first aeroplane was turned out in June, 1918, eight months later. By June the whole organization was complete, deliveries of parts for which subcontracts had been made were coming in, and the first machine was finished.

"A great many distinctions have been won by Cunard men in the navy, the army, and the Mercantile Marine. I have a list here which includes a V. C., a C. B., eight D. S. O's, 58 other British decorations, 10 decorations from allied Governments, and a large number of 'mentions.'"

Speaking of the financial aspect of the Cunard Line, Sir Alfread gave the following comparison between the figures of nine years ago and those of the present meeting.

"Looking back at the old balance sheet which I presented to you nine years ago, I see that the total as- ($30,000,000). up to about £6,000,000 ($30,000,000). The assets as on December 31 last amount to about £15,000,000 ($75,000,000.) The tonnage of the vessels belonging to the company on Dec. 31, 1909, was 275,000 tons. The company now owns, or controls through its associated companies, vessels aggregating approximately 558,380 tons gross register, and we have 426,800 tons under construction for the various companies.

A very great change has taken place in our share capital. Nine years ago our subscribed capital consisted of 60,000 fully paid shares of £20 each ($100), amounting to £1,200,000 ($6,000,000), and 40,000 half paid shares of the same nominal value, making £400,000 ($2,000,000), or a total of £1,600,000 together with the Government share of £20 ($100.) The amount of mortgage debenture stock outstanding was £3,940,000 ($19,700,000.) The issued capital today, ordinary and preference, amounts to £5,470,856 ($27,354,280), while the mortgage debt is only £2,683,631 ($13,418,155.")

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore, cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., Block 557, St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and the information necessary.—ADV.

Teeth Are Wrecked

By a Film, and You Must Combat It

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

The Brush Alone Can't End It

Dental science has found that the great tooth destroyer is a slimy film. It is ever-present, ever-forming. You can feel it with your tongue. Most tooth troubles are nowadays traced to it.

That film is what discolors— not your teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. The dental name for film is "bacterial plaque." Those germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of other serious troubles.

The tooth brush, as used generally, leaves much of that film intact. The film is clinging. It gets in crevices, hardens and stays. The ordinary dentifrice cannot dissolve it.

So millions of people find that brushed teeth still discolor and decay. Tartar forms on them. Pyorrhea very often starts. Statistics show that, despite the tooth brush, these troubles have constantly increased. They cannot be avoided on film-covered teeth.

Now dental science has found a way to daily and efficiently combat film. Able authorities have proved the fact by many clinical tests. Now that method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Leading dentists everywhere are urging its adoption. And we are proving the results to hundreds of thousands by supplying a 10-Day Tube.

This is to offer that tube to you. To urge that you get it and use it and watch its effects. Then judge for yourself what this new method means to you and yours.

Science Has Now Found a Way

Analysis shows that this film is albuminous. That fact suggested pepsin, the digestant of albumin. Pepsodent is based on that. The object is to dissolve the film, then to constantly combat it.

The uniqueness lies in a harmless method of activating pepsin. It must be activated, else it is inert. The usual agent is an acid, harmful to the teeth. So pepsin long seemed forbidden.

This new activating method solves the problem. It activates the pepsin, yet it cannot harm the teeth. Five governments have already granted patents. And this discovery seems to promise a dental revolution.

Dental experts have now used Pepsodent and watched its results for years. There is no question about its effects. Anyone can see them in a few-day test. So we supply a 10-Day Tube to anyone who asks. The stores named below have them in stock this week. And they will give you one, entirely free, if you present this coupon.

We urge you to do that. Use Pepsodent like any tooth paste. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how the teeth whiten—how they glisten—as the fixed film disappears.

You will realize then that the film problem has been solved. The teeth's chief enemy is conquered. You can have clean teeth—safe, white, filmless teeth—in this easy, pleasant way.

Let the product itself convince you. Compare the results with your old methods. Then decide for yourself what to do.

This question is of prime importance. Old methods are not adequate, as everybody knows. See if this method is. Cut out the coupon now.

BORDER GUN-RUNNING ATTACKED BY MEXICO

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Protests have been made to the United States Government, according to advices received from Mexico City, because of alleged laxity of the enforcement of the neutrality laws along the Mexican border. Ambassador Bonillas has been instructed by his Government to make representations to this effect to the State Department, according to these advices, and it is understood he has had a long conference on the subject with Acting Secretary of State Polk. As a result of this conference, it is said, the War Department was asked by Mr. Polk to increase the vigilance of the troops on the border.

According to the Mexico City advices, gun-running and the smuggling of ammunition across the border have increased to a great extent during the last six months.

Villa has succeeded in getting large quantities of arms and ammunition, it is reported, which may account for the assurance of Villa's agents in the United States regarding his ability to continue the new campaign he has begun. It is also reported that Gen. Montragon is the rebel leader who has appeared in the south of Mexico recently and is hailed by some as the successor of Amiliano Zapata, the famous Mexican revolutionary leader who was recently killed.

Get Back Your Grip on Health

Physician Gives Practical Advice on What to Do to Help Build Up Your Strength, Power and Endurance—Explains

How Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—Helps Put Renewed Vim and Energy Into the Veins of the Weak, Nervous and Run-down—

You can tell which people have a firm Grip on Health—Strong Vigorous Folks with Plenty of Iron in their Blood.

Thousands of men and women are impairing their constitutions laying themselves open to illness and literally losing their grip on health simply because their blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of iron.

To possess the power, energy and endurance that win the blood should be rich in strength-giving iron. For this purpose physicians below explain why they prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which by enriching the blood and creating thousands of new red blood cells often quickly transform the flabby flesh toneless tissues and pallid cheeks of weak, anaemic men and women into a glow of health. It increases the strength of delicate, nervous, run down folks in two weeks' time in many instances.

In explaining why he regards iron as absolutely essential to the greatest development of physical and mental power, and discussing the probability of building up a stronger race of people by increasing the supply of iron in their blood, Dr. George H. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon, Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey, says: "Iron is absolutely necessary to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. Refined foods and modern methods of cooking have robbed us of much of the iron which Nature intended we should receive and for supplying this deficiency and increasing the red blood corpuscles I know of nothing more effective than organic iron—Nuxated Iron. From a careful examination of the formula and my own test of Nuxated Iron, I feel convinced that it is a preparation which any physician can take himself or prescribe for his patients with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results. The fact that Nuxated Iron is today being used by over three million people annually as a tonic, strength and blood-builder, is in itself an evidence of tremendous public confidence and I am convinced that if others would take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak and run-down it would help make a nation of stronger healthier men and women.

Commenting on the use of Nuxated Iron as a tonic, strength builder and blood-builder, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, said:

"Thousands are held back in life for want of sufficient iron in the blood. A weak body means a weakened will power, and like the race horse beaten by a nose, many a capable man or woman falls just short of winning because they don't back up their mentality with the physical strength and energy which come from having plenty of iron in the blood. That irritable twitch, that fit of despondency, that dizzy, fearful feeling—these are the sort of signals nature gives to tired, listless folks when the blood is clamoring for strength-giving iron—more iron to restore the health by enriching the blood and creating thousands of new red blood cells.

"In my opinion the greatest curse to the health and strength of American people of today is the alarming deficiency of iron in their blood. It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the blood that life-sustaining oxygen enters the body. Without iron there is no strength, vitality and endurance to combat obstacles or withstand severe strains. Lack of sufficient iron in the blood has ruined many a man's nerves, and utterly robbed him of that virile force and stamina which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life.

"Therefore, I strongly advise those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder to get a physician's prescription for organic iron — Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name — (Nuxated Iron) — appears on the package."

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases, been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron recommended above is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the other inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Co., Enderle Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Store Co., and other druggists.—Adv.

VILLA IN 1913 SOUGHT TO SETTLE DOWN IN U. S.

Bandit, Before Madero's Death, Told of Desire to Work on Railroad and to Study.

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., June 6.—Francisco Villa, a lover of peace, a hater of bloodshed and a family man who wishes nothing so much as to work all day on an American railroad right of way and go home in the evening to play with his little son and continue his rudimentary education started when he was a prisoner in the Belem prison at Mexico City, sounds like a paradox.

Yet that was the Villa of 1913 following his escape from prison where he had been placed by order of Gen. Victoriano Huerta. After escaping from prison and Mexico, probably through President Madero's orders, Villa came to El Paso and rented a cheap room in the old Hotel Mexico in the Mexican quarter.

Tired of War and Revolt.

Sitting in a little Mexican restaurant of the hotel, Villa told the present correspondent of the Associated Press his plans for the future, his aims and ambitions and also of his expectations for a son to be born to him at the family home of his wife in San Andres, Chihuahua. At that time Villa was known as a reformed bandit who had followed Madero loyally and who had fought for independence and liberty for his people beside the diminutive revolutionary leader. It was not until later that he again won the title of "bandit" by his raid on Columbus, N. M., and his subsequent acts.

"I am tired—sick and tired of war and revolutions and bloodshed," Villa said in Spanish as he ate the Mexican dishes served in the little cafe.

Wanted Job in U. S.

"I want no more of it and I have come to the United States to get away from it all and to get a job on the Southern Pacific Railroad and have a home here in the land of the free. I love Mexico, but if I remain there I will be forced into the political whirlpool and that is the one thing I want to avoid now. There will be a little Francisco 'hijo' awaiting me when I go back to San Andres to bring Luz (his wife) to the border and for his sake I want to live the life of a working man in the United States where he will have a chance to get the education which I was cheated out of by the tyrant Diaz, who decreed there should be no schools in the north for fear his people would learn of his misrule."

Before Villa could find employment on the railroad Madero was killed and he organized an expedition consisting of seven men, five mules and three sacks of flour which crossed the border near Hermanas, N. M., and resulted in the Villa revolution. By a turn of fate, the baby Villa was expecting died at birth during the battle of San Andres, which was his first engagement with the Huerta federals. After that Villa reverted to type and his history was the history of Northern Mexico for the following five years. His wife is now living in San Antonio, Tex.

BAYLOR UNIVERSITY SECURES PAINTING OF ROBERT BROWNING

Life-Sized Portrait of Poet Painted by His Son Purchased in England.

WACO, Tex.—The senior class of Baylor University has bought and will give to the university as a memorial the life-size picture of Robert Browning painted by his son.

The picture, which has just reached Waco, is a splendid work of art and was displayed in the Grosvenor gallery, London, just after the poet's death. It is a magnificent likeness and critics have been unanimous in saying it is the best work of the artist, who worked in the studio of Rodin.

Another portrait by Barrett Browning of his father is now in the Balliol Library, Oxford, but it is not considered as fine a work as the one to be presented Baylor University at the approaching commencement.

The picture was secured through Dr. A. J. Armstrong, the head of the department of English at Baylor, and although it was offered for 250 guineas ($1250), it was secured for a little less than that amount.

SPEECH IS SET TO MUSIC

Address by Head of French Chamber Makes Hit as Lyrical Work.

PARIS, France.—A celebrated musician once declared that anything could be set to music, "even a newspaper article." Some confirmation has just been given to his dictum in Paris by the first performance of "Apotheose," a lyrical work given by 200 singers (soloists and chorus). The music was written by Francis Casadesus and the words by Paul Deschanel, the president of the Chamber of Deputies. M. Deschanel's libretto is, in fact, one of his eloquent speeches, which Casadesus found so lyrical that he was inspired by it to set it to music. The work had a most successful production.

and does it better, quicker, cheaper

A real steam laundry—that's what it is. A machine that occupies no more space than an ordinary chair and costs no more than an ordinary washer—and yet a machine that not only washes cleaner than any other but does all the heavy work connected with washday.

It saves carrying water to and from the boiler—you need no boiler at all. It saves going over the dirtiest part of clothes on the washboard—you need no washboard. It saves boiling the clothes separately—they boil while being washed. It saves countless steps. The

Almetal Household Steam Laundry

Heats the Water and Keeps It Hot

Boils, Washes, Sterilizes Clothes at Same Time

This machine is the most complete, most efficient and most economical household help ever invented. It heats the water in its own boiler and keeps it boiling hot as long as desired. It boils, steams and sterilizes the clothes while washing them — clothes that will stand boiling—and makes them snowy white, sweet and sanitary.

The vacuum-suction-heat system forces the soapy steam back and forth through the clothes. There's no violent twisting, pulling, tearing or rubbing. The action is so gentle that laces and other delicate articles can be washed with the utmost safety. In fact all Almetal owners now wash their lace curtains this way and get excellent results.

Automatically Lifts Clothes Out

When clothes are washed and you open the machine, there they are up out of the hot water. A patented device automatically lifts them when the top is raised. No fishing around for small pieces with a stick. And no time wasted.

See It In Operation

The Almetal Household Steam Laundry must be seen before you can fully appreciate its many wonderful features. We haven't space here to tell all about it. And no words can do thorough justice to the remarkable work it does. Come in tomorrow and see it. And learn how you can get one of these machines on easy terms.

Saves Half a Day

Gentlemen:—I just want to let you know how thoroughly satisfied we are with the electric "Almetal" Steam Laundry purchased from you recently. It washes perfectly everything we put into it. Even the colored wash woman concedes that the "Almetal" can beat her at her own game.

The wash woman used to come on Monday, wash the clothes, and do what ironing she could in the afternoon. It usually took our maid most of Tuesday to finish up. Often the ironing would drag through the week.

Now the maid and the "Almetal" do all the washing before noon on Monday. Then the wash woman comes Tuesday and irons everything. In other words, with the "Almetal" we now do in less than a day and a half what used to take two days or more and have cleaner, whiter clothes.

Civil Service Needs Stenographers.

The Civil Service Commission announces the urgent need of a large number of stenographers, typists and bookkeepers for work in Washington, D. C., at salaries ranging from $900 to $1200 a year. Examinations for these positions will be held at 9 a. m. each Tuesday hereafter, at more than forty of the largest cities in Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas, Kansas and Oklahoma. Persons desiring this class of work should get in touch with the local secretary of the Civil Service Commission at any first or second class postoffice, or with the district secretary in the Old Customs House in St. Louis.

Lift Off Corns! Doesn't Hurt a Bit

With your fingers! You lift sore, touchy corns and calluses right off after applying a few drops of Freezone. Really! No pain! No soreness! So easy. Don't keep corns another day! Corns are needless.

Freezone is the remarkable discovery of a Cincinnati genius—wonderful!

Freezone removes hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes, also the "hard skin" and painful calluses on bottom of feet. Just think! Every corn and callus gone from your feet without a twinge of pain or soreness.

Tiny bottles cost only few cents at drug stores. Magic! No humbug!

TRADE MARK REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

A Logical Question Answered

A logical question of war-ridden housewives is — "What shall I buy to replace the faded and worn out carpets and rugs which tho an eyesore I have endured in order to economize and save?"

For every floor that needs new rugs buy CREX. Use them the year 'round. You'll save money and be well satisfied. Durability and sanitary qualities are features well known. Put them to the test.

Three Weaves to Choose from—

CREX De Luxe
An exclusive, patented fabric. Unusually smooth. Beautiful soft tonal effects. A rare achievement in grass rugs. Primarily for indoor use.

CREX Herringbone
Also patented and exclusive. Heavier and more durable than any other woven grass rug. Ideal for porches. Made to stand severe wear.

CREX Regular
For twenty years the leader in unquestioned popularity. The "peoples" common sense, inexpensive floor covering. Unrivaled for value.

Patterns — Colorings — Sizes
Choice of patterns is wide and varied. Green, Blue, Brown and Old Rose predominate in solid and combination colors. Sizes range from small mats to large rugs.

Imitations and Substitution
All grass rugs are not CREX. Don't be deceived by imitations. Genuine CREX rugs have the name woven in edge of side binding. Don't take any substitute.

Made in America
CREX rugs are made in the U. S. A. under a satisfactory wage and time scale and the most approved sanitary conditions by men and women loyal to America.

TRAINS KILL 5000 TRESPASSERS YEARLY

Safety Agent Declares People Should Be Aroused to Necessity of Correcting National Evil.

H. E. Meginness, safety agent for the St. Louis system of the Pennsylvania Lines, whose headquarters are in Indianapolis, Ind., and who has been in conference the last two days with local officials of the company, declares that trespassing on American railroads has reached such serious proportions and the resultant loss of life has been so great that the entire nation should be aroused to a realization that some means should be devised to overcome the killing of citizens from that cause.

More than 5000 funerals are held yearly for persons killed when trespassing, he says, and a still greater number of persons are injured, most of them seriously, during the same period. These figures represent an average of 14 deaths daily and an equal number of serious personal injuries.

One Run Down Every 51 Minutes.

Should the railroads of this country kill and injure in train wrecks daily an equal number of passengers, he asserts, the entire country would rise and demand that a stop be put to the slaughter, while the fact that a trespasser is killed or injured here or there every 51 minutes receives but little attention, except from a local standpoint, and no notice is taken of it by the people at large.

A great many people, he continues, are under the impression that a majority of unauthorized persons injured on railroad property are of the class known as hoboes. Nothing is farther from the truth, he says, as a careful analysis of the statistics covering long periods of time indicates that more than 75 per cent of all trespassers killed and injured are people living in the immediate vicinity, tradesmen, artisans, laborers, women and children, in fact from almost every walk of life.

Use Tracks as Playground.

He declares it is a fact that the graveyards of this country are filled with thousands of little children who were killed because they used the railroad tracks as a playground, as a means of making a short-cut, and because they were permitted to play around tracks and hop cars.

Most trespassing, he contends, is due to a desire on the part of the trespasser to save time. The roadbed offers a convenient highway, easy to traverse, he says, but the practice should be stopped.

CELEBRATION WILL CLOSE WORK OF GIBSON CENTER FOR SUMMER

Only Activity to Continue Will Be Girls' Clubs of War Camp Community Service.

A community celebration will be given at the Gibson Center of the Community Service Organization tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Mayor Kiel and other city officials have promised to attend the exercises, which will be the closing of the center activities for the summer, with the exception of the girls' club, which will continue in co-operation with the War Camp Community Service.

The Community Service Organization, of which Mrs. George A. Bass is chairman, was formed at the close of the Food Administration by women who had been identified for two years with the organization division, and the community center plan now in force in St. Louis, which is being used as a model by other cities, was started in 1917 by Mrs. Bass.

The program tomorrow night in-Gibson avenues, in the Epiphany Mission of St. Peter's Church, and has had educational and recreational classes for girls and women for the past nine weeks under the direction of the Community Service Organization and the Home Demonstration Agents of the United States Department of Agriculture and the University of Missouri.

Th program tomorrow night includes calisthenic drills and games under the direction of Howard J. Rhodus, a community sing, choral numbers by the glee club of the center, a short play by the dramatic group, coached by the Rev. J. G. Seacord, an exhibition of basketry by Charles Bange, who has been teaching this at the center, brief addresses by the Rev. Z. B. T. Phillips, Mrs. Frederick Blaine Clarke and Miss Gertrude Kavanaugh, and moving pictures for which the new $1000 moving picture machine of the mission will be used the first time. Mrs. George A. Bass, Miss Edna Kissinger, Mrs. May Johnson and Mrs. James Avery Webb have charge of the program.

MARINE RECRUIT TRIP DELAYED

Escorted Party Will Not Depart for Boston Until June 17.

Word was received in St. Louis yesterday from the United States Shipping Board that the escorted party of recruits for the Merchant Marine training service, which was suated to depart from this city for Boston Tuesday, will not start until June 17.

The party is being made up by William Krummenacher of 1400 North Grand avenue, special enrolling agent for the Merchant Marine, and will include young men of 18 years old or more, who are able to pass a strict physical examination. The recruits accepted will be placed on board a seagoing training ship at Boston for two months' intensive training, preparatory to deep sea service on merchant ships as firemen, sailors or stewards, at wages ranging from $55 to $75 a month, with board included. Boys between 18 and 21 must produce the written consent of their parents before being accepted, and only American citizens showing a birth certificate or service discharge papers can qualify.

PRESIDENT COMMUTES DISMISSAL OF MANGUM

Lieutenant Wore Wound and Foreign Service Stripes, to Which He Was Not Entitled.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The first case on record of an Army officer wearing wound and foreign service stripes to which he was not entitled was officialy closed when the War Department announced that President Wilson had commuted a sentence of dismissal imposed on Second Lieut. Roy L. Mangum, Tenth Infantry, to restriction within camp limits for six months and a fine of $300.

Mangum was charged with having while on duty in Chicago represented himself as a Colonel wounded in overseas service, when, as a matter of fact, he had never served abroad.

ANOTHER GERMAN SECRET FOUND

London Scientist Learns to Make Artificial Mother of Pearl.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 7.—The secret of another German key industry has been discovered, the manufacture of artificial mother of pearl. J. W. H. Dew, a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts, found the process after much patient experimenting.

Dr. Dew was engaged during the whole period of the war in reconstructing, step by step, the method of manufacture.

Artificial mother of pearl is used for making fancy buttons, dress trimmings and many other articles. Before the war most of it came from Germany.

21 NEW WARSHIPS FOR JAPAN

Two Battle Cruisers Will Be of Latest Type.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 7.—The warships to be built for the Japanese navy in the current financial year 1919-1920, are the battleships Kaga and Tosa, two battle cruisers whose names have not yet been chosen, two cruisers, eight destroyers and seven submarines.

The two battle cruisers are to be of the latest type. The designs have already been drafted and it is expected that the Minister of War shortly will issue formal instructions for undertaking their construction.

HUNGARIANS PRAY FOR COLLAPSE OF SOVIET REPUBLIC

Rule of Communists Is Filled With Such Misery and Terror That People Hope for Deliverance.

INVADING ARMIES HAILED AS SAVIORS

Approaching Czechs and Rumanians, Although Ancient Enemies, May Furnish Relief From Worse Evils.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, May 7.—What may be the last days of the "Red" Soviet republic here are fraught with such terror, hunger, mental misery, uprooting of family ties, heartbreaking partings, flights, arrests and legal lootings, that the majority of Hungarians are praying that such days may never come again. They live like people caught in a burning house with the firemen squirting benzine on the only escape ladder.

One way out may possibly be provided by the Czech and Rumanian armies, who, though national enemies of the Magyars, are now hailed as saviors. The atmosphere is charged with fears and alarms worse than those felt on any battle front. A contagious fear like that which prevails when an army is in rout is spreading even to foreigners whose persons are comparatively safe from arrest owing to the wishes of Bela Kun, the Communist leader, and other ministers, to save themselves from the gallows when the grand collapse comes.

When fathers and sons flee the country to evade arrest or to join the counter-revolutionists, their wives and mothers whisper at the parting. "Let us hope we may meet in happier times."

People Envy Americans.

When the correspondent of the Associated Press has had occasion to explain his nationality, the listener, whether Red guard, peasant or civilian, has remarked with envy: "What a fortunate man you are to be an American!" He would invariably ask whether it would be possible to reach America and whether foreigners, former enemies, would be permitted to land on her shores. Peasants gladly enough sold meals and supplies to the correspondent on the strength of his American nationality.

The most saddening impression the visitor receives is that of a country in dissolution, being stripped day by day, mercilessly and inexorably, of its riches, to benefit nobody. The relatively pleasant, orderly and bountiful life that existed in Hungary a few months ago, when its neighbor Austria was starving, is gone for many years to come.

Half Million Fled From Country.

"If anyone wants to be convinced of the futility of remaking the world in a single day with pet theories, he should now visit Hungary," was the remark made by an American naval officer. It is estimated that half a million of Hungary's best citizens have been obliged to flee from their homes and wander across the frontiers to strange lands.

There are many stories of their attempts to save their lives and property, some of which read like Arabian Night tales. It is calculated that some 3,000,000,000 kronen worth of bonds, gold coin, jewelry, plate, paintings and work of art have been saved from the clutches of the Red guards and smuggled across the frontiers by blockade runners, afoot, on bicycles, autos or peasant carts. Within a few weeks there has grown up a system by which large percentages of the value of such property, often amounting to 50 per cent, have been given for its safe transportation to Vienna or Agram. Not a few Communists took advantage of such methods of getting valuables out of the country. Many jewelers, however, stored their stocks under sidewalks or hid them in holes dug in their cellars in preference to trusting them to blockade runners.

Red Cross Will Explain Program.

The peace time program of the Red Cross will be explained at a mass meeting at the Odeon June 16 at 8 o'clock. Speakers will be Dr. Livingston, Farrand, director-general, American Red Cross; Willoughby Walling, vice chairman, Central Committee, American Red Cross; Alfred Fairbank, acting manager, Southwestern divison, each of these speaking on the plans of the organization in relief and welfare work. Maj. George W. Simmons, Red Cross commissioner to Siberia, will discuss conditions in Russia. No admission will be charged and there will be no solicitation of funds.

Leather Made From Fishskins.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

JUNEAU, Alaska, May 5.—Manufacture of leather out of fishskins is the business of another new Alaska industry with plant in operation at Seward. Shark skins especially, it is said, produce fine leather of dark hue, which takes a beautiful finish. Other parts of the fish caught are used in the manufacture of such by-products as oils, glue, gelatines and fertilizer.

CHANGE IN TREATY SAID TO HAVE BEEN DECIDED ON BY COUNCIL OF FOUR

Alterations Declared to Affect Only Phraseology, but They Are Believed to Go Far Enough to Make Terms More Acceptable to Germans.

ALL COMMISSIONS TO REPORT BY TOMORROW

Lloyd George Takes Hand in Reparations Settlement—Italians Show Uneasiness, Demand Adjustment of Their Problem by June 18.

By HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
Copyright, 1919, by Press Publishing Co. (New York World.)

PARIS, June 7.—Although called by another name and not officially admitted, the fact remains that there will be substantial revision of the German treaty, and several points on which the Teutons laid emphasis will approach a form calculated to make them more acceptable to the defeated enemy and more workable.

Much uncertainty was removed today when the Big Four, after a long session, without adopting a definite policy in the matter, agreed that changes in the original terms will be made. Assurances are given that no principles are to be affected and that the amendments will deal only with phraseology, but that is a matter of opinion, for in several instances the changes go sufficiently deep to justify a liberal view of the modification formula, while other changes are so slight as to warrant the statement that they involve only the wording.

Action is imminent on the German request that Germany be admitted to the league of nations. It is improbable that she will be accepted in full membership at once, but, in return for her compliance with the terms for a skeleton army, it is certain that a compensating measure of security will be assured to her. This is by far the most important decision yet reached.

As to the limitation of powers of the international reparations commission as outlined in previous dispatches to the Post-Dispatch, it is likely the commission will be charged with establishing a fixed sum for Germany to pay.

While it is fair to say that distinct progress has been made in respect to the German counter proposals, and equally true that immediate danger of a serious crisis is greatly reduced, it should be borne in mind that arguments in the matter have not been closed and that the issues are still grave between the pro and anti-revisionists.

RADICALS ACTIVE IN BERLIN AGAIN; STRIKES DECLARED

Execution in Munich Arouses Extremists, Who Predict Overthrow of Government.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 7.—The street cars of Berlin ceased running at 3 o'clock yesterday as a result of the declaration of a 24-hour strike by the greater Berlin Soviet as a protest against the execution of Levine Nissen, Bavarian communist leader, at Munich Thursday. Only two of the morning papers have appeared today. The workers are also invited to strike next Friday, the day set for the funeral of Rosa Luxemburg.

The political mistake of the Bavarian Cabinet in permitting the execution of Nissen is likely to result in another Spartacan attempt against the Government. The political effect of the execution asserted itself in Berlin.

The Spartacan movement has been in course of preparation for several weeks on account of the outcome of the trials of the slayers of Dr. Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, the escape of military officers imprisoned for the killing of Spartacan leaders, and the stern rule of Gustav Noske, the Minister of National Defense. The situation has fur-

One Delegate Says Pledge to Other Powers Has Not Been and Won't Be Broken.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 7.—The American delegation to the peace conference apparently is firm in its decision not to authorize the publication of the German peace treaty until it is signed, and not even to communicate the official text in its present form to the United States Senate.

A member of the American delegation in discussing the complaint made in the Senate concerning publication of the treaty in Germany and charges that copies were in the hands of New York bankers, said the delegation had not violated the pledge made to other powers not to give out the treaty and will not do so. He added that so far as he knew Germany had not been requested to keep the treaty secret, as such a request to an opponent would not be in conformity with accepted diplomatic practice.

The delegate, in replying to an inquiry why the covenant of the league of nations had been published, said that while the covenant was part of the treaty, it does not actually deal with the terms of peace, and, consequently, is essentially of a different character.

'WATERLOO WOULDN'T HAVE BEEN FIGHT FOR OUR 1ST DIVISION'

Gen. Summerall Declares Division Was the Apex of Battle for World Democracy.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

COBLENZ, June 7.—"What the old guard was to Napoleon, so the First Division is to the commander-in-chief of the expedition," said Major-General Charles P. Summerall, comander of the Fifth Corps, speaking at an open-air barbecue at the division headquarters at Montabaur yesterday.

"A few days ago I stood on the field of Waterloo in Belgium and I said to myself. 'Our first division could have crossed that, come back and never know that it was in a fight.'

"The Division was the apex of the fight for world democracy."

HOSPITAL TRAIN OPEN TO PUBLIC

Complete Equipment With 146 Wounded Soldiers Aboard to Be Here Today.

A completely equipped hospital train, bearing 146 wounded soldiers, four army field nurses and two Red Cross nurses, will be held in the troop yards at Union Station from 7 to 9 o'clock this morning to give St. Louisans their first opportunity for an inspection of the rolling hospitals used by this country in the war.

Special invitations to inspect the train have been sent to many societies and individuals, but inspection will be permitted by the general public. Entrance to that part of the train yards where the train will be held will be from the center of the Eighteenth street viaduct. The train is on its way from the east to Bayard, N. M., where its wounded occupants will be placed in a Government hospital for convalescents.

AMERICAN CITIZENS WANT BILLION

Requests for Damages Against Germans on U Boats are $600,000,000

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Claims of American citizens against Germany because of submarine warfare and the action of the German Government against American property in that country aggregate nearly one billion dollars, Congress was informed today by Acting Secretary Polk.

The claims growing out of submarine warfare alone aggregate $600,000,000, Polk said, and claims of other accounts are constantly reaching the department.

WOMAN ATTACKS "COUNT CHIMANG," BLACKENS AN EYE

She Came From New York to "Give Him One Good Slap;" Administers It Vigorously With Her Fist.

DECLARES HE GOT $18,000 FROM HER

Tells of Other of His Transactions and Says He Is Really Max Lutsig, Son of German Shoemaker.

The fastidious "Count Max Passy de Chimang," who is held here for the New York authorities on a charge of forgery, received a vigorous punch in the eye yesterday afternoon at police headquarters from Mrs. Lina Hoberg, 53 years old, a widow, who told the police she came all the way from New York to tell what she knew about him and "to give him one good slap."

The "slap" was administered with her fist, and blackened the "Count's" eye, but it was little satisfaction, she admitted, for the $18,000 he got from her in the last two years.

Another woman who entertained a different feeling for the "Count" was Mrs. Jean Landon, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., who sent the following telegram to him yesterday: "With you to the end. Be brave. God bless you." A third woman, who has a still different viewpoint of the case, is the "Count's" wife, a rather timid woman, who is being held at the matron's room at the holdover.

Mrs. Hoberg runs the "Winter Garden," an exclusive cafe at 119 Third avenue, New York, where wine dinners are a specialty. When she walked into the Detective Bureau here yesterday afternoon she wore a stylish silk dress, a picture hat, and many diamonds, but she was evidently laboring under strong emotions.

Demands to See "Count."

"Where is he? Where is this Count?" she shouted at Assistant Chief of Detectives Rundle. He advised her soothingly to calm herself.

She laughed bitterly. "Calm myself?" she exclaimed. "Calm myself? Oh, Lord, if you had suffered what I have, you wouldn't calm yourself. I want to see that swindler."

"Do you mean Count Chimang?" Rundle inquired.

"Count, my eye!" she snorted. "His name is Max Lutsig, and he's the on of a shoemaker in Hamburg, Germany." She drew a huge roll of canceled checks from her handbag.

"Just look at this," she commanded. "He got $18,000 out of me. Just let me talk to him; let me see him—oh, if I could only get my hands on him!" and she jumped up from her chair and paced the floor.

Detectives finally quieted her enough for her to tell the story of her dealings with the "Count," who at different times and under different circumstances, had been "Count Louden," "Count Max Lynar," "Count Lynar-Landon," and "Count Lynar-Chimang," not to mention Count-less names of the plain, ordinary American variety.

"He drove up in front of my place late one night about two years ago in the finest automobile I had ever seen," she said. "He had a liveried chauffeur and a footman. I never had seen him before, but he certainly did look prosperous. He told me his chauffeur had been arrested, and he needed $200 for a cash bond.

She Really Felt Flattered.

"He looked so rich to me that I actually felt a little flattered that he would come to me for the favor. He explained that it was too late to get hold of any of his friends, and I let him have the money."

Mrs Hoberg paused and struggled obviously with her feelings before she proceeded

"Well, he came back, and he was a good customer. When he dined, it was always the best. He was a prince of good spenders. He told me he was a shipowner. He said I had befriended him and he wouldn't forget it; he had some good Government contracts, he said, and he was going to let me in on them. One day he took me down to his office." She clasped her hands and rolled her eyes upward at the recollection.

"You should have seen that office. It was on Fifth avenue, opposite the Waldorf-Astoria, and it was the swellest place I ever stepped my foot into.

"He didn't like it, though, he told me. He had to dodge too many business men who were after him to take them in on his deals. He

CAR MEN STRIKE SUDDENLY IN DETROIT FOR HIGHER PAY

Service Stops at 10 P. M., When the Motormen and Conductors Walked Out.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., June 7.—Street car service in Detroit suddenly stopped at 10 o'clock tonight when motormen and conductors of the Detroit United Railways Co. struck to enforce their demands for increased pay.

The action was taken on the recommendation of W. H. Mahon, president of the Amalgamted Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, who was informed by President Frank W. Brooks of the traction company that a higher schedule of fare upon which increased pay for the men was contingent, had been refused by the City Council.

More than 2000 men are involved and the situation is unique in that the carmen claim the City Council rather than the traction company is responsible for the walkout. The men, union officials declared, are not resentful of the company's position and the company will make no effort to operate its cars, it has announced.

GEN. DUGAN, WHO JOINED 35TH OCT. 13, GETS THE D. S. M.

Citation Says He Commanded Seventieth Infantry Brigade With Great Distinction.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The War Department has received notification from the American Expeditionary Forces headquarters that Brigadier-General Thomas B. Dugan has received the Distinguished Service Medal. His citation reads:

"For exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services. He commanded the Seventieth Infantry brigade during a part of the Meuse-Argonne offensive with great distinction and marked ability. By his painstaking energy, zeal and great initiative he proved to be a material factor in the successes of the division."

A report that Gen. Dugan, a Regular Army officer, had been cited and decorated for work with the Thirty-fifth Division already had reached this country. The Thirty-fifth Division was withdrawn from the battle line on Oct. 1, and Gen. Dugan did not join it until Oct. 13. At that time the division was in the line in the Sommedieu sector, one of the quietest along the entire line. One night the enemy put over 7000 gas shells on the Thirty-fifth Division's position. This was said to be the heaviest action in that sector since the Crown Prince's battle for Verdun. There was no fighting outside of artillerying.

KANSAS CITY AFTER CONVENTION

Plans Laid for Inviting Republicans —St. Louis Competitor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

Kansas City, Mo., June 7.—Kansas City is out for the Republican National convention. At a meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce last night the president, B. A. Parsons, laid before the organization the proposal of John W. Breyfogle of Olathe and Gov. Allen of Kansas that Kansas City should invite the convention to meet in Kansas City.

It was pointed out that, in the opinion of Kansas Republicans, there was a better opportunity this year of winning the convention for Kansas City than there has been in any previous year. Parsons said that St. Louis probably would be a competitor.

WILSON AT LAFAYETTE TOMB

U. R. ATTORNEY'S TACTICS REBUKED BY JUDGE LAMM

Special Master Calls Line of Certain Questioning by H. S. Priest "Deceptive and Misleading."

$97,845 SPENT IN FIGHTING MILL TAX

Expense Thus Incurred Was Exclusive of Lawyers' Salaries, Evidence at Receivership Hearing Shows.

An attempt of Henry S. Priest to set up the salaries being paid to Receiver Rolla Wells of the United Railways and his attorney, Charles W. Bates, together with their retention in service of Thomas E. Francis, general attorney, and his staff, and other acts, in a comparison favorable to financial acts of the directors who preceded the receivership, now defendants of an allegation of wasteful practices, was rebuked by Judge Henry Lamm, Special Master in the receivership suit of John W. Seaman, during a half-day hearing yesterday.

"That is a deceptive and misleading basis of comparison," Lamm said. "The receiver was appointed by this court itself and salaries fixed by this court. If we are going into any basis of comparison it must be where duties are identical, and they are not identical here. I rule the testimony out."

Priest pressed his line of reasoning in further questions concerning officers' pay and duties, each time incurring an objection by Ephrim Caplan, attorney for the plaintiff, who was supported by the Master.

Makes Change in Tactics.

He then switched to questions concerning the company's power contracts, tending to show that Wells was continuing to buy power for the company under the contracts, which are attacked as wasteful and for the benefit, not of the United Railways, but of its holding company, the North American.

Caplan again objected.

"Overruled," Lamm said sharply. "Let it go in, but this court may be expected to know that a receiver can't make over a business over night, can't abolish them without court order and can't determine the advisability of new contracts until he investigates thoroughly."

Still Priest pressed his inquiry, asking James Adkins, treasurer of the company, how many payments Wells had made to the Union Electric Light and Power Co. under the contracts.

"You needn't answer that," Judge Lamm interrupted impatiently, "the number of payments cuts no figure."

Wants to Make Progress.

"I didn't think there was anything offensive in the question," Priest observed.

"What's the use?" Lamm asked.

"Counsel for the plaintiff didn't object," Priest said.

"No, but the Master has certain rights of his own," Lamm retorted, "and he wants to make progress without a lot of questioning that leads us way off to the side of the issues."

"Well, the Master showed a great leniency is granting leeway to the plaintiff's counsel," Priest said.

"Oh, well, if you put it on that ground, let it be answered," Lamm said.

Then Adkins said he didn't know how many payments had been made.

Though Caplan was presumed to have closed his case, offering of certain evidence which he reserved the right to persent occupied the entire hearing yesterday.

Presents Expense Summary.

Adkins was his witness, and presented a summary of the expense to the United Railways Co. of the litigation in the mill tax case from the time of the decision upholding the tax of the United States Supreme Court in May, 1908, to the time of the receivership in April, 1919. It is the allegation of Seaman that the general counsel wasted the company's funds in prolonging the fight against the mill tax after a decision unappealably establishing the legality of the tax.

The summary did not include interest on the tax which mounted during the years of the legal fight, or regular salaries of the railway attorneys. Its sum was $97,845. It included $32,108.96 in premiums paid to the Mississippi Valley and Mercantile Trust companies, who furnished bonds aggregating $3,000,000, guaranteeing payment of the tax by the company if it lost the suit.

The largest item was $35,000 extra

1700 MEN OF 89TH PARADE IN LAST HOMECOMING FETE

342d F. A., 356th Inf., 164th F. A. Headquarters and Military Police Represented.

MEN MOSTLY FROM FARMING SECTIONS

Only Part of Contingent Carries Rifles in March—Many St. Louis Officers With Artillery Outfit.

As the last squad of the Eighty-ninth Division parade moved into the City Hall plaza late yesterday afternoon, the eagle-topped pylons of the Court of Honor seemed to call to the passing soldiers, "Goodbye, boys." Then to each other, across the connecting cable hung with Allied medallions, the great pillars seemed to be saying:

"We are through. For us, the war is over. We have seen the joy and triumph of the city in the return of its heroes. We did not see the sacrifice, the heartache, the tears of bereavement. But we know of these, too, for the names of Argonne, of St. Mihiel, of Cheppy and the Meuse are on our sides. We have looked down upon men who wear the medals of their country for heroism, and on many more, equally heroic, who have not been so rewarded. Our work of welcome is done. As they say in Rome that St. Peter's is St. Peter's only when the Pope is at its high altar, so the Court of Honor loses its glory when there are no more returning regiments to greet. Now we are but a framework, awaiting the hand of the wrecker."

Who Paraders Were.

For this parade, in which 41 officers and 1597 men of the gallant Eighty-ninth marched, was the eighth and last of the series of processionals of homecoming overseas units, which began with the return of the 128th Field Artillery April 29.

The marchers were the 342d Field Artillery; four companies of the 356th Infantry, with band; the 164th Field Artillery Brigade headquarters, and the Eighty-ninth Division Military Police.

The entire Camp Funston section of the 356th Infantry had been expected to take part in the parade, but two of the regiment's three trains did not arrive until last evening. These trains stopped at the Red Cross canteen in the Union Station yards, and were welcomed by the Mayor's committee. The regiment is to parade in Moberly this morning, and may also march in Kansas City before going to Camp Funston for demobilization.

Two other units of the Eighty-ninth Division, the 342d Machine Gun Battalion and the 314th Field Signal Battalion, and a group of casuals, 449 men and officers in all, passed through the city yesterday morning, bound for Camp Funston, not stopping to parade, although they had been included in the invitation. "Hell with parades," an officer quoted the men of the machine-gun battalion as saying. "We had enough parade in New York. We want to get out of this army."

Two Other Parades.

The 342d Artillery and the brigade headquarters and military police detachments, which traveled with it, left on three trains soon after the parade. The schedule for its journey to Camp Funston calls for parades in Jefferson City this morning and in Topeka tomorrow.

The parade route began at the southwest corner of the City Hall Plaza and was on Fourteenth street, Washington avenue, Sixth, Olive and Eleventh streets, to Washington avenue, then to and through the Twelfth street Court of Honor. It started shortly after 3 o'clock, after a reception to the artillerymen and military police. The reception to the marchers of the 356th was held after the parade, which ended at 3:50.

Yesterday's paraders were in large part from places outside St. Louis, and the spectators along the line were not so numerous as they were for the parades of men with a larger local acquaintance. Tickets had been distributed for seats in the central part of the Court of Honor grand stand, and on the shady side of the street the stand was fairly well filled. On the sunny side of the street the stand was occupied but scatteringly.

But the official welcome was as complete and the floral greeting on the Twelfth street pavement as ornate as for the St. Louis units. The distribution of pennants in the

NAVY LEAGUE MADE UP OF "INFAMOUS MEN" SAYS DANIELS

Secretary Hotly Denounces Them Before Committee — Wants No "Tainted Money."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Officials and members of the Navy League, which attacked Secretary Daniels before the United States entered the war, were denounced before the House Naval Committee today by Daniels, who said they were "as much enemies of the country as any anarchists."

"These men," said the Secretary, "were as guilty of infamy as any man arrested during the war and they should have been accorded the treatment they deserve. While I am Secretary they can never have anything to do with the navy."

Representative Britten, Republican, of Illinois, asked the Secretary if he did not deem it wise to lift the ban against the league so that it could do welfare work in the navy and thus save the country part of the money asked of Congress for this work.

"Never!" declared the Secretary. "Never, not while I have anything to say about it. The league is composed of infamous slanderers—men who condemned the best men in the navy. After the Mare Island explosion they accused me of shielding the men responsible and conducting only a half-hearted investigation. It is a base lie, and those who said it realized it was a lie."

"But the organization has changed," Britten interrupted.

"I'm an expert on camouflage," said Daniels, "and I can see through the camouflage of that organization. We do not need a league to help us, which gives prominence to men in it for personal glory or profit.

"We don't want any side shows to stab us in the back. The league of which President Wilson is commander-in-chief and I chief executive, is all the show we need. Nor do we want a wet nurse. We take no tainted money in the navy—no money for welfare work from men such as those."

TWO PETITIONS ASKING FOR REMOVAL OF DR. HILL FILED

Curators of Missouri University Will Consider Charges at Meeting Tuesday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 7.—Two petitions have been formally presented to the Board of Curators of the State University, one of which prefers specific charges and asks for the dismissal of Dr. A. Ross Hill, president of the University. The second petition recites as interrogations the charges made in the first petition and asks for the dismissal of Dr. Hill.

The charges will be taken up by the board Tuesday. The petitions carry the signatures of about 15 members of the alumni association as individuals.

The first petition says Dr. Hill "has an ungovernable temper and used language unbecoming toward members of the faculty." It charges also that the attitude of Dr. Hill toward members of the faculty has driven many of the strongest teachers to seek employment in other universities. Among these, Dr. Henry J. Waters, formerly dean of the Missouri Agricultural College and later president of the Kansas State Agricultural College, Dr. Clark W. Hetherington, formerly athletic director of the university, and Dr. J. C. Whitten, formerly professor of horticulture, now with the California Agriculture College, are named.

The petition also says that when Dr. Hill assumed the presidency the university ranked third among state universities, but that today it stands near the bottom of the list.

The meeting of the board was to have been held June 27, and the changing of the date to June 10 has aroused several signers of the petitions.

PEACE ENVOYS RECEIVE WOMEN

Barnes and Others Reassure Jane Addams and Friends.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 7.—Jane Addams, Chrystal MacMillan and the other delegates appointed by the women's international conference for permanent peace at Zurich to present resolutions to the peace conference have been received by Capt. Andre Tardieu of the French delegation; Sir Joseph G. Ward, New Zealand, Minister of Finance; Edward M. House of the American delegation, and George Nicoll Barnes and Lord Robert Cecil of the British delegation.

One American delegate told them that women would participate in the various plebiscites provided by the peace treaty. Barnes said that nothing prevented the women from insisting that their Governments allow a woman to be appointed to membership in the commission on international labor legislation, while Lord Robert Cecil repeated his assurance that women could be elected to the highest posts in the league of nations.

60,000 MEN SAID TO BE AFFECTED BY THE ORDER

Call, Affecting Western Union, Postal and A. T. & T., Is Issued at Chicago on Instructions Telegraphed by President Konenkamp of Telegraphers' Union.

SOME NONUNION MEN LIKELY TO WALK OUT

Elaborate Instructions Sent to Those Workers Who Are to Be Exempted Not to Handle Any Commercial Messages.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 7.—A nationwide strike of telegraph and telephone operators who are members of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, was ordered today to take effect next Wednesday at 8 a. m. standard time. The order was issued at general headquarters of the union here on telegraphic instructions from S. J. Konenkamp, international president, who was in Pittsburgh on his way to Chicago.

The strike order is declared effective against employes of the Western Union Telegraph Co., the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the Postal Telegraph and Cable Co. with its associated institutions.

It was estimated at headquarters that the strike would affect between 60,000 and 100,000 individuals of whom nearly 25,000 were said to be members of the union. It was said many nonunion wire workers had pledged themselves to support a strike.

The decision to call a nation-wide strike was reached by President Konenkamp after spending several days in Washington, where he had directed a strike of union employes in ten Southeastern States. That strike had followed a strike of telephone wrkers in Atlanta, where telephone employes were said to have been discharged because of union affiliation, although the Southern Bell Telephone Co. denied that union membership had been the basis of any discharges.

A strike vote was taken recently concurrently with the International Electrical Workers' union.

Elaborate Instructions Issued.

Accompanying the strike order were elaborate instructions to members in which members employed by concerns not affected by the order were instructed to aid in making the strike effective. This, it was explained, meant that such employes of other concerns would refuse to handle telegraph and telephone messages classed as commercial business.

Canadian members of the union, it was said, would refuse to handle any commercial business originating in the United States or directed to any point within this country.

Railway telegraphers also would refuse to handle commercial business, it was declared, as a result of a resolution at the recent convention of the Order of Railway Telegraphers in St. Louis, declaring that such business would be banned by employes of that organization in the event of a strike.

In Chicago, it was said at union headquarters, more than 4000 wire workers would be affected. President Konenkamp had declared weeks ago that Postmaster-General Burleson had refused to grant the employes increased wages demanded, and that unless the union was recognized and the men given a raise in order to get relief from the high cost of living a strike would be inevitable. Konenkamp will return tomorrow to direct the strike.

Manager Denies Claim.

DEMOCRATS TAKE OFFENSIVE IN THE SENATE FIGHT

Battle of Parties Will Be on in Full When President Gets Back, Says Correspondent.

EVEN BREAK IN DEBATES OF WEEK

Features of the Fight in Congress Over the Treaty, With Politics Playing Vital Part.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Out of the snarls of a week's debate, the Democrats and Republicans emerged today about even. The Senate demanded the text of the peace treaty "if not incompatible with the public interest." President Wilson's answer probably will be that he will give the Senate a copy of the treaty when there is one.

All copies, documents, drafts, proposals and other material exchanged between the German and Allied Commissioners will be turned over in due time, but to transmit anything now would be to interfere with the control of the negotiations hitherto exercised by the executive branch of the Government under the constitution.

For, until the Germans sign the pact, it is not a treaty. And Mr. Wilson is not obliged to submit unfinished treaties unless he had reached a deadlock or wished action from the Senate. Republican Senators admit they have no constitutional right to get this treaty till it is finished but they also admit they passed the resolution to register their impatience at not being allowed to see it at the same time the German storekeepers and book publishers saw it and distributed it. Score in favor of the Republicans.

Turning the Tables.

The Democrats have lost no time in turning the tables on Senators Lodge and Borah who spread the sensational story that copies of the peace treaty were in the hands of unofficial persons in New York. Insinuations that the financial interests have a copy of the proposed treaty were conveyed by the debate. Senators Lodge and Borah refused to tell where they saw the alleged copies of the treaty. The Democrats quickly asked for investigation. But that is not the most interesting phase of the incident.

Senator Lodge endeavored to secure the passage of a substitute resolution proposed by Senator Kellogg of Minnesota which would not require either Lodge or Borah to testify concerning their own sensational charges. But Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, insisted that senatorial immunity should not be involved to conceal the names of anybody.

Mr. Lodge made the charge, he must sustain it. Who has the treaty, and how was it secured. The Democrats are sure Mr. Wilson didn't authorize anybody to have it and that the facts will show he had no knowledge or part in the transaction. So the Senate resolution specifically names Senators Lodge and Boroh and calls upon them to make good their charges. Will they tell where they saw the treaty, and who has it? The Democrats countered quickly. The score is in their favor unless the Republicans can prove the President gave copies of the treaty to persons in New York, or elsewhere who had no business getting it.

Irish-American Question.

Next, one comes to the action of the Senate in unanimously asking the peace conference to grant a hearing to the Irish-American delegates. Irrespective of whether the Irish question comes within the jurisdiction of the conference of Powers, there was considerable amusement today over the fact that Senator Borah on the one hand denounces American entanglements in European affairs on one day and then obtains the passage of a resolution calling upon the peace conference to listen to the discussion of what Great Britain, a European Power of considerable prominence, considers an internal affair and something entirely covered by her sovereignty.

And the truth is, Democrats as well as Republicans, believers in the league of nations and opponents of the idea, all joined in asking the peace conference to hear the Irish-American delegates. Both parties in the United States Senate would hardly want to offend the Irish element in the United States, so the score is about even on that Irish resolution. Politics is, indeed, playing a vital part in the Senate debates.

Los Angeles Election.

It is a far cry from Senate debate to a municipal election in Los Angeles, but Senator Phelan of California, having somewhat of a reputation as a witness, enlivened the proceedings the other day by having printed what he evidently regarded as a sequel to President Wilson's famous appeal for a Democratic Congress last fall, the appeal which was regarded as an intrusion on the rights of the voters to vote as they pleased. They have been having a mayoralty campaign in Los Angeles and Mayor Woodman, Republican, was running to succeed himself. Both Senators Lodge and Smoot, Republican leaders of the Senate, took part in the election. Here are two telegrams put into the record by Senator Phelan:

"May 17.
"Dr. A. J. Scott, Los Angeles:

"Senator Lodge joins me in the hope that every Republican will support the Republican candidate for Mayor in the coming city election. Don't let this administration point to Los Angeles as a Democratic city a year hence when the national campaign is on. The nation is Republican. We hope Los Angeles will be.
"REED SMOOT."

The second reads as follows:

"Hon James D. Phelan, U. S. Senate:

"M. P. Snyder, Democrat, elected Mayor of Los Angeles. All papers concede his election by 15,000 majority. Snyder now leading by 10,000. City Clerk estimates total vote cast, 75,000.
"F. RAY GROVES,
"Secretary Democratic County Committee."

Senator Phelan called this an "intrusion" but had no complaint to make about the result, any more than did the Republicans last fall when Mr. Wilson broke the self-determination theory himself. Both parties make the same mistakes. Politics is in the background of most of the debates nowadays and there is evidence that while the Republicans have had things pretty much their own way and are proposing a series of investigations of money spent by the Government to win the war.

The Democrats are bestirring themselves and taking the offensive. Feeling is running high and all that is necessary to make the fight complete is to have the principal object of attack—Woodrow Wilson—come back to Washington to take a hand in the fray.

"Ah, you don't know what a line of conversation that man has," she declared. "I believed him, and," she added, "I admit I thought I was going to make a cleanup Disappeared, Never Came Back.

"Then, on May 12, he disappeared, and he never came back. At the end of two days I opened his rooms, and found everything gone but this," and she took from her purse a large imitation diamond. "That was one of the showy things about him.

"Well, I knew he had been friendly with Mrs. Jean Landon of Poughkeepsie, and I went with a detective to watch for him." She then related how she and the detective intercepted telegrams sent from 'Count Chimang,' who was in St. Louis, to Mrs. Landon, which was followed by his arrest here Thursday in the Western Union Telegraph Co.'s office, when he was sending a telegram to Mrs. Landon.

Mrs. Hoberg repeated her request that she be allowed to see the "Count." Rundle cautioned her that she must not molest him, and asked her if she had a revolver.

"No, oh no, I have a prayer book," she said, somewhat resignedly. "I have prayed every night that I'd find him, and it's come true. No, I won't hurt him." The "Count" was brought in.

Surprised to See Her.

He was not the superbly groomed "ship owner" that Mrs. Hoberg had known. It was hot in the cellroom, and he had taken off his shirt. He looked at Mrs. Hoberg, and his chin dropped. He opened and shut his mouth a couple of times, but said nothing. Not so with his erstwhile hostess.

Her tones were biting as she stood before him. "Well, you didn't expect to see me here, did you, Uncle John?" she inquired mockingly. (His telegrams to Mrs. Landon had been signed "Uncle John.")

"I don't look like Jean, do I?" Her voice was rising. "But I am. I've been getting all the pretty telegrams." Her tone changed.

"Say, how much money did you get out of me?" she demanded. The "Count," who had recovered his composure, pulled his mustache before he answered rather deliberately: "Oh, about $12,000 or $15,000, I guess."

"Yes, I guess," she mimicked, "and a whole lot more." It was then that the "Count" looked her full in the face and smiled. She could hold in no longer. Before the circle of detectives could move, she planted her right fist squarely on the shirtless prisoner's left eye. The force of the blow staggered him, for Mrs. Hoberg is a woman of considerable weight.

"Just let me take one more punch at him," she screamed, struggling with the detectives. "Oh, I came all the way from New York just to slap his face; please let me blacken the other one." The detectives, however, decided the considerably mussed "Count" had better go back to his cell, a plan to which he heartily agreed. When he entered the elevator Mrs. Hoberg ran after him with a parting shot, holding out the piece of glass he had left behind in New York.

"Here's your fine big diamond," she called, as the elevator started downward.

"Count's" Wife Brought In.

His wife was then brought in. "You didn't expect to see me here, did you?" Mrs. Hoberg greeted her. "But here I am. And I'm going to stay here until I go back to New York with you folks." she added.

"Then she changed tactics. "That man is not in love with you. He spent my money on Jean. He's in love with Jean; don't you know that?"

"Well, he's my husband," replied the wife, defiantly.

"Yes, he's your husband, except for the other wives he has in Germany," said Mrs. Hoberg. "You know there's $40,000 in rewards for him out in Germany right now. You know he broke jail there twice."

The wife by that time was in tears. "No," she sobbed, "only once; he only broke out once."

"Well, he's going to break in again," said Mrs. Hoberg in a determined manner, closing the interview.

She gave the police details of her transactions with the "Count," and of other of his dealings. She insisted that a search be made for a safety deposit box, when told that he only had $6 when arrested.

Has "Lot of Money," She Says.

"Don't be fooled; he has a lot of money somewhere," she warned. "He got $60,000 from a Mr. Laisley of Newburg, N. Y.; $5000 from a New York saloon keeper named Gotch, besides the $10,000 he got from Mr. Barnard. It was on a charge of defrauding Barnard that he was arrested.

Detectives suggested to Mrs. Hoberg that perhaps the "Count's" personal charms had made her unusually trustful of his promises.

"Not on your life," she rejoined, stoutly. "He never so much as touched my hand. He simply buncoed me into thinking I was going to get rich, that's all."

She declared that she knew of thousands of dollars he had spent on Mrs. Landon, including $1500 she said he paid for a la valliere for her.

The telegram from Mrs. Landon today was addressed to "Max Lynar Landon, Police Headquarters."

Following his arrest, the "Count" declared that his wife was in New York, but the police found her at 1746 Missouri avenue. She had several trunks. He will be taken back to New York for trial.

Detectives who arrested him Thursday, said they remarked to him: "You are charged with swindling a lot of people in New York," and that he replied:

"Well, you don't blame me for that, do you?" He has admitted getting money from several persons, but declares it was all legitimate.

Among other claims he made yesterday was one that Theodore Roosevelt knew him and was friendly to him. He said when he was arrested after returning to Germany in 1898, Roosevelt obtained his release. Out of gratitude, he said, he got Roosevelt 6000 votes when he ran for Governor of New York.

MILLIONAIRE HELD IN ALLEGED SALVAGE PLOT

Grant Hugh Browne, Army Officer and Others Arrested in Under-Bidding Conspiracy.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., June 7.—An alleged conspiracy to defraud the Government of $30,000,000 worth of munitions supplies has been uncovered by Department of Justice agents here, it became known today.

Indictments charging conspiracy have been returned by the United States grand jury against Capt. Sotarius Nicholson of Washington, connected with the Ordnance Department; Grant Hugh Browne, millionaire sportsman; Fred C. Collins, Vice Consul of Greece and president of a local realty company, and a United States army officer now in France, according to Arthur L. Barkey, chief of the Detroit Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice.

According to Barkey, Capt. Nicholson was induced to handle the plot on "the inside." An officer in the Ordnance Department learned of the deal and notified the Federal officers, who declare that by means of a dictaphone they obtained records of conversation of the alleged conspirators in Nicholson's rooms.

To make certain of the case the officers of the Department of Justice, Barkey declares, followed the plot through the first deal. Collins, Bert Harris and Browne, wealthy junk dealers of New York, the officers state, bid on $300 worth of munitions here last week. Browne, as planned, Barkey says, was the highest bidder and obtained the contract. A total of $30,000,000 worth of munitions was to have been salvaged in Detroit.

The name of the officer abroad was withheld. The other four are under arrest at Fort Wayne here for trial. Harris will be arraigned Tuesday.

The conspiracy, according to Barkey, contemplated the elimination of all other bidders for munitions which the Government was to salvage in Detroit. The munitions, it is alleged, were to be disposed of by Harris. To conform with the requirement that at least three bids be made before Government-owned material could be sold, it was arranged, it is alleged, that bids would be entered in the names of Collins and Harris, and Browne would then outbid both, at a figure far below the value of the supplies.

More Pay for Silk Workers.

PATERSON, N. J., June 7. — An increase of from 10 to 20 per cent in the wages of the 27,000 silk workers in this city has been granted voluntarily by the owners of the textile mills here, it was announced tonight.

RADICALS ACTIVE IN BERLIN AGAIN; ORDER BIG STRIKE

nished the Independent Socialists, Spartacans and extremists with handy ammunition.

The political disaffection has extended to the Majority Socialists and resolutions adopted by factory and working men's councils call on the party convention, which will meet at Weimar Tueday, to demand the retirement of Socialists from the present Government. The radical opponents of the Ebert and Scheidemann Governments are also using the tangled peace situation as another weapon with which to attack their former comrades.

If the Cabinet weathers the blow it is believed it will be chiefly because the allied reply to the German counter proposals will be sufficiently favorable and conciliatory to enable the present Government to regain its prestige.

Any tangible progress in the peace negotiations from the German viewpoint is expected to prove an effective counter irritant to the maneuvers of the Independent Socialists.

Today the flurry had hardly reached the stage of acute crisis, although the followers of Hugo Haase were said to be predicting the overthrow of Ebert and Scheidemann within eight days.

The German National Assembly will meet in Berlin the latter part of next week.

Disorder reigned in Munich all last night, acording to advices received from the Bavarian capital. Machine gun firing was heard intermittently. The newspapers were not able to appear. The metal workers' strike in Munich has extended to Nuremburg and Fuerth.

U. R. ATTORNEY'S TACTICS REBUKED BY JUDGE LAMM

fees to Priest, who during the fight drew $40,000 a year salary. Priest also was given $808 expenses. Other extra fees to attorneys were: Morton Jourdan, $6650; Former Supreme Judge James G. Gantt, $500; Judson & Green, $500; F. N. Judson, $500; Schnurmacher and Rassieur, $1500; Judson, Green & Henry, $1250, and Lawrence Maxwell, $2616.18.

The printing of briefs cost $5922.40; court costs, $4655.12; stenographers, $5272.85; expenses of attorneys, nearly all employes of Priest, $552.41.

Upon inquiry of Lamm, Caplan said that this exhibit was one supporting the charge of waste.

"Let it go in for what it's worth," Lamm said. "Eleven years is longer than the siege of Troy."

Priest Reads Minutes.

To justify his fight in the mill tax, Priest read into the record excerpts from minutes of the Board of Directors indorsing and authorizing his course as general counsel in fighting the mill tax. The first resolution offered was of June 20, 1916, by A. L. Shapleigh, seconded by D. R. Francis Jr., "to notify Henry S. Priest to continue to defend the mill tax case." The second was of Dec. 19, 1916, offered by Breckinridge Jones, seconded by A. L. Shapleigh, "approving every step taken by the general counsel" granting him authority to proceed in the courts "under full approval of the board."

The third was of Sept. 28, 1916, offered by J. D. Mortimer, president of the North American Co., seconded by A. C. Brown, adopting the suggestion of Priest that the city be approached in a conciliatory letter asking for a conference looking to the settlement of the mill tax and franchise suit controversies.

Following this up, Priest introduced a letter he addressed to City Counselor Daues asking for a conference of committees of the city and company, and Daues' letter acceding to the suggestion.

Priest appeared prepared to continue to define the steps toward a settlement, but Judge Lamm indicated that he thought he had gone sufficiently far.

Caplan by question of Adkins established that C. H. Cole, whose application, with that of William B. Thompson, for permission to intervene in the case on the side of the United Railways as stockholders, was taken under advisement by Lamm last Monday, did not appear on the company's books as a stockholder.

Adkins brought copies of the correspondence by which the monthly payments of the railways to its holding company, North American, was increased from $500 to $1000 a month in June, 1918. As discovered Friday, Receiver Wells stopped those payments when he assumed charge.

Lamm inquired whether any other companies acted as agents to pay interest coupons on bonds and was told that there were several. He asked what remuneration they got if any. Adkins replied that except for the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., which was not paid, the others got 1-8 of 1 per cent.

Adkins testified that the amount of judgments outstanding against the company in damage cases was $309,291 of appealed judgments and $79,259 of unappealed judgments. He said that pending suits aggregated $3,712,000. Adkins said that the company had $362,000 of United States bonds placed as security for appealed judgments.

Priest questioned Adkins as to the percentage of amounts sued for in damage cases that became judgments. Adkins said the company figured that it would have to pay out an amount equal to about 8 per cent of the aggregate amount sued for each year.

Priest attempted to show by Adkins that about 62½ per cent of the cases were won by the company before juries, but Adkins said he didn't know whether that was correct. He also was unable to say what per cent of the cases were settled out of court.

LEGALITY OF MARRIAGE QUESTIONED IN COURT

Illinois Law Forbidding Ceremony Within a Year of Divorce Mentioned in Ascher Hearing.

Cross-examination of Mrs. Birdie Ascher, 1318 North Newstead avenue, in her suit for divorce from Henry Ascher, being tried in Circuit Judge Falkenhainer's court yesterday, indicated that the defendant is planning to attack his marriage to her as void because she was married to him in Illinois less than a year after she had obtained a divorce from her first husband, Sam Schucat. Under the Illinois law, a divorced person must wait a year from the date of obtaining a decree before marrying again.

Mrs. Ascher's case was up on a motion for alimony and suit money pending trial. She alleges that her husband has real estate appraised in excess of $100,000. According to her testimony, he owns the Ascher Apartments, consisting of 24 suites, at Hamilton and Enright avenues, with a monthly rental return of $1100, and other realty holding in the city which place his rent receipts at $1500. She said he is not providing for her support.

Asked About Her Divorce.

The defendant's attorney, John A. Hope, asked Mrs. Ascher about her divorce from her first husband. To this her lawyer, former Supreme Judge Charles G. Revelle, objected on the ground of immateriality. Judge Falkenhainer overruled the objection on Attorney Hope's statement that it was material to the defense. "It may show that we have a void marriage here," said the attorney.

The plaintiff admitted that she and Schucat were divorced May 6, 1911, and that she was married to Ascher Oct. 27 of the same year at Belleville, by a Justice of the Peace. The attorney asked if the Justice inquired whether she ever had been divorced, and, if so, at what date. She said he inquired as to the first, but she did not recall that he asked about the date. She said he did not explain that the Illinois law prohibited a divorcee from marrying again until one year after the decree was granted.

Mrs. Ascher's attorney argued that Ascher was not in ignorance of the matter and could not now take advantage of a legal defect to rid himself of a responsibility. Anyhow, he said, even if the marriage performed by the Justice was not legal, the couple had lived together long enough to effect a common-law marriage.

Ascher did not go on the stand yesterday, and time was granted for him to plead. The alimony hearing will be resumed Tuesday.

The couple separated May 1 last.

Says He Assaulted Her.

An allegation in the petition is that Ascher became angry because his wife removed a picture of the Kaiser's summer home which he had hanging in the house and assaulted her. He again assaulted her when she destroyed several of his German phonograph records, she avers.

Ascher was the principal witness for the State in the bribery cases of two members of the old House of Delegates, who, it was charged, had solicited money from Ascher when the latter wanted a bill passed to allowed him to build a garage at 5011 Delmar boulavard. A trap to catch the delegates was laid by the then Circuit Attorney, Arthur N. Sager, and resulted in the alleged passing of $500 in marked bills by Ascher.

7 WEBSTER GROVES FIREMEN STRIKE WHEN CHIEF QUITS

The resignation yesterday of Fire Chief Ralph Eddie of Webster Groves, and the announcement of Mayor Holekamp that John Grueninger, former Sheriff of St. Louis County, would succeed him, was followed by a walkout of the entire force, consisting of seven firemen, with the result that Webster Groves was without protection against fire except for volunteers that might have been recruited in an emergency.

It was all due to the policy of economy which the new ctiy commission government inaugurated after its installation recently, Commissioner George Bopp said. He couldn't understand why Eddie would quit.

"All we wanted him to do was serve as Fire Chief during the day until 8 p. m., and as Night Chief of Police from 8 to midnight," Bopp said. "After midnight, he didn't have anything to do until morning, unless a fire broke out during the night, and, in that case, we were willing to let him make up the lost sleep the next day. He was to get $140 a month.

"Before this, he was Fire Chief and Street Commissioner, and he got $125 as Chief, and $15 a month as Street Commissioner, so the salary would have been just the same."

GOV. HOBBY ASKS FOR MORE BORDER TROOPS

Says Situation Is Serious, Requests Baker to Call Out Texas Cavalry.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Declaring that the Mexican situation is so critical that a larger force of troops on the border is necessary to protect lives and property of citizens, Gov. Hobby of Texas has requested Secretary Baker to call into the Federal service the First and Second brigades of Texas Cavalry and to mobilize them at a convenient point.

The War Department immediately telegraphed the commanding General of the Southern Department, who has charge of the border guard, asking his views on the request and for any information bearing upon the situation described by Gov. Hobby.

Gov. Hobby's telegram to Secretary Baker follows:

"The Mexican situation appears to be so critical that an emergency may arise at the most unexpected moment requiring a larger force of troops on the border to protect lives and property of citizens than are at present available. I appreciate that for border duty cavalry is the most effective arm of the service and I also appreciate that the regular army is short of cavalry. Therefore, I respectfully urge and recommend that the First and Second brigades cavalry, National Guard of Texas, be called into the Federal service. I urge that the call include brigade commanders and brigade headquarters detachments so that the cavalry organization may go intact under command of two brigade commanders. I also suggest mobilization be fixed for definite date not less than 20 days from date of call in order that officers and men can arrange personal affairs and such officers and men who have dependents and for other satisfactory reasons may be discharged and their places filled with others who will be anxious to go into active service. This 20 days' period will also provide time to arrange details for transportation and camp. I suggest Camp Mabry at Austin as mobilization camp. My anxiety that lives and property of citizens be amply protected and my knowledge of conservatism and efficiency of officers and men of Texas cavalry brigades prompts this suggestion."

Confidential reports reaching the War Department within the last week regarding the situation in Northern Mexico contained no information, it was said, that would lead army officers to hold the opinion expressed by Gov. Hobby. The border guard at present exceeds 20,000 troops, including cavalry, infantry, field artillery, air squadrons and engineer units, distributed from Yuma, Ariz., to south of Laredo. The latter point is headquarters of the Fourth United States Cavalry. Behind these is an even larger force at the demobilization camps or en route.

Major-General DeRosy C. Cabell, in command of the Mexican border district, has standing orders to dispose the American troops as he thinks best to protect lives and property.

NATION-WIDE STRIKE OF TELEGRAPHERS IS CALLED FOR WEDNESDAY

Telegraphers' Union, "Will amount to nothing," according to a statement tonight by Newcomb Carlton, head of the Western Union Telegraph Co.

"The Western Union would like to assure the public that there will be no delay in handling their messages," said Carlton.

Carlton said the company had questioned all its employes as to whether they would obey the strike call and that 147 out of the 28,000 in the territory to which the strike was to be extended had replied they would walk out. These had been discharged. Carlton said, not because they were union men, but because they had said they would quit when directed to do so by Konenkamp.

500 Commercial Telegraphers in St. Louis Said to Belong to Union.

President R. F. Wise last night said that about 500 St. Louis operators were members of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, including 70 per cent of Western Union employes and all but five of the Postal employes. He said that he could not state how many would obey the strike order, but said that the vote of the Western Union employes on the proposal of a nation-wide strike was 9 to 1 in favor of striking.

G. R. Alger, chief operator of the Western Union, said that the company had 400 employes who would be affected by a strike order, but that he believed 95 per cent of them would remain loyal. Wise said that 360 of the Western Union employes were girls, a majority of whom had affiliated with the union.

W. W. Morrison, general manager of the Postal, said that his company had about 100 operators. Both Morrison and Alger said that in the event of a strike telegraph service out of St. Louis would be continued.

Wise said that enough employes probably would stay at their work to maintain some sort of service. However, he said, the full effect of the strike would be felt in all small towns, not only about St. Louis, but in the country at large. He explained that the recent convention of the Order of Railway Telegraphers in St. Louis had voted to instruct their members to refuse to send commercial messages in small towns in the event of a strike of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union.

Wise said that the demands of the telegraphers was a 30 per cent increase in wages. He said that the recent award of Postmaster Burleson was in reality a cut in wages, as it abolished the 3 per cent bonus on wages paid annually by the Western Union and Sunday overtime.

About 25 employes of the American District Telephone and Telegraph Co. in St. Louis also are affected by the strike order, Wise said. These men set up leased wires owned by the telephone company, but which are used for telegraphy also by brokers, market exchanges and similar organizations.

Alger said the Western Union handled about 70,000 messages in St. Louis daily.

Wise said that Joe Kinsella, a Western Union employe, was summoned before Alger yesterday and was asked if he intended to strike. "If a strike is called, I do," he replied, Wise said, and thereupon he was discharged. Alger corroborated the incident. "We thought if he was going to quit he might as well quit then," he said.

Members of the union will meet today at 2:30 p. m. in Central Public Library, Thirteenth and Olive streets.

Phone Operators and Others to Go Out June 16, Says Konenkamp.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburg, June 7. — Telephone operators throughout the United States and electrical workers, who are members of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, will go on strike June 16, in connection with the strike of telegraph operators, ordered for next Wednesday, according to announcement made here tonight by S. J. Konenkamp, international president of the union. When informed that the official strike order for telegraphers had been issued from Chicago headquarters of the union, Mr. Konenkamp said: "We will win the fight."

GOVERNMENT LOSS $30,000 A MONTH ON RIVER SERVICE

Manager of Operation of Fleet Says St. Louis Shippers Have Sent Out Only 12,830 Tons in Eight Months.

COST HEAVY WITH UNSUITED CRAFT

New Barges Being Constructed With Capacity of 20,000 a Week and Disinterestedness Causes Concern.

H. S. Noble, Acting Director of Inland Waterways, stated during a visit to St. Louis last week that the United States Government was maintaining the fleet of six towboats and 25 barges known as the Government River Service, on the Mississippi River between St. Louis and New Orleans at a loss of between $30,000 and $40,000 a month.

Since the cessation of the war, the continued operation of the service has been in the nature of an experiment to determine whether there is a demand for water transportation and whether water transportation at a rate lower than rail transportation is financially profitable.

A. W. Mackie, manager of operation, upon inquiry, gave figures on the deficit and reasons for its existence. "The receipts from freight charges during the first quarter were insufficient to meet the expenses of the operating department alone," he said. "The chief expense of operation is the manning of the boats and provision of fuel oil for their propulsion. During the first quarter of this year, the receipts from freight charges totaled $97,315, while the expenditures were $159,975, a deficit of about $20,000 a month. Other departments than the operating department are the office of the Federal manager, and the traffic and accounting departments.

"There are two major causes for the deficit. One is that the operation of a hastily-assembled temporary fleet of old craft not suited to the work to which it is put is costly.

"The other is that St. Louis shippers have failed to consign any great volume of general merchandise which is first-class freight and productive of good revenue to the line.

12,830 Tons in Eight Months.

"In fact, in 32 trips downstream covering a period of eight months, St. Louis shippers have consigned only a little more general merchandise to the river than the capacity of one towboat of our new fleet now building to carry in one trip, and we contemplate two sailings a week with the new fleet. The downstream capacity of each of the new towboats is 10,000 tons. In eight months St. Louis shippers have given only 12,830 tons of their merchandise to the barge line. This amount is infinitesimal when compared to the total movement of freight in and out of St. Louis, which last year was about 78,000,000 tons.

"The total downstream tonnage of the River Service from Sept. 28 to June 1, was 48,543 tons, of which 35,713 tons was wheat furnished by the United States Government itself. The freight charge for wheat is 12 cents a hundred pounds. The freight rate for general merchandise, such as is shipped daily from St. Louis in great quantities, is 25 cents a hundred, or more than double the charge for wheat. Yet, grain was our major cargo instead of a base cargo, as it should be. Had we had less wheat and more merchandise our revenue would have been much greater.

"However, the deficit is not so much a matter of concern to me as the apparent disinterestedness on the part of St. Louis shippers which the figures on their consignments indicate. If 12,000 tons is the most they could produce for the river in eight months, how is the new fleet of 20,000 tons a week capacity to be filled? The merchandise business is increasing each month, showing a tendency to come to the river, but the tendency is a driblet movement so far and soon we will be facing the need of a great volume of freight to give the new fleet a fair trial.

A Deficit Expected.

"It never was anticipated by the most enthusiastic of waterways advocates that the fleet such as we now are operating wolud be self-sustaining. We are operating with a flock of horses with the heaves. All of our power craft are old.

"No one would think of sending a one-ton truck 25 miles for a load instead of a five-ton truck. Yet that is the operation at present. The new towboats will have at least five times the present capacity.

"The same condition holds for the barges. They were acquired, not for their suitability, but because of their availability. Of the 25, only five originally were merchandise barges. The remainder were designed for rock and material for riprapping. They are small—only 500 tons capacity. They cannot be loaded to deep draft. The new barges are 2000 tons.

"The expensiveness of this temporary condition is accentuated by the fact that the organization required for the operation of small capacity is virtually as expensive as the operation of the new fleet, with five times as great capacity, will be. The crews are as large. The new fleet will move with virtually the same fuel consumption as this temporary fleet.

"The question of profitable operation, in my mind, depends not on the expense of operation, as much as on whether the new fleet will have capacity cargoes."

MISSING TEXAS WOMAN AND CHILD FOUND HERE

Man Said to Have Been Living With Her Arrested at Instance of His Wife.

Mrs. Flora Foster Brown, 39 years old, and her daughter, Heloise, 7 years old, who mysteriously disappeared from their home at Dallas, Tex., on March 24, 1916, were found in St. Louis yesterday at 4735 Page boulevard by detectives after they had arrested Charles Merrill, 42 years old, on complaint of his wife, Mrs. Frances Merrill, who is 20 years her husband's senior.

According to the detectives Merrill and Mrs. Brown were living at the Page boulevard address as "Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Nunnelly." The child has been living with them. The woman is the wife of George P. Brown, auditor of the Dallas Police Department.

When Mrs. Brown and her child disappeared a nation-wide search was conducted for them without avail. It was generally believed that they had been foully dealt with, but Brown clung to the belief his wife and child were still alive.

Woman and Child Detained.

Mrs. Brown is an attractive blonde. She and her child are detained in the Matron's section at Police Headquarters awaiting advices from Brown. Merrill is being held for the Federal authorities, suspected of violating the Mann act.

When confronted by his wife, Merrill is said to have admitted that he was her husband. "Mrs. Nunnelly" also admitted that she was Mrs. Brown and had run away from her husband because, she declared, he mistreated her. She said she was "through with him" and would not return. When asked if she intended to stand by Merrill she glanced at his wife and then said she did not know what she would do in that regard.

Mrs. Merrill said she had been on the trail of her husband for a long time and had followed him through nine States. The Merrills also lived in Dallas, and he disappeared from his home there at about the same time Mrs. Brown went away. His absence, however, was not connected with that of Mrs. Brown. His wife said she was surprised to find he had been with the missing woman.

Mrs. Merrill arrived in St. Louis several days ago, after learning that her husband was living here with a woman and little girl under the name of Nunnelly. She went to the neighborhood where she heard they were and accidentally came upon Heloise, who said her last name was Nunnelly.

Makes Friends With Girl.

Mrs. Merrill bought candy at a drug store for the child and questioned her. Heloise told where her mother and Merrill could be found.

Mrs. Merrill rented a front room at 4717 Page boulevard, where she kept vigil two days. Then she saw her husband leave 4735 Page yesterday morning, and she notified the police. Merrill was arrested early in the afternoon at Eighteenth and Olive streets, when he was leaving a place where he has been employed as a salesman. Mrs. Brown and her child were taken into custody later in the day.

The couple and child have been in St. Louis over a year, it was stated.

1700 MEN OF 89TH PARADE IN LAST HOMECOMING FETE

grandstand added greatly to the welcome given as the line passed.

The marching men repaid a close view. In large part they were men from the farms and the small towns of Missouri, with a considerable number of men from Kansas. They were mostly big men, but their grouping in squads seemed to have no relation to size and stature, and here and there a man below medium height would be seen marching in a row of six-footers.

The artillerymen, being without rifles, were also without the straightening effect which the rifle gives to its bearer, and some of them showed the stoop of the plowman, which their almost two years of military training had not wholly removed.

In the start on Fourteenth street some of the men who had not been eager to march seemed fagged, and grumbling was heard, but the complaints ceased whe nthe large buildings of the wholesale district, with their cheering forms at the windows were reached. As they went through the Court of Honor many of the men were carrying flowers and local relatives and acquaintances were walking beside some of them. So it turned out to be a very pleasant afternoon.

The Mounted Police, at the head of the line, wore their new summer uniforms of gray, and many persons did not at first recognize them as policemen, but seemed to think them a visiting unit of cavalry.

Lieutenant-Colonel Rudolph E. Smyser, commanding the 356th, and his staff, marched ahead of the 356th Regiment band. This band of 35 pieces was praised by persons who have heard the bands of numerous military units. It played its airs in a quick rhythm which speeded up the movement of the line, and its musical quality was most pleasing.

F and G. Companies of the 356th the regimental headquarters company, supply company and a group from the sanitary detachment formed the first part of the parade, and the only part which had rifles. All the marchers wore overseas caps. The infantrymen were in column of half-platoons.

Military Police Insignia.

Maj. Edward R. Handlan of St. Louis and staff, on foot, headed the artillery regiment, which was in column of squads. Two local bands marched with the artillerymen, who were followed by the smaller bodies of military police and the brigade headquarters.

The M. P. contingent was not distinguished by the broad sleeve bands which are worn on duty. Instead, the men had small red letters within their divisional insignia. But their commander, Capt. John S. Crofut of Kansas City, had two broad bands of bright red on the front of his collar, giving his costume almost a French effect.

Red Cross ambulances, driven by women of the motor corps, came at the end of the line. A gold star flag was carried for each regiment.

A number of St. Louis officers, besides Maj. Handlan, were in the parade. Among them were Capt. J. S. Lehmann, son of Fred W. Lehmann, former Solicitor-General of the United States; Capt. John J. O'Fallon, son of Mrs. William S. McChesney; Capt. Thomas B. Crews Jr., First Lieutenant Walter B. Condie, First Lieutenant Monroe C. (Poge) Lewis, former Washington University football star; Second Lieutenant Weston Blalock and Second Lieutenant Paul A. Johnson. These are all in the artillery regiment. Capt. William Coatsworth was the only St. Louis officer of the 356th Infantry in the parade.

Lieutenant-Colonel Smyser wears the Croix de Guerre for his work in the Argonne offensive. First Lieutenant Adrian Lindsay of Kingfisher, Ok., was a star of the Eighty-ninth Division Rugby football team, which won the A. E. F. championship in France.

In the reviewing stand, Mrs. Fred D. Gardner, wife of the Governor, took his place, as the work of signing and vetoing acts of legislation had kept him at Jefferson City. Acting Mayor Aloe headed a group of city officials, and others in the group were Edward Hidden, chairman of the Mayor's Welcome Committee; Mr. and Mrs. W. S. McChesney, and George H. Moore, Collector of Internal Revenue, whose brother, Lieut. Jerome E. Moore of the 356th, was killed in action.

Will Remove Grandstand.

The work of removing the grandstand will begin tomorrow. The Mayor's committee has learned that one company of one of the machine gun battalions of the Eighty-ninth Division, detained in the East, may pass through St. Louis this week, but it is not thought likely that its members will wish to parade here.

The previous parades in the Court of Honor, and over routes of various length leading to it, have been those of the 128th Field Artillery, Base Hospital Unit 21, the Southwest Missouri Machine Gun Battalions, the 138th Infantry, the 110th Supply Train, the Twelfth Engineers, and the 354th-355th Infantry outfit. There were about as many men in the 354th-355th parade as in yesterday's parade, while the 138th was somewhat larger. The failure of two-thirds of the 356th to arrive in time kept yesterday's parade from being the largest. The men of the 356th stopped to see Niagara Falls, and laid over at Peru, Ind., for an exercise march.

Machine Gunners and Ten More Companies of 356th Infantry Arrive.

The second and third of the trains carrying the 356th Infantry arrived in the Union Station yards at dusk last evening. The second, which came in at 8:15, carried the machine-gun company and A to D Companies inclusive, and was in command of Capt. William P. Montgomery of Topeka. Lieut. Scott Wilson, one of the officers on this train, was formerly a resident of St. Louis. There were 13 officers and 460 men on this train.

The third train, commanded by Capt. Abraham L. Thomas of Columbus, O., had E, H, I, K, L and M Companies, 11 officers and 458 men in all. About 75 St. Louis men were on this section.

A special visit was made to L Company by the sisters and brother of the late Capt. Arthur Y. Wear, its former commander. These were Mrs. G. Herbert Walker, Mrs. Max Kotany and James H. Wear. They went through the car occupied by the men of L Company, speaking individually with those who had been in the company when Capt. Wear had it.

Several hundred persons gathered on the Eighteenth street bridge, and these were admitted to the station yard before the departure of the trains, which was after dark. The men of both trains were canteened by the Red Cross.

Field Signal Battalion Had Splendid Record of Accomplishment.

The 314th Field Signal Battalion, which passed through St. Louis yesterday morning without parading, distinguished itself by laying lines of communication to the most advanced positions, under fire, the head of the telephone lines keeping close up to the infantry all the time. The battalion suffered 20 casualties from gas the first night the Eighty-ninth Division went into the trenches. The battalion suffered heavily from gas shelling at a number of other times.

During the St. Mihiel drive, the battalion enabled the advance guard of the division to keep in communication with the rear at all times, the linesmen often using German wire to make their connections. When it was impossible to get wire strung, radio signals served. Many men went without eating for long periods.

Elaborate preparations were made for the resumption of the advance in the Argonne-Meuse area Nov. 1 by the division, and the signal men had to work in desperate haste under continuous shelling. Despite this, the lines were laid, the doughboys went forward, and the telephone wires continued unrolling behind them steadily, as they went.

Two of the four men of the Signal Battalion who received the Distinguished Service Cross, were aboard the train that passed through St. Louis. They were Sergt. Roy M. Sauers of Freemont, Neb., and Sergt. Elgin J. Moore of Los Angeles, Cal.

Capt. Roy J. Ojers of C Company, 342d Machine Gun Battalion, who commanded the machine gunners on the same train, said the company was cited for its crossing of the Meuse River the night of Nov. 10.

Welcome Pleases Col. Smyser. "More Than We Expected," He Says.

Lieutenant-Colonel Rudolph E. Smyser, in command of the 356th Infantry, which led the parade, said, as the men entered the Court of Honor:

"We are very, very much pleased, and I want to express the thanks of the officers and the men for the cordiality of the reception, which is much more than we expected."

The Red Cross and the city have treated us wonderfully. We didn't expect to march on roses. But the men of Missouri deserve it. This city and State has every reason to be proud of them."

Maj. Edward R. Handlan of the Buckingham Hotel, in command of the 342d Field Artillery, expressed himself as greatly pleased with the reception.

"The reception we received is much more than we ever expected," he said, just after passing through the Court of Honor. "We only thought we'd done what we had been called upon to do. We've come back here now to see what we can do with what we've learned on the other side, with the assistance of what those who have stayed over here have learned.

"We'd like to see the strongest action taken on the building of good roads and the conservation of our forests, such as we've seen on the other side."

When Maj. Handlan stepped from the troop train he was greeted by his mother, Mrs. A. H. Handlan; his sisters, Mrs. Harry Hornsby of Joplin, Mo., and Mrs. Harry Bisbee, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. A. H. Handlan Jr. He kissed them all, but clung longest to his mother, who repeated over and over again: "He just looks fine, he just looks fine."

356TH HAD ACTIVE PART IN FLATTENING ST. MIHIEL SALIENT

Fought at Bantheville, and in Meuse-Argonne Offensive Up to Armistice Day.

The 356th Infantry has a brilliant record of service. The roster of its members who have received the Congressional Medal of Honor and the Distinguished Service Cross is printed on page 11B of the general news section of today's Post-Dispatch.

The regiment took an active part in the fighting which wiped out the St. Mihiel salient, in the early part of last September; in the Bois de Bantheville wood fighting, late in October, and in the Meuse region, west of Pouilly, from Nov. 1 to 11. It fought up to the very end of hostilities, and some of the awards for heroism are for deeds performed Nov. 11, armistice day.

C Company of the 356th, in the Meuse-Argonne area, carried out by night an order to clean out the northern end of a wood, where the Germans were intrenched in force, and to occupy a sunken road which crossed at the end of the wood. The next night, Germans filtered back into the wood from the sides, cutting off the unit from its support, and completely surrounding it.

Then began a three-day test of endurance, while the Germans rained shrapnel, high explosive and machine gun bullets on the little band, interspersing the bombardment with determined bayonet attacks. The Americans, cut to pieces, without food or water except what they carried, and without means of evacuating their wounded, held on doggedly, until relieved by the three other companies of the battalion, which were themselves badly shattered by going through a barrage to complete the rescue.

Capt. Marcellus H. Chiles of Denver, who led the relieving companies, was killed later in the performance of a feat for which he was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The 342d Field Artillery was part of the 164th Artillery Brigade, which did not see enough action to suit its members, yet which took part in the bombardment of late September in the St. Mihiel sector, which kept the Germans there from sending relief to their battered comrades in the Argonne, where the offensive was then beginning. If the projected smash on Metz had been made, the 342d would have been in the midst of it. But the armistice prevented.

SIDELIGHTS OF THE LAST HOME-COMING PARADE OF SOLDIERS

Many members of the 342d Field Artillery were entirely unfamiliar with St. Louis. Drillmaster Roemer of the Police Department, who was on duty at City Hall plaza, said that half a dozen of the artillerymen asked him where the ctiy hall was. They could have hit it with a hand grenade.

When the 356th Infantry Band came in front of the Post-Dispatch building Robert Burgen, of 2722 Armand place, drummer in the band, was given a welcome by members of a local band, lined up at attention. They dragged him from the ranks and crowded around to clasp his hand. He was formerly a violinist in the Symphony Orchestra.

The rotunda of the city hall was a scene of solitude, but the note of a reed instrument was heard echoing through the marble arches.

A lone clarinetist stood on the staircase, surrounded by his family. Musician Philip Martini, 356th Infantry Band, of 2310 South Third street, was showing his mother how he had played when Gen. Pershing reviewed the division.

Salvation Army Band.

Proof of the Salvation Army's departure from its old-time street-corner revival methods was given by the Salvation Army band at City Hall plaza. No more were they playing gospel hymns, but instead the six members, all men, lustily played the latest popular airs. The soldiers appreciated the music and rallied around the band all afternoon. It was composed of two cornets, a French horn, a flute, and a bass and snare drum, what was lacked in numbers and technique being made up in morale.

Two civilians marched with the Eighty-ninth Division M. P.'s throughout the parade. Both were former officers in the outfit, but reached home ahead of the regiment and thus received discharges earlier. They are Joseph L. Patton, a buyer for a brokerage firm, a former first Lieutenant, and Ross McClanahan, of Fulton, Mo., who was a second Lieutenant.

Scout Spills Coffee.

Edward Finnegan, 14 years old, a Boy Scout on duty at the Union Station, was severely burned shortly before noon when he tripped while carrying a buck of hot coffee to the men who arrived on the third troop train. The coffee spilled over both arms. He was sent to St. Mary's Infirmary for treatment, and after a short time was back on his job with both arms bandaged.

Charles W. Betty of 5114 Kensington avenue, a flour dealer, who has presented a large bouquet of flowers to the commanding officer of each body of troops which has paraded in St. Louis, was on hand as usual yesterday afternoon. At Twelfth street and Washington avenue, as the parade moved east, he handed a bouquet to Lieutenant-Colonel Smyser. It bore a card inscribed: "To the officers and boys of the faithful Eighty-ninth."

Two Drives Commemorated.

Two bronze stars, indicating service in the two major offensives of the American Expeditionary Forces—the St. Mihiel drive and the Meuse-Argonne advance—were worn on the service ribbons of every man. This decoration has only recently been authorized by the War Department and the Middle-West soldiers were quick to adopt it.

On coaches bearing the returning soldiers were chalked in large letters, such inscriptions as these:

"We brought home the bacon and held a piece of the Rhine."

"What did you do while we were gone? No beer, no work."

"We are from Missouri, but the Huns couldn't show us a thing."

"Gott Mitt Uns—Nit.

"Missouri bound to be the garden spot of the world."

"To hell with the Kaiser."

Mrs. J. B. Rule, assistant commandant in charge of the Red Cross Canteen, has been a tireless worker through all the long period in which troops have been returning, setting an inspiring example to her assistants. Yesterday she made her record, not only superintending and planning the serving of one of the largest numbers of men in one day, but being on the job 23½ hours, almost continuously. She came down at 10:15 Friday evening and stayed until 9:45 last night, as the last men of the 356th Infantry pulled out.

While the last two sections of the 356th were being canteened, after dark, the civilian band that had greeted them played popular airs, standing under the arc lights. One big doughboy seized his best girl when he heard a stirring one-step played and danced all about with only the cinders for a floor. However, he knew how to dance, as did the girl, and they danced merrily on, oblivious to the crowd.

VISIT OF U-BOAT TO COMPLETE CITY'S WAR EDUCATION

Submarines, Anti-Submarine Craft and Flying Boats Will Be on Exhibit Through July 4.

MOST OF VESSELS HAVE WAR RECORD

U. S. Submarine K-5 Served Year in War Zone—Captured Undersea Boat Sank 16 Allied Ships.

Submarines, anti-submarine craft and flying boats will be exhibited here, beginning the last of this week or the first of next week, and through to July 4, subject only to that capricious condition known as the stage of the river, which must be favorable to permit the craft to get here.

This probably will be the last of the war exhibits sent by the Government to St. Louis, and it will complete the war education of St. Louisans, who have already become familiar with trench models, artillery and the forms and the feats of airplanes and tanks. To be sure, the big battleships do not essay to come here, but it was the small craft, and not the dreadnaughts and cruisers, which made the chief showing of active work in the war.

The United States anti-submarine flotilla, which is expected to arrive here not later than next Sunday, and to remain a week or more, comprises the U. S. S. Isabel, a destroyer type, the American submarine K-5, two flying boats and two 110-foot submarine chasers. A third submarine chaser, the advance boat of the flotilla, is now here.

Captured U-Boat Here for July 4.

The captured German submarine UB-88, which is being displayed independently of the flotilla, has left New Orleans for St. Louis, and is under orders to reach here not later than July 1, and to remain through July 4.

The flying boats of the flotilla flew from Memphis to Cairo yesterday, making the 175 miles in two hours. They will wait at Cairo for the arrival of the water craft.

The flotilla's trip upstream is being made with as few stops as possible, the plan being to complete the stay in St. Louis while high water continues, and to make stops at cities and large towns on the return trip. The German submarine probably will follow the same plan.

The United States submarine K-5 is the flagship of Division 3 of the submarine force of the Atlantic fleet. She is a Holland type, with a length of 151 feet, beam of 16 feet, draft of 14 feet, is equipped with two eight-cylinder Diesel engines, carries eight torpedoes and has four torpedo tubes. The torpedoes, manufactured by the United States Government, have a range of three and a half miles.

She is in command of Lieutenant-Commander Thomas G. Berrien, with Lieut. J. V. K. Richards as engineer officer. Commander Berrien has been in charge of the K-5 since February, 1918. He is from El Paso, Tex., and is a Naval Academy graduate of the class of 1913. Lieut. Richards is from Philadelphia, and enlisted as a master mechanic, first class, on the day a state of war was declared. He was commissioned the following September.

U-Boat Has Crew of 27.

The German UB-88, one of the submarines surrendered by Germany last November under the armistice terms, is 185 feet long, beam of 22 feet, and draws 13 1-2 feet in fresh water, requiring a depth of channel of 15 feet for her safe passage. She carried one gun and 10 torpedoes. She is commanded by Lieutenant-Commander J. L. Nielson, the other officers being Lieut. G. B. Evans, Lieut. Barden and Gunner Raymond, with a crew of 27 men. The UB-88 is said to have sunk 12 allied ships.

The U. S. S. Tuscarora, commanded by Capt. Searles, is acting as tender for the UB-88, and accompanies her up the Mississippi.

Flying Boats Were in Active Service.

The flying boats of the anti-submarine flotilla are in charge of Lieut. Henry T. Stanley of Lynn, Mass., who has a record of eight months on active duty with the British Naval Air Service and was officially credited with the sinking of one submarine; Ensign R. W. Arthur of Havre de Grace, Md., an instructor at the Key West Naval Air Station; and Ensign William S. Grooch of El Paso, Tex., who has served in France as a night bombing pilot, and in submarine patrols on the French coast. Both the flying boats were in active service in the war.

The U. S. S. Isabel of the anti-submarine flotilla is a destroyer type, and has seen active service in foreign waters. She is commanded by Lieut. T. N. Vinson, a native of Missouri, who went to the Naval Academy from California, graduating in 1914.

The submarine chasers are commanded by Ensign F. A. Patten of Norfolk, Va., Ensign F. E. Vensel Jr. and Ensign H. R. Alker of New Orleans, Ensign Alker being in command of the advance boat which is now here. The advance arrangements are in charge of Lieutenant-Commander Wells Hawks, who has been here during the past week.

SERGT. YORK MARRIED AS 2000 LOOK ON

Governor Performs Ceremony Under Trees — Mammoth Feast Then Is Spread.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PALL MALL, Tenn., June 7.—Beneath the big beech tree under which he won his fame as a marksman in turkey matches, Sergt. Alvin C. York, "greatest hero of the war," was married today at noon to Miss Grace Williams, belle of the valley of the three forks of the Wolf river.

Two thousand persons gathered on the big hill overlooking the famous York spring to witness the ceremony performed by Gov. Albert D. Roberts of Tennessee, himself a native of York's section in the Cumberlands.

The bride was gowned in white satin and wore white shoes and stockings. She also carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses. The distinguished bridegroom wore a serge uniform and wore the Congressional Medal of Honor and the Croix de Guerre with palm, both awarded for his remarkable feat in the battle in the battle of the Argonne, Oct. 8, 1918.

Youngest of 13 Children.

Miss Williams, who is the youngest of 13 children, was attended by three maids of honor, Misses Ida Wright, Maud Brier and Adelia Derwin, while York's best man was a comrade in arms, Sergt. Henry Clay Brier.

Preceding the ceremony, homecoming exercises were held in honor of the hero and other Fentress County service men. Gov. Roberts and Maj. E. B. Stahlman, owner and publisher of the Nashville Banner, delivered the principal addresses.

The Governor, his staff and other distinguished visitors from over the State were seated on a rock platform, over which curved a huge arch draped in the national colors. The huge rock forming the natural platform was covered with roses. J. T. Wheeler of Jamestown, who was chairman of the Fentress County exemption board which sent York to the army, was master of ceremonies.

Motion-picture men were prohibited from reeling the occurrence by the Sheriff of Fentress County, on strict orders from Gov. Roberts.

Following the ceremony, during which York's words were plainly audible and those of the bride scarcely so, the vast gathering enjoyed a feast spread upon long tables made from chicken wire stretched on poles. Prayers were said by the Rev. W. T. Haggard, Chaplain-General of the Governor's staff, and Pastor Rosier C. Pile of the Pall Mall Church of Christ in Christian Union, who converted the big, red-headed benedict.

Will Be Governor's Guest.

York, his bride and mother will go to Nashville for a visit Monday and Tuesday. On Monday night he will receive a gold and jeweled medal from Gov. Roberts in the name of the people of his native State. On Tuesday he and his bride will be the guests of honor of the Nashville Rotary Club at the Hermitage, the home of Andrew Jackson, and Tuesday night the party will be honored at a banquet by the Rotary Club.

During their visit in Nashville the party will be the house guests of Gov. and Mrs. Roberts at the executive mansion. Tuesday night they will depart for New York.

Included in the food prepared for the wedding dinner were one beef, one hog, 100 turkeys, six goats, four sheep, all donated by the people of Pall Mall. The 2000 visitors brought baskets loaded with all sorts of good things to eat.

WEALTHY NEGRESS MARRIES

Mrs. Lelia Walker Robinson, daughter of "Madame" C. J. Walker, who died last week and who was known as the richest negro woman in this country, and perhaps in the world, was married yesterday at New York to Dr. Wyley M. Wilson, a negro physician of Washington, D. C., who formerly conducted a drug store at 2341 Market street, St. Louis.

Mrs. Robinson was a widow. She returned from a trip to South America two days before the burial of her mother, last Monday. She is the principal heir to the estate of her mother, estimated at more than $1,000,000.

SAYS LAUMEIER LEFT DAY AFTER MARRIAGE

Wife Declares Real Estate Man Treated Her as if She Were a Casual Acquaintance.

Mrs. Byrd Laumeier, 23 years old, wife of Herman Henry Laumeier, 43 years old, a realty operator of 2201 South Grand avenue, testified in her divorce suit in Circuit Judge Davis' court yesterday that Laumeier left her with her relatives in Chicago the day after their marriage, July 8 last, and, although she was ailing at the time, he did not return for several days. She also said he did not provide a home for her and treated her as if she was a casual acquaintance. He did not introduce her to his relatives and friends and ignored her in other ways, she also complained.

She cited that one time when they were dining at the Hotel Statler he left her sitting alone and joined another party at a nearby table. The members of the party, she said, did not know she was his wife and he did not tell them. She said she overheard him accept an invitation of a woman to call on a young woman the former was expecting as her guest.

Laumeier is not contesting the case. After questioning the plaintiff as to her length of residence in this city, Judge Davis took the case under advisement.

Mrs. Laumeier said she came to St. Louis in December, 1917, from Chicago, where she owned an interest in a cigar business, and at various intervals had lived at the Statler and Maryland hotels and in an apartment in the West End, which was supposed to be her husband's home, but where he did not live, she said. At present she is staying with relatives at 4939 West Pine boulevard. Her mother lives in Washington, D. C.

Laumeier is the son of Mrs. Christine Laumeier, who is rated as one of the wealthiest women in the city. They have a country home at Sappington, Mo.

MAN ON CAR SHOT IN CHASE AFTER ROBBERS

A robbery with a number of thrills, including the capture of a man identified as one of the robbers by the victim of the robbery, and the wounding of a street car passenger by a stray bullet, took place at Sixth street and Franklin avenue at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

A. E. Moser, a dentist at 610A Franklin avenue, and his assistant, Miss Harriet Wright, 3830 Maffitt avenue, were getting ready for the day's patients when two men, each masked with a handkerchief, and each holding a revolver, entered. While one of them held the pistols, the other bound the dentist and the young woman to office chairs with a clothes line which they carried with them.

A search of Dr. Moser's pockets netted $7.70, and one of the bandits twisted the $150 diamond out of his scarfpin.

"If you come out of this office inside of 10 minutes, you will be killed," they warned the trussed-up dentist, backing out.

However, they had hardly reached the street when Moser struggled free of his bonds, got a revolver from his desk, and dashed after the robbers. They were turning south into Sixth street when he saw them. He ran to the corner and fired twice. One man stopped, and held up his hands. Another continued running.

Frank McLaughlin, 30, of 4855 Natural Bridge avenue, passenger on a Natural Bridge car that was going south on Sixth street, clapped his hands to his head, and fell over on the seat, stunned by a glancing bullet which lacerated his scalp. He was taken off the car at Washington avenue by a traffic policeman, and sent to the city hospital.

Meantime the man with his hands in the air was surrounded by pedestrians and persons who had run to the street at the firing. He denied that he had robbed anybody. He had just been in a fight, he said, and was running away from the scene when Moser started shooting. He said he was Robert Preston, 23, a laborer, of 3206 Washington avenue.

Moser was certain that Preston was one of the robbers, and Miss Wright, who had by that time been liberated, also was positive in the identification. McLaughlin was taken to the hospital. Preston was locked up.

No arms were found on him, but a revolver was found on the sidewalk near where he stopped when Moser started shooting. No trace was found of the diamond or of Moser's $7.70.

3500 BOY SCOUTS TO SOLICIT 90,000 $1 CONTRIBUTIONS

Campaign Will Open Tomorrow for Fund to Extend Work—Lads Sold $12,000,000 Liberty Bonds.

HEADQUARTERS IN WOODS ARE DESIRED

11,500 Associate Members Here Asked For, to Continue Recruiting Among City's 90,000 Boys.

It may have been that many St. Louisans recognized among the Boy Scouts who paraded through the downtown districts yesterday noon those boys whom they have seen surrendering their seats in street cars to women, closing pads on the radiators of automobiles which owners have forgetfully left to the mercies of frost, guiding old persons across streets filled with swift death, lightening the bundle-burdens of others, touching their caps as they offer other sorts of service.

While it is not true that all boys who give up their seats in street cars and otherwise show their alertness to courtesy are Boy Scouts, it is true that no Boy Scout ever neglects an opportunity of that sort.

"On my honor I will do my best:
1. To do my duty to God and my country;
2. To help other people at all times;
3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

That is the Scout oath and, of course, it entails obedience to Scout law whose twelve precepts usually put him on the road to being 12 kinds of a boy—trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent.

Campaign for $90,000.

There are 3500 Scouts in St. Louis and tomorrow they will open a campaign during which they will ask 90,000 St. Louis men and women to be "good scouts," also, to the extent of $1 contributions that the 90,000 boys of St. Louis who are not Scouts may get on the same road they are traveling.

Scout training has reflected itself in several incidents related of St. Louis Scouts by Maj. H. H. Simmons, who founded and has since directed the movement here.

A Scout, working after school hours, fell down a flight of stairs with a load of bundles and through a skylight. The arteries of his left arm were severed, so that he was in danger of bleeding to death within two or three minutes. His Scout first aid training enabled him to instantly stop the blood flow until medical aid came.

The accident was near the office of the head of the firm.

"Take him into Mr. Blank's office," someone said.

"No, no," the boy protested so vehemently that he was not moved.

Some time later the boy was asked why he had insisted that he be not carried to his employer's office.

"Mr. Blank is an old man," he replied. "Scouts are taught that a shocking sight, such as I was, might prove fatal to old persons."

A Scout in a Storm.

On a night last summer of a production in the Forest Park open-air theater, a storm of which there had been no warning broke and the rain descended in torrents. The several thousands persons present rushed from their seats. Caught in their rush was a woman about 80 years old, who gazed about helplessly. A Boy Scout, alert to such an emergency, saw her and was at her side instantly, guiding her to shelter. When she was safe from storm and crowd, she said:

"I came all the way from San Francisco to St. Louis yesterday. It was worth the trip and its cost just to know that there is such courtesy in our coming generation."

A troop of Boy Scouts was on its way home from a Saturday hike, passing one of the ball fields in Forest Park. A catcher in a game had suffered fractures of two fingers and was suffering greatly. No physician was near. One of the passing Boy Scouts bandaged the fingers temporarily in such fashion that the pain was relieved and that the physician whom the injured player finally reached remarked the skill of the job.

St. Louis is conscious in a general way whenever the city undertakes any patriotic or civic enterprise that about the scene of action are khaki-clad youthful figures who are always busy and who are never too busy to be busier if call is made upon them.

Bonds They Sold.

But the knowledge of specific accomplishments is not general. Scouts have never demanded publicity of their accomplishments. St. Louis business firms were careful in all Liberty Loan drives to send word to newspapers that they and their employes had purchased certain impressive amounts. Few St. Louisans know that St. Louis Boy Scouts sold $12,329,650 in Liberty bonds in three campaigns, in two campaigns defeating their fellow Scouts in all of the cities of the United States in number of subscriptions taken. Nor do they know that St. Louis Boy Scouts located thousands of walnut trees about St. Louis at the request of the United States Forestry Service which desired to know where Uncle Sam, up to his ears in war, could find stocks for the rifles that were to prod the Huns to retreat.

They distributed 100,000 pieces of literature in the fourth loan campaign; as ushers they have handled hundreds of thousands of persons at public events; they put more than 120,000 "safety first" cards in St. Louis windows and elsewhere during Safety First Week; they helped raise the fund that gave the city's heroes of the 138th Infantry a Christmas present in France; they have done work in Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. campaigns on which no estimate can be placed; they have distributed baskets to the poor at Christmas time, paying for them themselves; they sprinkled flowers before G. A. R. veterans on Memorial Day; they collected clothing for ill-clad Belgian boys. The list of service might run on interminably.

What Scouts Have.

Against this debit to her Boy Scouts St. Louis has placed virtually nothing to her credit. The St. Louis Scout movement is the least supported financially of any city of size in the United States. Not more than $5000 a year has been available. Other cities have $25,000 and more. St. Louis has given her Scouts no recreation camp equipment and remains the only city of size that has not done that.

Once St. Louis undertook to raise $15,000 for a three years' Boy Scout Budget and did not attain that sum, the campaign stopping at $12,000. The fact is that the Boy Scout movement has been supported by a handful of men, notable among whom are Clarence H. Howard and Charles Nagel. It has happened that when general notices were to be sent out from central headquarters, a begging tour for stamps was necessary.

St. Louis Scouts are now asking St. Louis to furnish 11,500 associate memberships to be turned over to the National Council and, in addition, to pledge $75,000 for use over three years in establishing a headquarters in the woods and for recruiting some thousands of the 90,000 boys eligible to become Scouts in St. Louis.

That St. Louis acknowledges her debt in some measure was indicated yesterday when the Scouts paraded They marched through the Court of Honor, down Olive street and back Washington avenue, with every one of the 231 troops in the city represented. At some points the applause had great volume.

Women in the Drive.

More than 1000 women are engaged in the drive under the leadership of Mrs. Louis J. Brooks, who is assisted by these district directors: Mesdames Charles Claflin Allen, Willard Barlett, Walker Hill, Harvey G. Mudd, A. W. KIMBALL PLAYER PIANOS

YOU home lovers, think of what a KIMBALL Player-Piano means in happiness for the family. First, all members can play to their hearts' content, giving expression to individuality and musical taste. For the finished pianist, the KIMBALL is an artistic piano for hand playing. Then for the children learning to play it is invaluable both as a piano and as a player. Why deny your family the great joy of a KIMBALL Player? A small payment down brings one to your home; a little each month pays for it.

VOTE SAID TO SHOW UNIONS FAVOR STRIKE FOR MOONEY

Report by Defense League Secretary States That Only Barbers and Printers Oppose Move.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 7.—The Mooney Defense League today, through Anton Johannsen, secretary, announced returns of the vote on the proposed general strike of trades unions in connection with the demand for a new trial for Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings, convicted of participation in the Preparedness day bomb explosion in San Francisco. No definite figures were given, the result being grouped as follows:

Coal miners, metal miners, workers, railway car men, each 100 to 1 in favor of the strike; timber workers, packing trades, longshoremen, painters, boot and shoe workers and bakers, each 50 to 1 in favor; brewery workers and electricians, each 40 to 1 for the strike; metal trades, cigarmakers, each 20 to 1; miscellaneous trades, 10 to 1; plumbers, 10 to 6 for the strike; carpenters, 10 to 7, and bricklayers, 10 to 8 for the strike; barbers and printers each 8 to 1 against the strike.

The announcement said the strike will be considered at the convention of the American Federation of Labor, which opens at Atlantic City, N. J., on Monday.

5 WIN UNIVERSITY SCHOLARSHIPS; 3 ARE 16 YEARS OLD

685 Will Be Graduated From the City's 6 High Schools, Exceeding by 148 Class of Any Previous Year.

Three of the five students who will be presented with Washington University scholarships as a reward for exceptional records in scholarship at the high school commencement exercises this week are only 16 years old, while two of them completed the four-year course in three and one-half years. The highest average for the entire course was made by Helen Mildred Buckley of the Cleveland school, who will be graduated with a grade of 96.16 per cent. This average is a record grade at Cleveland and has seldom been equaled by students at the other schools.

Three of the winners are girls and two are boys.

Katherine Marie Pfeifer, 16 years old, 2102 Blendon place, scholarship winner at Central, had an average of 93.8 per cent, completing the regular four years' work in three. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Pfeifer and is a graduate of the Roe Grammar School. She was vice president of the Girls' Literary Society and took a great interest in that work.

Major Earl Neely of Yeatman High is just 17 years old. In addition to his studies he has worked during his spare hours in a floral shop in order to be able to continue his studies. He expects to support himself while at Washington University. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Neely of 3820A North Grand avenue.

G. Gardner Wright, 16 years old, of McKinley High School, will be graduated with an average of 93.2 per cent, finishing in three and one-half years. He is the son of Frank J. Wright, president of the Acme Paper Co., and lives at 310 South Elm street, Webster Groves.

Helen Mildred Buckley of Cleveland High has the unusually high average of 96.16 per cent. Miss Buckley was an active member of the Latin Club and is a student of the organ. She did not miss a day at school during her four years. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buckley of 616 Kansas street.

Florence Louise Walters, 16 years old, who is winner of the scholarship at Soldan High, has completed the regular course in three and one-half years. She was an active member of the Girls' Literary Society and Athletic Association, and had a leading part in the recent school play. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wade Walters of 5847 Enright avenue. Her father is principal of the Ashland School.

Total of 685 Graduates.

Six hundred and eighty-five students will be graduated from the six high schools, the largest number to be graduated at one time, exceeding by 148 the number in June, 1918, which established the previous record. The largest number of graduates, 210, will be at Soldan. McKinley is next with 117; Central, with 96; Yeatman, with 96; and Cleveland, with 94. Seventy-two students will be graduated at the Sumner (colored) High School.

The graduation exercises at the Central, Cleveland and Yeatman high schools will be held Thursday at 8 p. m. The commencement exercises at McKinley will be Wednesday evening, and at Soldan Thursday at 10 a. m. The Sumner graduation will be Wednesday evening.

Fifty-five students at the Harris Teachers' College, the training school for elementary school teachers, will receive diplomas for the completion of the two-year course at the commencement exercises at the college, Park and Theresa avenues, Wednesday at 2 p. m.

The High School graduates are as follows:

THE CRIME OF THE AGE

Is the selling of Spectacles and Eyeglasses by incompetent opticians who call themselves doctors and others. None of these men are physicians. Ask them for their license to practice medicine in Missouri.

NOTHING IS MORE PRECIOUS THAN EYESIGHT

I AM a physician, oculist and optician and have practiced for many years in St. Louis. If your eyes are diseased I will care for them, and should glasses be needed, I will prescribe and make them correctly, and the total cost for treatment and glasses will not exceed the price of a pair of glasses that may do irreparable injury to your eyes. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. I am both the oculist and optician. The privilege of communicating with any of my thousands of patrons is extended to any who care to do so.

$2.50 a pair BI-FOCAL LENSES $2.50 a pair

For far and near seeing—two pairs of Glasses in one. The usual price is from $3 to $5 per pair.

$1.55 A splendid rimless Eyeglass mounting; a clever imitation of the Shur-On; this week at $1.55 a pair. $1.55

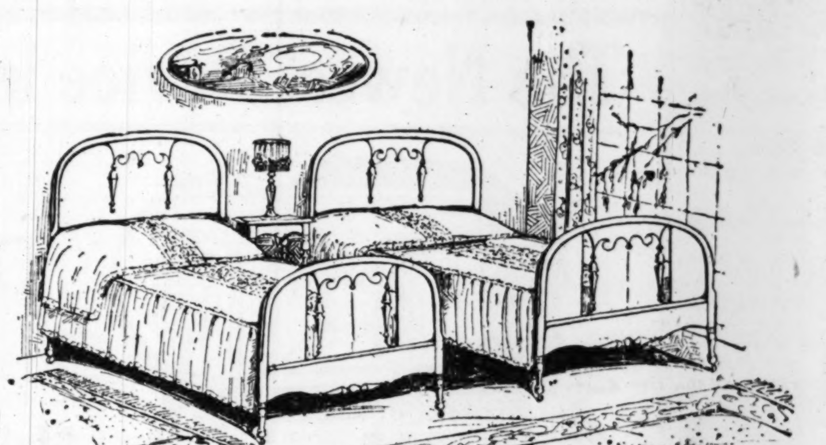
TRORLICHT-DUNCKER

WE are putting on sale this week some very desirable pieces of good furniture that for various reasons are without the matching pieces that form complete suites. The Trorlicht-Duncker method of quickly selling these odd pieces is to advertise them at special prices, prices way below their real value. The quick and generous response of the public to these advertisements indicates a strong approval of our method.



These Mahogany Twin Beds

3 feet 3 inches wide, 5 feet 2 inches high, well constructed and finely finished. We have a number of these fine beds left over because of selling so many suites with full-size beds instead of these. Our regular price is $61 each, but we will close this lot at $38.75

These Windsor Twin Beds

In both ivory and mahogany—dainty in appearance but substantially constructed; 3 feet 3 inches wide, 4 feet 3 inches high. A number of these are left over. Our regular price is $58 each, but we will close this lot at only $38.75

Queen Anne design walnut Twin Beds, well made and well finished, 3 feet 3 inches wide and 4 feet 1 inch high. Specially reduced in price to, each $38.75

Another Queen Anne design in Twin Beds, splendidly constructed and finely finished, 3 feet 3 inches wide and 4 feet 4 inches high. We have them in both antique mahogany and American walnut. Specially reduced in price to, each $38.75

Windsor design mahogany Twin Beds, substantially built, well finished and quaintly elegant in appearance, 3 feet 3 inches wide, 4 feet 3 inches high. Specially reduced in price to, each $38.75

Modern English design ivory Twin Beds, decorated, well built, antique finish, 3 feet 3 inches wide, 3 feet 10 inches high. Specially reduced in price to, each $38.75

Trorlicht-Duncker for Rugs---Always

Orinoka Sunfast Fabrics

For curtains of all kinds and for overdraperies, too. The colors in these fabrics are proof against the hottest of Summer suns and also against the energy and ignorance of the ordinary laundress. They are guaranteed to be genuinely fast color.

We have them in plain and fancy weave reps, small figured monotones and vari-colored stripes. All are 50 inches wide. Prices range, according to quality, from, a yard, $2.50 to $5

Belgian Stripes

50 inches wide and quite the correct fabric for loose covers for furniture—our price is, yard $1.25

We also have fast color linen stripes, 50 inches wide, and of best quality. They make very distinctive and elegant Summer covers for handsome furniture. Price, a yard, only . $3.50

Ruffled Summer Curtains

The Curtains that are quite the vogue this season; that are being sold in great numbers; that are popular with discriminating women because of their daintiness and snowy freshness. We have them in several qualities and many patterns, but direct your attention to one particular lot which combines beauty of pattern, good quality and a low price. We sell them at, a pair, only $2.75

GOOD WEATHER FAVORS THE SELLERS IN CORN MARKET

Week's Price Range Is Lower After Early Buying Due to Small Stocks; Oats Also Easier.

With the visible supply of corn about 10,000,000 bushels less than was the case a year ago, and with planted acreage smaller and the status of the growing crop below normal, prices of futures here early last week scored material upturns. Later, however, the gains were lost on good weather and big receipts. Compared with a week ago the corn market at the close yesterday was 1c to 3c lower. Oats were down ½c to ⅝c.

Industries, elevators and shippers competed actively for all the arrivals of corn during early days, and although fear that a squeeze might accompany the final adjustment of May contracts proved to be unfounded, the enhancement of values met no check until transient tightening of the money market put bullish sentiment something at a discount.

Subsequently, improved crop conditions tended further to take away part of the upward strain on values. Bearish sentiment, too, acquired more or less additional impetus later by reason of the fact that after yesterday holdings for any individual interest will be restricted to a maximum of 200,000 bushels.

Oats were eased chiefly by the excellent crop outlook, and by liberal receipts as compared with last year.

The corn market demonstrated one thing last week. That is that there is considerable more corn on the farms than the trade recently reported. Receipts have been running heavy as compared with a year ago, and the movement has been the largest noted at this season in four years. Bulls declare that the movement is transient and always takes place at this time of the year. Bears claim that farmers have been holding back their grain owing to high prices and now are willing to sell it before the new crop is on the market, and that the movement will continue large on this account.

News of the week generally was bearish. In addition to ideal weather for the crop, reports from the wheat and oats belts were almost perfect, except the late rumor of dry weather in the Northwest where the weather map showed good rains during the week. Hog prices are declining. A move has been made in the United States Senate to abolish the Grain Corporation and open the wheat market to the law of supply and demand. It developed that the strike in Canada resulted largely from the high cost of living.

Cattle prices have declined materially in the last two weeks, and cotton and other commodities are trending downward. Figures showing that living costs are lower in other countries, where supplies of food are not as excessive as the United States, are causing comment, as Government figures issued during the week show wheat stocks in elevators and mills well over last year's supplies, and the new wheat crop already is being cut in Texas and Oklahoma, and the harvest will be general in about 10 days or two weeks.

Texas and the South will have an abundance of grain this year, whereas a year ago crops generally were a failure. Cash and export demands for all, except wheat, grains are light.

SEPTEMBER CORN FIRM IN THE CHICAGO MARKET

Early Prices Are Lower on Good Weather, but Rally Follows When Shares Cover Contracts.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Fresh declines in the corn market today went hand in hand with continued liquidation by holders. Buying support was poor. Good weather and labor unrest were among the chief bearish factors.

Opening prices, which ranged from ⅜c to 1¼c lower, with July $1.68 to $1.68½, and September $1.58¼ to $1.59, were followed by moderate additional setbacks, with July at $1.67 and Sept. $1.57¾.

Oats dropped with corn. After opening ⅛c to ⅜c off, including July at 67¾c to 67⅞c, the market developed further weakness, with July at 66¾c and Sept., 64¼c.

Week-end adjustment of trades led to something of a rally. The close was unsettled, 1c net lower to 1½c advance, with July, $1.68¾ to $1.69, and September, $1.60½ to $1.60⅝. In the later dealings, lard and ribs showed recuperative power, but pork continued weak.

COTTON 40 TO 52 POINTS HIGHER AFTER EARLY DROP

Rally in Late Trading Causes Firm Tone to New York Market at Week-End Session.

NEW YORK, June 7.—A further decline met active covering for over the week-end in the cotton market, while trade buying was also reported on the rally which carried October contracts up from 27.53c to 28.40c. That delivery closed at 28.25c, with the general list closing firm at a net advance of 40 to 52 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 9 points to an advance of 4 points and was very nervous and unsettled right after the call. There was considerable Southern selling, while Liverpool was a heavy seller here and local pressure was promoted by the favorable weather map, with prospects for improving crop accounts. July soon broke to 28.56c and December to 27.24c, with active months generally selling 20 to 30 points net lower.

In the case of October contracts this made a decline of a little over 4½c per pound from the recent high record, which seemed sufficient to attract a good deal of realizing by recent sellers. This checked the decline and covering became more active later in the morning when offers were comparatively scarce, suggesting a firmer technical position.

July sold up to 29.50c and December to 28.03c, making net advances of 58 to 65 points. The close was a few points off from the best under realizing. Reports from the goods trade indicated smaller volume of business at first hands owing partly to the ability of buyers to secure supplies from second hands at lower prices.

Southern advices were received claiming that hedged cotton was being sold at the decline, but that other holders had withdrawn their offerings and would not sell at lower prices.

Spot cotton, quiet; middling, 30.85c.

Cotton futures closed firm: July, 29.33c; October, 28.27c; December, 27.89c; January, 27.68c; March, 27.30c.

Weekly Wool Review.

BOSTON, June 6.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say:

"The week has been quieter both here and in the West, although some of the houses having new wools arriving are doing some business in the fine and half-blood wools at prices about on the present level of cost for the new wools. Buying in the West has continued with less eagerness at about the level of values prevailing a week ago. Foreign markets are all holding firm, with competition fairly steady at the River Platte. The goods market is on a firm basis."

50,000 RECRUITS FOR ARMY OF OCCUPATION OBTAINED

All National Guard and National Army Divisions Returned and Regulars Begin Embarking.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 7. — Fifty thousand recruits for the army of occupation have been obtained. Gen. March, Chief of Staff, announced today that incomplete reports showed 48,023 men enrolled.

Three-year enlistments continue to predominate over the one-year.

Return of the National Guard and National Army divisions from France has been completed, the War Department announced today, and the homeward movement of the regular divisions began this week with the embarkation of the principal units of the Sixth Division. The Fourth and Fifth Divisions are scheduled to return this month.

Complete figures for the movement of the army during May show that 333,303 officers and men were embarked during May.

Demobilization has returned 2,391,639 officers and men to civil life, and on June 3, had reduced the American forces in Europe to fewer than 700,000.

Chandler Automobile Co. Increases Dividend Rate.

CLEVELAND, O., June 7.—Directors of the Chandler Automobile Co. today declared a quarterly dividend of 4 per cent, an increase of 1 per cent over the last quarter, payable July 1. This places the stock on a 16 per cent basis instead of 12 per cent.

POSTHUMOUS D. S. C. TO FORMER POST-DISPATCH OFFICE BOY

Corp. Joseph A. O'Leary Was Killed While on Volunteer Duty as Stretcher Bearer in Battle.

The Distinguished Service Cross has been awarded, posthumously, to Corp. Joseph A. O'Leary, a member of F Battery, 124th Field Artillery, whose death in France was announced Jan. 11. Extraordinary heroism in action is described as the reason for the citation.

O'Leary formerly was an office boy in the employ of the Post-Dispatch. At the time of his enlistment he was connected with the East Side Levee Board. O'Leary acted as stretcher bearer under fire, the official citation sets forth.

O'Leary's citation is as follows: "Corp. Joseph A. O'Leary (deceased), Battery F, 124th Field Artillery. For extraordinary heroism in action near Epinonville, Oct. 7. He left shelter and volunteered as a stretcher bearer, making frequent trips to and from gun positions under heavy fire until he was killed by an enemy shell. Robert O'Leary, brother, 720 North Seventh street, East St. Louis, Ill."

Will Plan Monroe School Picnic.

The Monroe School Parent-Teacher Association of the National Congress of Mothers will meet Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Kindergarten. Arrangements for the annual picnic will be made.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

DANGER POINT REACHED IN WILD SPECULATION ON THE STOCK MARKET

New York Evening Post Financial Expert Predicts a Sudden Crash in Values Unless Trading Halts.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The Evening Post, in its weekly financial review, says:

"No one whose acquaintance with Wall Street runs back 10 or 20 years will be under any illusion as to the character of this week's stock market. It is repeating a very old story to say that a speculative market of this magnitude invariably has five distinct stages in its career, and that the present market is in the last but one of them.

"First comes always the buying for the account of important capitalists, who are convinced that the outlook favors a rise in prices; their purchases begin when things look wholly unfavorable to the rank and file of Wall Street, and continue well into the upward movement. Next comes the general public, pushed on by the activities of professional speculators; in this stage of the movement people buy confidently, but with the clear purpose of selling again at a reasonable profit before the market turns.

"The third stage begins when individual speculators or groups of professional speculators take the center of the scene, with the deliberate purpose of so far exciting the outside public's imagination, by sudden and violent manipulated advances of 5, 10 or 20 points in single stocks, and in half an hour's time, as to convince the outsider that some mysterious and irresistible force is behind the market. For these maneuvers, the professional adventurers are unfortunately equipped by banks and no serious restraining hand is anywhere placed on their excesses.

The Market's Position.

"What marks the beginning of the fourth stage is, on the one hand, the losing of all sense and self-restraint by the manipulators themselves, and, on the other hand, the spread of a vague apprehension among the banks. At this juncture (which has been plainly evident during the present week) the banks give private utterance to remonstrance, only to find that the gentlemen to which warnings are addressed have become too infatuated with their own success to listen.

"Last of all comes the familiar stage in which something happens—usually something that no one had imagined, often something that would not of itself appear to be of a character to shake confidence—then comes the the day of reconing on the Stock Exchange.

"Nothing is more curious than to recall the events assigned, at the time and afterward, for the collapse of such a market. In 1916, for instance, it was the German Chancellor's proposal of peace, although we now know that the war and its continuance were a financial certainty. In 1901 it was the rise of Northern Pacific to $1000 a share, as the result of a corner in the stock, though the whole manipulator, fraternity had for weeks been doing its best to corner the supply of other stocks. In 1899 it was the sudden death of the commission broker who had been the chief tout and advertiser of the 'bull market.' In 1894 it was a frenzied newspaper advertisement by the author of 'Frenzied Finance.' In 1906 it was the raising of its official discount rate to 6 per cent by the Bank of England.

Speculation Is Dangerous.

"Not one of these incidents was remotely anticipated by the speculating public, even a week before it happened. Of most of them, supposing their occurrence to have been predicted a week or two beforehand, Wall Street would certainly have said that the market was indifferent to the possibility. But in every case, the psychological changes had come.

"At heart even the people most deeply engaged in the reckless procedure of the later stages of the rise were perfectly well aware that their position was precarious. They were preparing for a quick retreat when necessary, each of them determined to be the first to run. But circumstances always brought it about that the flight of all was simultaneous. As to the present instance, we shall in due course see what we shall see."

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, June 7.—Financial interest is now centered on the Government loan, scheduled to be offered after Whitsunday. It will be mainly a funding operation, only £250,000,000 sterling of new money being required. Short-term indebtedness maturing during the current year, however, amounts to nearly £2,000,000,000 sterling, and although Treasury bills and Bank of England advances are, theoretically, easily renewable, the object of the loan is to greatly reduce the floating debt.

The necessity for this reduction is increased by the fact that, apart from war indebtedness to you, other short-term debts maturing within 5 years total £1,000,000,000 sterling. The terms of the approaching loan are secret, and newspaper reports of the details are only conjectures. It is an open secret, however, that the main features are a long maturity and a lower interest rate, but with the offering at a big discount, thus giving a wide margin for capital appreciation.

The difficulty of creating an effective propaganda for the loan is necessarily increased by the absence of war enthusiasm and declining war profits. While previous loans involved corresponding Government disbursements, the present issue will largely involve the repayment of Bank of England advances and a consequent curtailment of credits. Nevertheless, the temporary stoppage of Treasury bill sales during the period of receiving subscriptions means monetary ease for another month, after which firmer conditions are probable.

It has been announced that the total advances of the Bank of England on bills of exchange in 1914, when the paralyzed discount market was under the moratorium, was £70,000,000 sterling, of which £55,000,000 sterling was repaid. Of loans to the Stock Exchange every penny was repaid.

Developments are that the national policy with regard to ports, is likely to be largely determined by the relative condition of the exchanges of the various countries towards Great Britain. The general question of the financing of the devastated areas of Europe, and the question of a sort of financial alliance of European Governments, for devising the best scheme for obtaining goods and credits in exporting countries, has been considered at Paris, but little is known about it here. Mr. Vanderlip's concern over Europe's condition, according to the view held here, was partly justified by the slowness of the various Government's in taking action.

There is a tendency here toward over speculation in stocks, more especially in industrial issues. The tendency must be regarded as regrettable, if not absolutely dangerous. The war profits of the industrial concerns were largely distributed in the shape of bonus shares, which means increased difficulty in maintaining dividends later.

Closing Prices on Liberty Bonds in New York.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Liberty Bond final prices today were: 3½s, 99.44; first 4s, 95.40; second 4s, 94.30; first 4¼s, 95.90; second 4¼s, 94.74; third 4¼s, 95.52; fourth 4¼s, 94.86; Victory 3¾s, 100.00; Victory 4¾s, 99.98.

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, June 7.—The stock market gave another good demonstration of rising strength today. Evening up of short contracts over the week-end was a factor, but the list was quite responsible also to the favorable summary of business conditions reported by the mercantile agencies.

In addition, confidence that the peace treaty would soon be out of the way and a current large expansion in gross earnings of railroads, testifying to the activities in commercial lines, influenced spirited bidding for various stocks. Sales approximated 700,000 shares. The closing was strong.

Master Salesmen
with executive ability wanted

A manufacturer must secure distributors from certain districts in Illinois who will build their own selling organization for the purpose of marketing a product with a known market.

The distributor who secures territory must have financial responsibility, previous merchandising experience, be capable of building and managing a sales organization and willing to visit the factory to become thoroly conversant with the manufacturing and selling problems.

Sufficient territory will be allotted to provide opportunity for building a large profitable business with exceptional future possibilities.

The product is superior in merit to any of its kind. The profit margin is large enough to assure the distributor of a proposition that will present itself attractively to his salesmen and at the same time provide a very profitable business from their efforts.

Correspondence is especially invited of men who can qualify in the above points and who are looking for a high-class selling proposition. All replies will be treated in strictest confidence.

LOWER DRIFT TO PRICES IN CATTLE MARKET HERE

Hogs Also Lose Sharply During Trading for Week at National Stockyards; Spring Lambs Higher.

Reported for the Post-Dispatch by the National Livestock Commission Co., National Stockyards, Ill.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS:

	This Week.	Last Week.	Last Year.
Cattle	20,400	24,900	20,000
Hogs	93,200	68,300	50,000
Sheep	12,400	14,200	9,000

At the close of business Wednesday, killing steers and stockers and feeders were fully 50c to 75c per hundredweight lower for the week, but killing grades recovered part of the loss, and finished not more than 25c lower for the week. Strictly choice yearling butcher cattle are scarce and selling steady, but all classes of canners, cutters and medium butcher cattle and mixed stuff are a flat 75c lower for the week. Trade was dull on all varieties.

Fancy heavy beef steers are quoted at $16 to $17; prime beef steers, $15 to $16; choice to prime, $14 to $15; good to choice, $12.50 to $14; medium to good, $11.50 to $13; common light fed steers, $10 to $11. Good to choice heavy fleshy feeders, $11.25 to $12.25; good to choice feeders, $10.25 to $11.25; common to medium, $9.50 to $10. Good to choice stockers, $9 to $11; common to medium, $7.50 to $9. Choice to prime fat yearling butcher cattle, $13.50 to $14.50; good to choice, $11.50 to $13.50; common to medium, $8.50 to $11.50. Choice to fancy heavy beef cows, $10 to $11; good to choice, $9 to $10; medium to good, $8 to $9; cutters, $6 to $7; canners, $5.50 to $6. Good to choice stock cows, $7 to $8; common to fair, $6 to $7; good to choice stock heifers, $8 to $9; common to fair, $6.50 to $7.50. Fat bulls, $9; common to fair, $6.50 sage bulls, $8.50 to $9.50; light sausage bulls, $7 to $8. Very common quality fleshy yearlings, $6 to $6.50; same quality thin yearlings, $5.50 to $6.

Springers closed fully 25c higher for the week, but clipped lambs showed no improvement. In marked contrast for springers was the weakness in the trade for any grade of sheep; fat kind closed 50c to $1 lower, while canners and bucks averaged a trifle lower.

Best spring lambs sell for $18.25 to $18.75; best clipped lambs, $13.50 to $14.75. Bulk of the fat sheep, $9.50; choppers and bucks, $7.50; canners, $4 to $4.50.

Sharp price reductions were scored by hogs last week, best hogs showing a loss of 90 cents per hundredweight, while pigs and light-weight stuff were 75c lower.

The week's supply was materially heavier, and following the sharp upturn, due to the light run week before last, owing to the holiday, the decline seems logical.

Yesterday the very best hogs topped at $20.10, with bulk of the good hogs, 185 pounds and upward, $19.75 to $20; light and mixed hogs, 100 to 180 pounds, $19.25 to $19.65; best pigs, 120 to 150 pounds, $18.25 to $19; lighter pigs, $10 for common up to $18 for good 115-pound, with quality and fat cutting a big figure on this class. Best rough hogs, $18.75 to $19. Southern hogs, weighing 185 pounds upward, if guaranteed corn-fed, will sell from $19.75 to $20.

Shocker Blanks Senators; Browns Pummel Harper

Brilliant Hurling and Clean Fielding Give Burke's Clan 8-0 Victory.

TOBIN MAKES STAR PLAY

Johnnie Gallops Into Deep Left Center and Robs McBride of Triple or Homer.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 7.—The Browns looked like a different team today and behind good pitching, blanked the Senators while scoring eight runs themselves. Urban Shocker has always been a puzzle to Griff's crew, but it is doubtful if he ever performed better against them than he did today. Notwithstanding that seven hits were registered off his delivery, Shocker's brilliancy was greatest with men on bases. In six of the nine innings the Senators made hits. Eight men reached the sacks. Urban seemed to have perfect control, using a fast out curve that kept the Senators guessing.

Back of Shocker the Brownies put up a perfect fielding game, handling everything in clean cut style. Tobin in left field made the star play of the afternoon when he dashed over into deep left center and robbed McBride of a sure triple if not a home run.

Senators Field Poorly.

The Senators, besides batting poorly, wobbled on three different occasions, and the errors were all costly. Murphy in center field, who has played perfect ball since joining the Senators, muffed a line fly and let a grounder go through him. Shanks has also been playing good ball, but he is charged with one error and had two more that bordered on wobbles.

The Browns were the first to break the ice, getting three runs over in the second inning. Jacobson slammed a wicked double to left and went to third when Murphy dropped Demmitt's line fly. Gerber walked, filling the bases. Mayer flied to Murphy, Jacobson scoring and Demmitt going to third after the catch. Shocker singled over second, sending Demmitt home. Austin singled to center and when Murphy again let the ball go through him Mayer scored and Shocker took third. Bronkie rolled to Shanks and Shocker died at the plate on a good throw to Picinich. Tobin ended the round with a fly to Rice.

Harper Driven From Box.

In the third Burke's crew hung up three more tallies and chased Harper to the showers. Sisler opened with a triple to right and scored on Shank's bad throw to first on Jacobson's roller, the batter reaching second. Thompson here took up the pitching burden and Gharrity went behind the bat. Demmitt spanked a double to right, Jacobson crossing the pan. Gerber singled to right, sending in Demmitt and went to second on the throw home. Mayer fanned. Shocker hit to McBride and Gerber was headed off at third. Austin flied to Menosky.

With one down in the sixth St. Louis scored the seventh run. Bronkie walked and went to third on Tobin's clean single to right. Sisler rolled to Thompson and Bronkie, with a flying start, beat the throw to the plate. The Browns added another run to their string for good measure in the final round. Sisler singled to right, stole second and went home when Babe Jacobson slammed a long double to right.

Jess Willard as He Is Today—Note Plump Face, Slender Waist

Hard training has not yet carved the grim lines that tell of perfect condition into the champion's visage. His comparatively slender body, however, indicates that the title-holder needs only a couple of weeks' work to be as fit as at any time in his career.

Willard Expects to Start Strenuous Work This Week

Champion Announces That Fast, Shifty Boxing Will Be Idea for at Least Seven Days—Titleholder Thinks That Rhubarb Is Great Conditioner.

By Jess Willard.
World's Heavyweight Ring Champion.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 7.—Well, I'm all set now. For the first time since I left the coast I can truthfully say that I am enjoying a workout. You see I did most of my exercising indoors when I was in Los Angeles. I don't count the mountain climbing and the horseback riding. When I struck Toledo the heavy, humid atmosphere acted as a drug. I couldn't breathe without effort. Violent exercise made perspiration flow from me in streams. After my first workout on Tuesday I was languid and slightly depressed. Today I am full of pep and I am getting to be so hard that I work ten minutes or a quarter of an hour before a real hard sweat appears.

Weather sharps who live in Toledo, tell me there is a peculiar atmospheric condition absolutely different from that in Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and other lakeside towns. The reason, according to these informants, is that Toledo lies some distance from the lake front and a river mist hangs over the city most of the time; only when a breeze comes steadily from the lake some miles away or a strong wind from the interior sets in, is this heavy atmospheric blanket swept away.

When you have to face the humidity produced by this mist, and in addition, work under the direct rays of the sun, you have a condition which is dangerous to almost any person. I believe it would not produce sunstroke easily, but depression and even heat prostration might easily result. For that reason I am working slowly and carefully to get every organ thoroughly accustomed to the Toledo climate.

Has Hard Job on Hand.

I hope these rambling talks of mine don't bore you. Some of my friends in the sporting world want me to talk about my favorite punches; how I slip leads, side step, crouch and so on. Other fellows want me to talk about Dempsey. They want me to analyze his methods of training, his ring tactics and the men who advise him. With due respect to these well-meaning critics, I will do nothing of the kind.

I have a whale of a job on my hands and find my time pretty well occupied in attending to my own business. I will, therefore, continue to take the public into my confidence and tell them exactly how my condition is progressing and what I am doing to get myself into shape. After all that, as I undestand it, is what the public is most interested in learning. The big mystery in this contest, according to the newspapers, has been 'Will Willard be able to get into shape for Dempsey?' Truthfully and openly in this series of articles I have told step by step how I have progressed along the road toward fitness.

Real Work This Week.

Those who have followed these articles need not have been surprised at the stories coming from this city when I arrived, which told of the absence of a bay window and of my approach to perfection. They would have been prepared for the photographs taken in the ring at Toledo which reveal me as a fellow with a decided waist, weighing between 250 and 260 pounds. I lost a little of that weight in my workout today. My road work this morning consisted of a run of four miles. Walter Monahan and Jack Hemple hit up the pace with me and the three of us had a bully sweat. It was the fastest clip we had since coming to Toledo. This afternoon I had my usual brisk workout in the ring. Walter and Jack tore into me for all they were worth and I opened up on them with stiff left body jabs and right upper cuts and swings. The usual pully and body work completed the exercise for the day.

Everything that has been done up to this time is really only laying the foundation for the active, strenuous training which will commence next week. I am going to speed up my work in the ring; fast, shifty boxing will be the idea for at least seven days. I hope Ray Archer will bring two or three good heavies. The rougher and faster they are, the better I like them.

I have added rhubard in liberal quantities to my diet. If the stout of both sexes knew the virtues residing in that good old pie plant, there would be a far greater demand for it than there is at present. As a conditioner and a reducer of surplus fat, there is nothing in the vegetable world, in my opinion, that compares with it. It is palatable, too, and is being served from my kitchen in a number of ways.

Rain Keeps Willard and J. Dempsey Idle

TOLEDO, O., June 7.

SEVERAL hundred persons woh visited the training camps of Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard today in anticipation of seeing some glove performances, were disappointed because of a severe rainstorm.

Dempsey was more disappointed than any of the spectators, as he had been loafing since Monday and was eager to resume training. He wanted to box his partners in his living quarters, but Manager Jack Kearns told him to wait until tomorrow.

Willard complained today that he is finding the change in climate from California to Ohio a handicap in his training. He said that when he left Los Angeles 10 days ago his wind was excellent, but the conditions here have affected his breathing. Other members of the champion's entourage who accompanied him from the coast, made similar complaints.

20-MILE MOTOR BOAT RACE BEING ARRANGED

Edward Koenig, 3836 Kosciusko street, is planning a 20-mile motor boat race to take place on the Mississippi River June 29, in connection with the Missouri Automobile Club's parade. The boat race is expected to follow the auto event, starting at about 4 p. m.

Koenig says there are about a dozen boats in the local harbor that can exceed 35 miles an hour and he hopes to have them all enter the event proposed.

Motor boat racing has been a dead letter here since the European war began. Koenig was formerly owner of several speed boats.

Capable domestic help is easily and quickly secured through Post-Dispatch WANTS.

Drewes Winner Over W. Brown in Tennis Event

City Champion Comes Back Strong After Losing First Set to McKinley Youth.

SEMIFINAL ROUND TODAY

Josties Meets Satterfield, While Drewes Will Oppose Woodward Brown.

BY DAVISON OBEAR,
Secretary St. Louis Lawn Tennis Association.

Ted Drewes, city tennis champion, worked his way into the semi-finals in the St. Louis Tennis Association elimination singles tournament at the Kirkwood Country Club yesterday, when he defeated Wray Brown, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2. There had been those who had expected Brown to be returned the victor.

However, Drewes, who during the past week has put in some hard practice showed far better form than he did in his match with Walter Haase last week, when the latter forced Drewes to extend himself to the limit to win. Brown yesterday won the first set, but thereafter Drewes had things his own way.

The feature fourth round match yesterday was that between Woodward Brown of the Magnolia Tennis Club, and Henry Cushman of the St. Louis Country Club, which the former won, 3—6, 6—2, 7—5. Brown's overhead play was the best seen this season.

Fred Josties and Val Satterfield were the other fourth round winners. The semi-finals will be played at 10 o'clock this morning and the finals at 3 in the afternoon.

Results and pairings:

Yesterday's Results.

Third round: Davison Obear, Bartmer, won from Goldstein, Y. M. H. A., 6—0, 6—1.

Fourth round: Ted Drewes, Yeatman, defeated Wray Brown, Magnolia, 4—6, 6—1, 6—2; Fred Josties, Yeatman, won from R. Metcalf, Kirkwood, 7—5, 6—1; Woodward Brown, Magnolia, defeated Henry Cushman, St. Louis Country Club, 3—6, 6—2, 7—5; Val Satterfield, Washington U., defeated Davison Obear, 9—7, 6—0.

Dempsey Can't Concede 60 Pounds and Win, Willard's Former Trainer Believes

Tex O'Rourke, Who Prepared Jess for His Bout With Johnson, Says Champion's Physical Advantages Will Count Heavily.

Great Reach of Title-Holder Will Make It Impossible for the Challenger to Land Except at Extremely Close Range.

By Tex O'Rourke,
Who Helped Train Jess Willard for His Fight With Jack Johnson.

WILLARD and Dempsey will enter the ring July 4th very nearly even in betting. Those who dope out winners from the record book will find that the challenger has a wide margin in his favor. He has knocked out two men, Smith and McMahon, who won decisions over big Jess.

On the other hand, there will be enough who string along with the champion just as they vote the party ticket, and who place importance on Willard's size to even things up.

Dempsey's proven ability to put over a knockout punch will bring him a host of backers just as Willard's massiveness will furnish argument enough to warrant others choosing him.

Yet it is quite within the realm of possibility that neither of these items will be the deciding factor. Willard's size may not prevent his opponent from hitting him and Dempsey's much touted wallop may not be powerful enough to jar the title loose. The difference in size, however, is so great that it comes first in line for consideration.

Willard is six feet seven inches tall. He usually gives his height as an inch less being somewhat conscious of his unusual dimensions. He will weigh close to 255 pounds when he enters the ring. It would be unwise for him to attempt to go below this weight.

Dempsey measures approximately six feet one inch and tips the beam around the 195-pound mark. His reach is 78 inches, compared to Willard's 83½.

Willard's Enormous Advantage.

THIS shows a disparity of five inches in longitude, seven and a half in latitude, and 60 pounds in displacement. To date no title has ever changed hands under so great a handicap.

I have an old English print, dated 1759, depicting the sensational featherweight, Ned Hunt, standing over Dick Mills, a full-fledged heavy of the day. Underneath is the famous caption, "The bigger they comes, the 'arder they falls." Be that as it may, the records show that Mills eventually wore Hunt down and stopped him.

Bob Fitzsimmons later adopted this slogan after stopping big Ed Dunkhorst, who outweighed him some 70 pounds, proving nothing except that an exceptionally good little man can beat an exceptionally poor big man. Fitzsimmons' knockouts over Corbett, Ruhlin, Sharkey, and other good men average 25 pounds more than himself are considerably more important. It must be remembered though, that Fitz was a physical freak and was their equal in height and reach, having the chest and shoulders of a 200-pound man. Also that he lost on two occasions to Jeffries, in spite of his own superior skill, solely because Jeffries was too big and tough for him.

More recently we have Gunboat Smith's decision over Willard and Dempsey's quick knockouts of Morris and Fulton.

In the first case Willard was green and inexperienced. He was an easy target for the hard-hitting Gunner, having no idea of how to use his size to protect himself. It was his first demonstration of his ability to stand up under fire for in those days Smith shook a mean fist. It was one of the very few times during 1913 that the Gunner failed to stop his man. Like the first Carl Morris-Jim Flynn bout, it was a case of a good little man with years of experience, meeting a big, clumsy, undeveloped greenhorn. Later Flynn failed to repeat the dose and Smith refused to try.

Dempsey Stopped Two Giants.

DEMPSEY must be given full credit for stopping both Morris and Fulton. Both compare well with Willard in physical proportions. Morris, however, never made much use of his size except to push his opponent around and lie on him in clinches. He fought with his head down, preferring to mix in at close range and was comparatively easy to hit. This does not detract from the fact that Dempsey consistently dropped him; a feat which three of our hardest hitting heavies, Smith, Willard and Fulton, failed to accomplish.

Neither Fulton nor Morris makes use of his size as effectively as Willard does. He keeps his man as far away as possible and hits at exceptionally long range. I have boxed with all three and know that the difference in size is decidedly more apparent in Willard's case. He stands erect with head drawn back and his left well out. He seems always to be too far away to reach. It is practically impossible to jab him. No one, not even Johnson, has ever been able to do it. It is equally out of the question to land a right without first taking a good-sized step forward. Dempsey will have to adopt rushing tactics just as Johnson did and keep inside Willard's long arms as much as possible. Willard is not nearly as good at in-fighting as he is at long range. The Ohio rules, which prohibit hitting in clinches, will be a big factor in the champion's favor.

WILLARD is not much broader across the shoulders than Dempsey, his long reach being mostly due to his extremely long arms. His reach from the shoulder out will exceed Dempsey's by over 3 inches. Also consider that whereas a boxer hits with his glove closed he blocks with it open, making an additional 3 inches or more difference. It will be readily seen that if Willard could keep Dempsey at arm's length he would be entirely out of reach himself. He spent months learning how to do ths very thing and it will be an important defensive asset. Willard is enormously strong, and in a pinch could hold Dempsey at arm's length in his two hands.

No one knows the advantage of size better than the boxers themselves. Ask some clever lightweight to give away 10 pounds and hear him roar. And yet the difference between Willard and Dempsey in pounds is the same as between Dempsey and Benny Leonard!

After trying for 20 rounds to break down Willard's defense, Johnson looked at him with a hopeless smile of a beaten man and said: "Man, you sure are too big to hurt."

In the Havana fight Johnson never was able to reach Willard with his famous uppercut. Willard blocked all such blows by pulling his head back out of reach and they merely bounced off his chest. Johnson could and did reach him, however, with overhead right-hand swings and straight body blows.

Dempsey Will Have to Fight in Close, if He Hopes to Reach Jess

FOLLOWING are the points emphasized by O'Rourke in discussing the case of Willard vs. Dempsey:

FIRST—While there are cases where little men have beaten big men, there has always been some good reason. The big men in question have either lacked Willard's skill or his ability to resist punishment.

SECOND—Willard's great reach will make it impossible for Dempsey to hit him at anything but short range. Johnson got inside Willard's arms and Dempsey must do likewise.

THIRD—If Willard can keep the fighting at long range he can land with his left jab at a distance where Dempsey cannot land at all.

FOURTH—At long range Willard can hit with either hand without moving his feet, whereas Dempsey must take a step in first.

FIFTH—If Dempsey gets inside Willard's guard he must do all the damage he can with his first punch as Willard is so big and strong that he can smother following punches or push Jack away.

SIXTH—There isn't the slightest doubt that Willard's advantage in height, reach and weight will be a big factor. How big a factor will depend upon his condition. Jess may lose in spite of, but surely not because of, his unusual size.

Racquet Club Nine Tames St. L. C. C.

Triple Play Is One of Features of Game Won by Town Organization, 10—7.

Timely hitting in early innings gave the Racquet Club team a large enough lead to gain a 10—7 victory over the St. Louis Country Club nine on the Price Road diamond, yesterday afternoon.

The town club players started right after Pitcher Clarence Gamble and by the end of the third inning had scored six runs. Roland Hoerr, who served as relief moundsman, was somewhat more effective and the winners were less successful at bat thereafter.

The Country Club contingent was practically helpless before the shoots of Pitcher Stevens, a former Yale hurler, until the ninth inning. In a last effort the losers bunched hits for four runs. Wear, the Country Club catcher, was the batting hero of the day, being credited with a triple, a home run and three tallies.

Orthwein, an erstwhile Yale varsity man, was the fielding luminary of the game. At his shortstop position he was credited with 10 putouts and three assists. The fielding feature was a triple play by the Racquet Club in the seventh inning. Second Baseman Gardner caught a fly ball, touched second base and threw to third.

About 400 persons saw the game from the County Club balcony and terrace.

Jack Smith's pinch single in th fourth inning with the bases ful netted the Cardinals an 8 to 7 vic tory over the Phillies yesterday, and as a result the Knot-Holers moved up to seventh place in the National League pennant struggle. It was th fourth straight conquest for Rickey's aggregation and the eighth victory in the last 11 starts. About 40 fans were present.

Smith was given a chance to be come the hero of the pastime unde unusual conditions. When the ga started, Gene Packard, a southp was on the hill for Coombs and M Henry replaced Smith in the outfiel McHenry previous to the fourth h rapped out a single and double a had driven in the four markers th Cardinals owned up to that time.

At the 19th Hole Its Different: The Golfer May Tea-Up as Much as He Likes

Visitors Arrive and Tune Up for T-M Tournament

Forty-Five Out-of-Town Golfers Tour Links Where Annual Tilt Opens Tomorrow.

COURSE IS IN GOOD SHAPE

Class of Play Exhibited Indicates High-Class Competition Can Be Expected.

Forty-five visiting golfers from 10 cities represented in the Transmississippi Golf Association registered at the St. Louis Country Club yesterday for practice play before the opening of the annual association tournament at the Price road course tomorrow morning.

A score of these players went around the Country Club links with local golfers who are entered in the play. More than 50 more visitors are expected to arrive today and the club links probably will be crowded with contestants who will put in their last licks of preparation.

The golf exhibited by several of the visiting title aspirants yesterday indicates that a high class of play may be expected during the coming week. Reuben Bush and Nelson Whitney of New Orleans, golfing powers of the South, attracted attention. Whitney, in his afternoon round, negotiated the outward journey in 35 and came home in 40, for a 75 total. Bush had a 35—41—76 score in the afternoon. Considering the fact that par for the sporty links is 72 and the Dixie entrants were not familiar with the course, this golf is unusual.

Whitney and Bush played in company with Stewart Maiden, St. Louis Country Club professional, and Ray Ouimet, a brother of the famous Francis Ouimet, and "pro" at the Hillcrest (Kansas City) Country Club. Maiden did the 18 holes in a par 72, while Ouimet took 75 strokes.

Edmunds Scores a 77.

A feature morning foursome brought together Sam Reynolds of Omaha, 1917 T-M winner; Whitney, Sterling Edmunds of the St. Louis County Club, and James Manion of the Forest Park Golf Club. Edmunds surprised the gallery throng with a neat 77. Reynolds was runnerup with a pair of 39s, Whitney took 80, and Manion 83.

The local amateur medalist of the day was Clarence Wolff, St. Louis champion, who completed the round in 75, taking a 37 and 38. Wolff played in a foursome with Edmunds, Willie Kidd, the Algonquin "pro," and Allan T. West of the Country Club. West failed to turn in his card. Kidd scored a 78.

Three of the Forest Park Golf Club Brock trophy team played but failed to count under 80. Frank Lynch took 82, Richard Bockenkamp 80, and Fred Conway 89. With the 83 made by Manion the municipal entrants admitted that they would be forced to pick up tomorrow to retain the Brock title which they have held the last two years.

Several attractive quartets made the round, but did not announce the scores made. Eddie Limberg, former city champion; Roger Lord and Chris Kenney, one-time State title holders, and Harry Potter made up one of these foursomes.

Six members of the Denver Country Club toured the links, but did not make known just what success they had. The Westerners were J. A. Lenist, C. S. Brown, L. B. Brownfield, L. D. Brownfield, S. J. Denison and Walter Clark (professional).

Legg Practices Elsewhere.

Harry Legg of Minneapolis, five-time T-M champion, played four holes in the morning and then decided to reserve his efforts for the afternoon. However, after lunch he decided to practice over the Sunset Hill Country Club course. On Friday Legg played 18 holes at the Country Club, scoring an 84.

Four Kansas City golfers registered at the club yesterday; but Ouimet was the only member of the party to take to the links. The other visitors from the Kaw City are E. McClennan, J. R. Southerlin and Otto Hecker. The rest of the city's delegation is expected today.

Other visitors who played were Eller, Des Moines; Milton, Denver; Knepper, Sioux City; Jaffray, Minneapolis, and E. P. Bates, Oklahoma City.

All of the visitors expressed satisfaction at the condition of the course.

C. C. Will Name Team.

In order to name its Brock Trophy team for the competitions tomorrow and Tuesday, the St. Louis Country Club officials announced that the 15 leading players would participate in a 36-hole elimination round, with the four turning in the lowest scores getting places.

Only three have played to date. Sterling Edmunds, who has two 77s to his credit; J. L. Johnston 84 and G. H. Walker 84.

It was also announced by officials that any golfer wishing to compete in the tourney could enter until 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Names of Brock Trophy teams must be given to the judge at the first tee Monday morning.

Peoria Manager Suspended.

CHICAGO, June 7.—James Hamilton, manager of the Peoria club of the Three-I League, was suspended for three days by President Tearney because he returned to the field after having been ordered off by the umpire June 4 in a game at Evansville. In addition Hamilton was fined three days' pay and the club was fined $100.

Miske to Box Tom Gibbons.

Billy Miske and Tom Gibbons, both of St. Paul, light heavyweights, have been matched to meet at Nicollet Park here June 19, Mike Collins, promoter, announced tonight. The bout will be 10 rounds at catch weights.

Michigan Winner in Big 10 Meet; Chicago Is Next

Wolverines Run Up Total of 44½ Points Against 34 for U. Maroon Athletes.

JOHNSON SETS RECORDS

Sets New Standards in High and Broad Jumps and Scores 20 Points Alone.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Scoring in 11 of the 16 events, the University of Michigan track and field team today won the annual games of the Western Intercollegiate Conference Athletic Association, totaling 44 1-2 points. The University of Chicago was second with 34 points and Illinois third with 22, just one point ahead of the aggregation from Notre Dame.

Overshadowing all team performances, however, was the work of C. E. Johnson of Michigan. This athlete started in four events, won all of them and in the high and broad jumps set new conference records. Only in the high jump was he pushed, W. J. Paige of Ames clearing the bar at 6 feet 1-4 inch and forcing the big Michigan athlete to go 2 inches higher to win. The previous record was 6 feet 1 1-2 inches and was made by Robert Wahl of Wisconsin in 1914.

Johnson Scores 20 Points.

In the broad jump, Johnson distanced all his competitors on his first attempt, but he took two more trials and cleared 24 feet and 1 inch, bettering the conference record of 23 feet 11¼ inches, which he himself established last year. In the hurdles he won his heats and finals with ridiculous ease. The 20 points garnered by Johnson made him the high point winner of the day, but there were notable performances by W. Hayes of Notre Dame, who ran in the century in 9 4-5s, tieing the Eastern and Western college records and then sprinted away from his field in the furlong dash.

Outside these features the performance of Foreman of the Kansas Agricultural College, in the 2-mile, attracted most attention. Moore and McCosh of Chicago, and Sedgwick of Michigan were supposed to have this event at their mercy, but Foreman, running in second place, virtually all the way for the first mile and three-quarters, spurted determinedly and overcame a 50-yard lead which Sedgwick had gained in the preceding half mile. He caught the Michigan captain at the last turn, passed him in the stretch and won by 5 yards.

McMahon, the big Nebraska quarter-miler, was responsible for the relay result as he took the baton for the last relay a good 30 yards behind Speer of Chicago and ran the latter off his feet.

100-YARD DASH—Final won by Hayes, Notre Dame; Cook, Michigan, second; Losch, Michigan, third; Evans, Kansas Aggies, fourth. Time 10 1-5s.

ONE-MILE RUN—Won by McCosh, Chicago; Moore, Chicago, second; Stone, Ames, third; Langland, Minnesota, fourth. Time, 4:32 4-5s.

440-YARD DASH—Won by Curtis, Chicago; Oss, Minnesota, second; McMason, Nebraska, third; Barlow, Missouri, fourth. Time, 49 1-5s.

120 YARDS—Final heat, won by Johnson, Michigan; Nabor, Wabash, second; Bucheit, Illinois, third; Guerin, Chicago, fourth. Time, 15 2-5s. Williams, Indiana, and Jensen, Minnesota, finished ahead of Guerin, but were disqualified for upsetting too many hurdles.

JAVELIN THROW—Won by Wilson, Illinois, 163 ft. 11¼ in.; Dyke, Iowa, second, 159 ft. 10 in.; Griffith, Ohio State, third, 157 ft. 6¾ in.; Bucheit, Illinois, fourth, 154 ft. 4 in.

220-YARD HURDLES—Final won by Johnson, Michigan; Gallagher, Kansas Aggies, second, Hamilton, Northwestern, third; Spafford, Wisconsin, fourth. Time, 25 flat.

BROAD JUMP—Won by Johnson, Michigan. Distance, 24 ft. 1 in., a new conference record; Keeling, Indaina, second, 22 ft. 4½ in.; McGinnis, Notre Dame, third, 22 ft. 1¼ in.; Paige, Ames, fourth, 22 ft. 1¼ in.

TWO-MILE RUN—Won by Foreman, Kansas Aggies; Sedgwich, Michigan, second; McCosh, Chicago, third; Moore Chicago, fourth. Time 9:50 2-5.

220-YARDS FINAL—Won by Bayes, Notre Dame; Emery, Illinois, second; Cook, Michigan, third; Hold, Minnesota, fourth. Time 22 3-5s.

SHOT PUT—Won by Baker, Michigan, distance 42 ft 2¾ in.; Gilfillan, Notre Dame, second, 41 ft. 1¾ in.; Smith, Michigan, third, 40 ft. 11¾ in.; Gorgas, Chicago, fourth, 39 ft. 3 in.

POLE VAULT—Gramas, Chicago and Bucheit, Illinois tied for first and second; height 12 feet; Westbrook, Michigan and Lewis, Missouri, tied for third and fourth, height 11 ft. 6 in.

HIGH JUMP—Won by Johnson, Michigan; height 6 ft 2¼ in.; Paige, Ames, second, height 6 ft. ¼ in.; Veasey, Chicago, Linn, North Western and Douglas, Notre Dame, tied for third and fourth at 5 ft. 8 in. Johnson's jump was a new conference record.

DISCUS THROW—Won by Gilfillan, Notre Dame, distance 133 ft. ¼ in; Bomn, Kirksville, second, 131 ft. 1¼ in.; Gorgas, Chicago, third, 127 ft. 9¼ in.; Baker, Michigan, fourth; distance, 127 ft.

RELAY RACE—One mile, won by Nebraska; Illinois second; Chicago third; Minnesota fourth. Time 3m. 24 3-5s.

U-BOAT CHASER CREWS AND MEN OF 138TH TO PLAY BENEFIT GAME

The 138th Infantry and sailors of the U-boat chaser fleet soon to arrive in St. Louis will play as the opening feature of the Tuberculosis Society's double-header benefit at Cardinal Field, June 18. Maj. Ferd Oberwinder, chairman of the benefit, got on the long-distance wire with Commander Berrien of the anti-submarine flotilla and obtained the naval commander's promise for some air stunts over the ball park by the flying boats that accompany the destroyers. "Duke" Sheahan is reassembling the 138th team for the game.

The boys' marathon, always a part of the Tuberculosis Society's big fete, has started out exceptionally well this year, according to its chairman, Verne R. C. Lacy. Registration opened yesterday and was surprisingly large, and Lacy predicts a large field. One thousand entires is the aim of the committee. The marathon committee has opened headquarters at 312 North Eighth street.

The start will be at Lindell and Vandeventer and the finish in front of the home plate at Cardinal Field. Entries will close at 6 p. m., June 17.

Seven silver loving cups will be presented to the winners. Silver souvenir medals also will be given to each boy who completes the run.

Smith Is Beaten by Local Bowler in Special Match

Stein Defeats Champion by 166 Pins in 30 Games, Winning Final Block by 16.

Otton Stein Jr., St. Louis bowling star, defeated Jimmy Smith in their 30-games total pins to count special match which was completed on the Washington alleys last night by a total of 166 pins, totalling 6187 to his rival's 6001. Both averaged better than 200 for the match.

Stein last night made his poorest showing, but nevertheless defeated the Milwaukeean by 16 pins, with 2024 to 2008. Stein had only four games over 200, but these included counts of 243, 236 and 233. Smith went 200 or better five times, with 226 as high.

Last night's scores: Stein—156, 183, 236, 183, 233, 243, 189, 217, 188, 196—2024. Smith—194, 216, 196, 182, 226, 190, 210, 200, 201, 193—2008.

A doubles match, with Jerry Ameling and Jule Schmitt, local stars, opposing Smith and John Kuth, has been arranged by D. J. Sweeney. Brace Jarrett also will meet Smith in a match of 100 points at his new game, which places a premium on New York strikes.

Joie Ray Fails to Equal Record in Mile Classic

Falls Five Seconds Short in Carefully Prepared Race, Paced All the Way.

RELAY MARK LOWERED

Penn U. Runners Set New Time in 400 and 800 Meters and 440 and 880 Yards.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7. — Joie Ray of the Illinois A. C., holder of the world's indoor record for two miles, failed by a margin of five seconds to equal the world's mark for one mile in a carefully staged and prepared race on Franklin Field this afternoon. Under weather and track conditions that were ideal and behind pacemakers that led him all the way, Ray covered the mile in 4m. 17 3-5s. The time he tried to equal or better was 4m. 12 3-5s., made by Norman Taber, the Brown University runner, in the summer of 1915.

The day did not go without a record-breaking performance, for the University of Pennsylvania relay team, which holds both the mile and sprint medley intercollegiate championships, set up new world's figures for the 400 and 800 meter and 440 and 880 yard relay races.

The Quaker four, going out at the gun, led every inch of the way, broke the tape for 800 meters in 1m. 26 1-5s., and for the half mile in 1m. 27 4-5s. The old half-mile record was 1m. 29 2-5s., held by the University of Chicago.

W. C. Haymond, F. S. Davis. Sherman Landers and E. W. Smith were the Pennsylvania runners.

In the shorter race the Quakers covered the 400-meter distance in 42 seconds, one-fifth of a second under the old mark made by the German team in the Olympic games at Stockholm in 1912. Continuing onto the 440-yard mark the Red and Blue four breasted the tape at 42 4-5 seconds, 1 3-5 seconds faster than the record held by the Chicago Athletic Association.

Roy Morse of the Salem Crescent A. C., once a National champion, ran a splendid race in the 100-yard dash, winning in 10 1-5 seconds.

Larry Brown, the Pennsylvania freshman, won an unlooked-for victory over Homer Baker of the Glencoe A. C. of N. Y. in the Meadowbrook "660." Only four men faced the starter—Baker, Brown, Arthur Reilly and Neil Shaughnessy, the latter of Knights of St. Anthony.

Baker led at the start and continued to show the way to within 50 yards of the finish, when Brown made a fine spurt. He overhauled the New York runner and beat him to the tape by two yards in 1m. 23 s. Shaughnessy was third.

Earl Thomson of Dartmouth, who was unable to compete in the Intercollegiate because of scholastic difficulties, made a show of the opposition in the 120-yard hurdles on turf. The big Californian just romped over the sticks to win in the good time of 16 2-5 seconds.

CORN TASSEL CAPTURES SUBURBAN HANDICAP WITH SWEEP ON SECOND

NEW YORK, June 7.—At the Belmont Park race course today, over a track that was lightning fast, R. G. Wilson's 5-year-old gelding, Corn Tassel, by Sanitol-Cornfield, won the classic suburban at 1¼ mile. The value of the stake was $5200 and the gelding just nosed out W. R. Coe's 3-year-old colt, Sweep On, with Commander J. K. L. Ross' Boniface third, a length and a half away.

The winner's time, 2:01 1-5 is a record for this race as the official time of 2:00 flat credited to Whisk Broom II, when he won this event in 1913, was not generally accepted by horsemen as being correct.

Over There cut out the early pace, followed closely by War Cloud and Sweep On. As they turned to make the drive for home War Cloud and Lanius were tiring. Sweep On took the lead in the stretch but Corn Tassel, which had come from far back, saved a lot of ground on the turn and went swiftly after Sweep On while Boniface ran wide and kept on near the outer rail. Corn Tassel, splendidly handled by Jockey Ensor, got the decision by barely a nod. War Cloud finished fourth, Exterminator fifth, Over There sixth and Rapp seventh, having passed the tired Tanius, which finished last.

SOLDIERS TO SEE GOWDY PERFORM HERE TUESDAY

Many of the soldiers who served on the same battlefields in France with Sergt. Hank Gowdy of the Boston Braves, will be present at Cardinal Field Tuesday when the famous catcher of the Boston club makes his first appearance of the season in St. Louis. The day has been set aside in honor of Gowdy, who was the first major league baseball player to enlist.

In addition to several hundred soldiers from Jefferson Barracks who will attend the game as guests of President Branch Rickey, arrangements also have been made to have several hundred wounded soldiers from the hospital at the barracks attend the game.

Fellow Ohioans and Brother Elks will also be on hand to welcome Gowdy. He is a native of Columbus, O., and the Ohio Society of St. Louis, through Secretary Clarence F. Wescoat, has requested the Buckeyes to attend the game. Gowdy is also an Elk, being attached to the Boston Lodge. Hank will be the Boston catcher in the opening game of the series against the Cardinals.

Driving Club to Open.

The North St. Louis Gentlemen's Driving Club will stage its inaugural meet of the seson at Waterworks Park, starting at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Four events are on the schedule, the 2:25 pace, 2:25 trot, 2:35 trot and a cold race.

The Old Dinner Bucket.

HOW dear to my heart is the old dinner bucket,
When fond recollection presents it to view;
The soggy potato, the radish and onion,
The sandwich, the pie and cold coffee, too.
I'd empty its contents from mere force of habit
As soon as the whistle had sounded at noon,
And then by the handle I'd eagerly grab it
And make a bee line for the nearest saloon.
The old dinner bucket, the tin dinner bucket
That trusty old bucket to me was a boon.

That old dinner bucket I hailed as a treasure
When at noon for an hour my labor would cease;
In order to get solid beer from the measure,
I'd carefully cover the bottom with grease.
And so when the barkeep would carefully fill it
No foam at the top of the pail would appear;
The grease on the bottom was put there to kill it
And I would get nothing but good solid beer.
That rusty old bucket, that trusty old bucket
That old dinner bucket of cool lager beer.

Be Frank Easily Leads the Field in Latonia Derby

Eastern Horse Two Lengths Ahead of Omond at Finish of Race for 3-Year-Olds.

LATONIA, Ky., June 7.—The blue, copper shoulder straps, copper cap, colors of C. M. Garrison of New York flashed under the wire first today in the thirty-seventh Latonia derby when his entry, Be Frank, well handled by Jockey C. Kummer, outran and outgamed what is considered by horsemen to be the aristocracy of western three-year-old thoroughbreds.

The son of Sir John Johnson, out of Frankness, really had little trouble in disposing of his field when called upon and two lengths of daylight showed between him and Omond who finished second, when the final tape was passed. The contest for the second place was more scpirited, for Regalo, who had been well up during the entire 1½-mile journey, fought it out nobly but tired at the very end and was beaten by a half length. Vulcanite was fourth and saved his entrance money for his owner.

Be Frank was one of the two Eastern horses to start, Eternal from the stable of J. M. McClelland and ridden by an Eastern jockey, Schuttinger, being the other, while six Western entries faced the Barrier. Eternal, for a time, looked to be a winner for he assumed the lead at the drop of the barrier and it was not until after the mile pole had been reached that Be Frank and Regalo, ridden by Murphy, managed to poke their noses in front of him. From thereon Eternal dropped back and Thurber on Omond made his move. He wore down Regalo and set sail for Be Frank, but Kummer let out a wrap on his mount and Omond could not reduce the distance, but found Regalo coming again and had to ride just as hard to stall off Murphy's mount. In capturing the event Be Frank brought home $16,160 to his owner. Omond's share was $2000; Regalo's, $800, while Vulcanite obtained $330 for finishing fourth.

Be Frank's chances were not well thought of by the betting public and the Pari-Mutuels machines showed that he paid slightly more than 10 to 1.

GARDNER SIGNS 'SALARY GRAB' BILL; CHARITIES SUFFER

Governor Denies Million Dollars to Vital Parts of Government and to State Institutions.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 7.—Gov. Gardner signed the "omnibus salary grab" today, and then proceeded to cut from the appropriations for eleemosynary and educational institutions and other vital parts of the State Government, more than $1,000,000.

The omnibus bill increases the salary of almost every clerk in the State capitol and will cost the State more than $100,000.

Among the items slashed from the appropriations bills are $340,000 for the educational institutions, $249,000 for the eleemosynary institutions, $30,000 to build a State Home for Friendless Children, $250,000 for pensions for Confederate veterans, $50,000 for State aid to county fairs.

Children's Home Lost.

The veto of the bill to build a Home for Friendless Children nullifies one of the principal children's code bills.

The amount of money which the State will pay in increased salaries under the omnibus bill, to the clerks in Gov. Gardner's office and the offices of other State officials would have built the Home for Friendless Children and erected at least one building for one of the State hospitals, whose crowded conditions has resulted in neglect, poor service and even the death of patients, according to statements by members in debate on the floor of the House.

The $340,000 vetoed in the appropriations for educational institutions represents less than half the amount the Governor will withhold from education in Missouri. It is well known that heads of the various institutions have been forced to agree to hold up an equal amount which is left in the appropriations. The same is true of the eleemosynary institutions.

This means that a new building at the University, which President Hill convinced the legislature was essential, will not be erected. It means that a new power plant, long needed by the State Hospital at Fulton, will not be built. It means that a new building for the Farmington Hospital cannot be erected to relieve overcrowding.

Repairs needed two years ago, but which were vetoed by the Governor so that the State might rehabilitate its finances are needed "ten times as badly now," in the language of several heads of institutions, but cannot be obtained before the middle of the next biennial period, which is two years away. The Governor issued a statement in which he admits appropriations as he left them are about $1,000,000 in excess of the anticipated revenue, but says he hopes the deficit will be overcome by additional revenue derived from the general property tax.

Small Salary Bills Vetoed.

The only salary increase bills vetoed by the Governor are those for janitors at the St. Louis Courthouse and Justices of the Peace in Kansas City. The Legislature passed a bill increasing the pay of the janitors from $900 to $1080 a year, or $15 per month. The omnibus salary bill increases Capitol clerks from $2400 to $2800 and from $1800 to $2100.

Legality of Passage Disputed.

The omnibus bill first came into prominence when the Post-Dispatch published a story telling how absent members had been fraudulently voted for it while an army of clerks from the Capitol offices lobbied incessantly for it, and had swarmed on the floor, in the galleries and sat in the seats of members. Upon verification of the roll call four names of absent members who had been voted for the bill were taken off, leaving only 72 'aye" votes, a bare constitutional majority. Upon investigation by a committee, two other members made affidavit thay had not voted for the bill, though they had been so recorded, which left the bill with only 70 votes, two less than enough to pass it, though the record showed it had passed.

A formal resolution was prepared and signed by five members, as provided by the constitution, and went to the Governor with the bill, but he took the position the record could not be changed. In a statement today covering this point, the Governor said that he had been guided by opinions of James C. Jones, president of the Missouri Bar Association, and Attorney-General McAllister that he must accept the bill as having been regularly passed.

Art League Awards 11 Art Scholarships in High and Grade Schools.

The winners in the annual competition of public school students for the St Louis Art League scholarships in the St. Louis School of Fine Arts were announced yesterday by Miss Mary A. McColl, Chairman of the Committee on Museums and schools.

Five full-time scholarships for the graduating classes of the High Schools, and six Saturday class scholarships for students in the Grade Schools were awarded by a jury.

The High School winners are Walker Hancock of Central High School, Bernice Schmidt of McKinley High, Virginia Moberly of Soldan High, Virginia Livesey with Loretta Wightman as alternate from Yeatman High, and Mary Krebbs from Cleveland High.

The Grade School winners are Stewart Scott, Calvin Yeckel, Clifford Toby, Edna Buhler, Esther Rull Koetter and Eloise Frazier.

On Jury of Awards were: Prof. Edmund H. Wuerpel, Gustav F. Goetsch, Agnes I. Lodwick, R. A. Kissack and Miss M. A. McColl.

The selections were made upon the best work of pupils in the art classes of the public schools. The High School Scholarship gives the winner a post graduate course in art, for one year, with tuition free in all the classes for which the student is fitted. There are handicraft classes in various branches, as well as the regular academic courses in drawing, painting, sculpture, etc. The Saturday class scholarships for Grade school students have a different purpose, as they simply give the pupil a good start while the regular schooling is proceeded with, and perhaps enable the young aspirant and his or her friends to find out without loss of time whether it is worth while to adopt art as a life vocation.

The fact that serious work is sometimes done by young Saturday class scholars is proved by Walker Hancock, the winner of the Central High School Scholarship. Three years ago, while attending the grade school and the Saturday class in sculpture at the School of Fine Arts, Hancock entered the competition for a design for the Art League medal, and won the second prize of $100 against professional competitors of standing, the first prize going to a well-known American sculptor with a studio in New York, for the design which was adopted by the League.

Celebrated artists have been turned out by the St. Louis School, and friends of Hancock and other clever young people of today are confident that good results will come from the present expansion of the scholarship idea.

Airy-Lite

SUMMER COOL CLOTHES

ANY tailor can purchase a high-grade summer fabric, but it takes years of specializing in the tailoring of light-weight goods to produce a summer suit that will have perfect "hang" and design which discriminating persons demand. Airy-Lite suits are the result of twenty years' concentration on the science of tailoring summer fabrics. That is why they are setting the world's standard today. Airy-Lite suits are made of Palm Beach fabric, Coolkenny cloth, Panama cloth, Coolcloth, Goff cloth and Mohairs in many styles.

$250,000 PAID BY BANK FOR 2 LOTS ON SEVENTH ST.

Much of Outlay by First National for Additions to Home Site Said to Have Been for Leaseholds.

The St. Louis Union Trust Co. yesterday paid $250,000 for two strips of ground, 30x129 feet each, on the west side of Seventh street, beginning 119.6 feet north of Locust street, thus completing the site at the northwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets, on which it will erect a four-story building for the recently organized First National Bank, which is a consolidation of the St. Louis Union, Mechanics-American and Third National Banks.

The price paid for the corner, 119.6 feet on Seventh street by 127.6 feet on Locust street, owned by the Shapleigh estate, was $800,000, and the additional acquisitions as stated increased the cost of the site for the proposed bank building to $1,050,000. Cornet & Zeibig represented the St. Louis Union Trust Co. throughout the negotiations, in conjunction with its vice president, James H. Grover. The enlarged site will give the bank building a frontage on Locust street of 127.6 feet and on Seventh street of 164.6 feet.

One of the strips on Seventh street was owned by Mrs. Henrietta Wallace Ewald. It was held under a 99-year lease by Robert Lungstras, president of Lungstras Realty Co., who received $120,000 for the surrender of his lease. The other strip was controlled under a 99-year lease by the Strand Realty Co., of which Thomas Dunn is president, and Arthur F. Barnes vice president, and which also received, it is understood, a handsome bonus for its leasehold interest. Barnes is a vice president of the Merchants' Trust Co. The price paid for the fees have not been disclosed, but, it is understood that they were based upon the rental provided for in the 99-year leases, plus a substantial bonus.

Plans for the new building are being prepared by Mauran, Russell and Crowell of St. Louis and Cass Gilbert of New York. Construction work is to begin Sept. 15, contracts providing for its completion Jan. 1, 1921. Meantime the bank will occupy the quarters of the Mechanics-American National at Broadway and Locust street.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY SOUTH 12TH STREET BODY

The South Twelfth Street District Improvement Association held its monthly meeting recently and elected these officers: President, Fred Marx, vice president, Bohumil Kosek, and William F. Depelheuer; secretary, Thomas F. Pechan; financial secretary, Dr. Juengel; treasurer, Nathan Nettle; sergeant-at-arms, William Krejci.

The association received its pro forma decree of incorporation from the Circuit Court on April 17 last. Its purpose is uplifting, beautifying and improving the district between Dolman and Menard streets and between Park and Russell avenue.

The next meeting will be held June 20 at Marecek Hall, Eleventh and Emmett streets. The new officers will be installed. Mayor Kiel has been invited to address the meeting.

50 HOUSES SOLD IN PAST 40 DAYS BY CHRISTIAN BRINKOP

The Christian Brinkop Real Estate Co. reports having sold 50 houses during the past 40 days in South St. Louis. A great demand is reported for flats, bungalows and cottages in the South Grand avenue district, extending from Arsenal street to King's highway, southeast.

Kingsland Court, in which the Brinkop company constructed 14 beautiful residences, and King's highway, southeast, both restricted subdivisions, are situated in this district.

Brinkop states that during his 25 years in the real estate business he has never seen conditions so good for investors and property owners as now. He says that property owners realize that there will be no material decrease in the cost of construction, consequently there will be a substantial increase in values.

SIX MODERN BUNGALOWS BEING ERECTED ON HUMPHREY STREET

Construction of six bungalows in the 3900 block of Humphrey street for the Federer-Coller Realty Co. is well under way.

These buildings contain five rooms, all on one floor, and will embody the latest ideas in bungalow construction. Although no effort has been made to sell them, there have been numerous prospective buyers awaiting their completion.

MANEWALS BUY HEIDLAND PLANT

Louis A. Manewal, formerly manager of the cracker factory established by his father, and his son, Wilton L., have bought the bakery plant occupying half a block on Walton and Baking Co. for $43,000. The plant has been appraised at $100,000, as the building, ovens and equipment could not be replaced for less than $80,000. Wilton Manewal will manage the plant.

Fountain Avenue Residences Recently Sold by Rolla Wells

GEORGE J. WANSTRATH has effected the sale on behalf of Rolla Wells of three Fountain avenue houses, 4903-07-11, to George P. Schopp, John B. Needham and the Misses Amy and Harriette H. Sheard, respectively. Each house comprises two and one-half stories, divided into nine rooms, and occupies a lot 40x150 feet. All have hardwood floors, tile porch, stone steps, furnace and electric fixtures and other modern features.

Schopp, who is a commission merchant, has plans for converting his purchase into a two-family five and six room apartment, with sun parlors, at a cost of $5000.

Needham, who is auditor of the Union Electric Light and Power Co., and the Sheard sisters, will occupy their purchases as homes.

These homes were only recently listed for sale by Wells with Wanstrath.

OLIVE STREET HOME FOR DROSTEN COMPANY

The F. W. Drosten Jewelry Co. has leased, through the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co., the southwest corner of Ninth and Olive streets, comprising three stores on the ground floor of the Frisco Building.

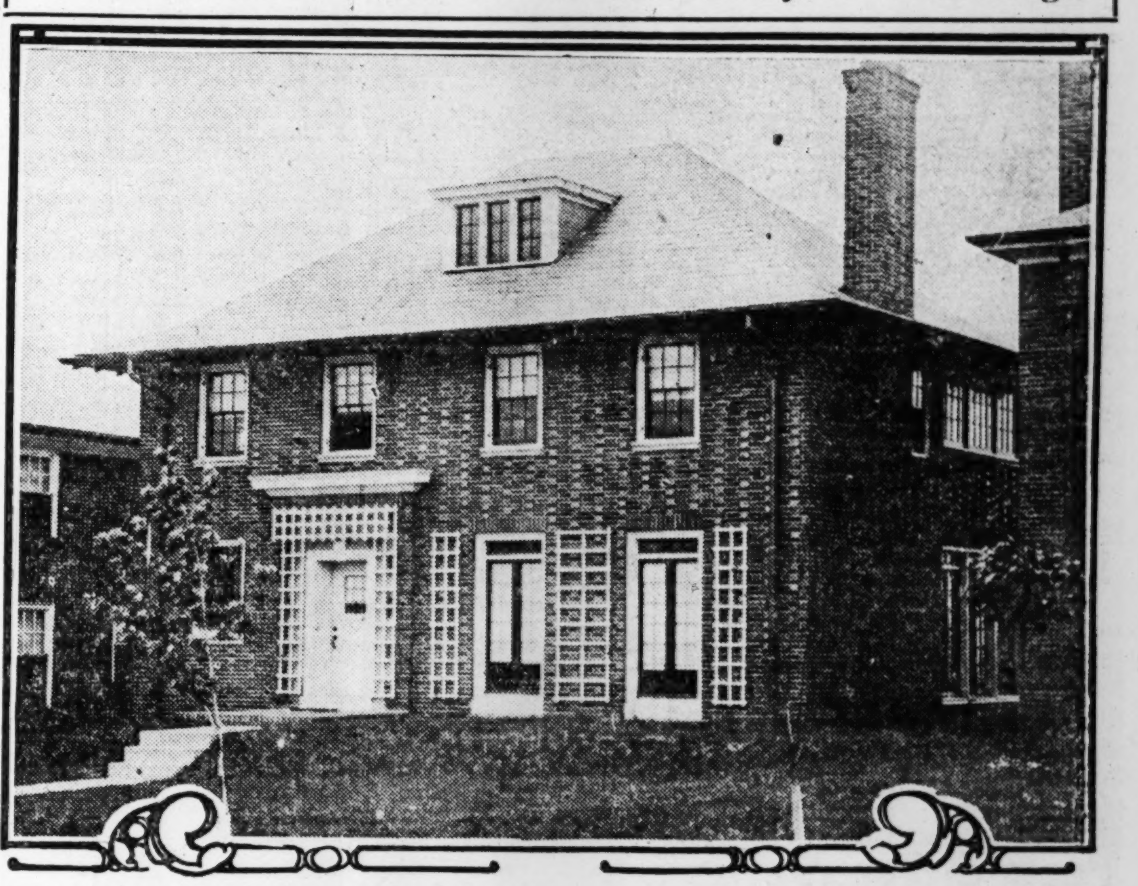
The corner store was formerly occupied by the ticket office of the Frisco Railroad Co. and the second store, at 902, and the third, on Ninth street, by the Hamburg-American Steamship Co.

The lease will give the Drosten company larger quarters than it now has at the southwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets, in the Mercantile Club Building, the sale of which under foreclosure canceled its lease, the building being now owned by a syndicate, of which Nathan Frank is the prime mover.

There will be extensive alterations to both the Ninth and the Olive street fronts, and it is the intention of the company to install fixtures which will make this store one of the finest in St. Louis.

The property is owned by the Avenue Corner Realty Co.

Modern Home in Hillcrest Is Purchased by C. R. Croninger



CLIFFORD R. CRONINGER has purchased, through the Fletcher R. Harris Realty Co., 31 Aberdeen place in Hillcrest, a modern and recently constructed house, occupying a lot 50x155 feet. It has nine rooms, sun parlor and sleeping porch, hardwood floors, three baths and a hot water heating plant.

The house was acquired by Croninger for a home. L. D. Day of the Harris Realty Co. negotiated the sale.

FINAL HI-POINTE LOT SALE GOES ON TODAY

Many prospective purchasers of home sites are expected today to attend the opening of the final sale of remaining lots in Hi-Pointe, and the Broadway Savings Trust Co., agent for this beautiful tract, is making preparations to close out the subdivision within 30 days, after which a substantial advance in price will be made on all unsold lots and the subdivision taken off the market.

Even under the unsettled conditions of war times and the many obstructions that have necessarily arisen since Hi-Pointe was placed on the market, almost two years ago, informed buyers of real estate appreciated the advantages and opportunities of owning a site in this subdivision and more than $400,000 worth of lots have been sold.

Owners of home sites in Hi-Pointe, after a careful investigation into the advisability of building at this time, have reached the conclusion that the present prices of building materials and labor, when taken into consideration with the existing enormous demand for homes of all types, warrant the immediate construction of their buildings, and $50,000 worth of homes were started last week, and many more residences, flat and apartment buildings will be under construction within the next few days. Within 60 days Hi-Pointe will, the agent says, present the appearance of a well built-up subdivision.

ONE HOUSE AND SEVEN LOTS IN KENWOOD SOLD DURING WEEK

Herman C. G. Luyties sold one house and seven lots in Kenwood Springs during the week. There now remain only 25 lots of the original plat of the addition. The terms of sale are $10 cash and $10 a month.

The special sale at this addition will be continued until all the lots have been sold. The sites are being offered at reduced prices, with a view to the early closing out of the addition.

The tract is on the Kirkwood-Ferguson car line, only five minutes' ride north of the old Suburban Garden. It has complete street improvements.

ONLY ONE OF 15 HOUSES IN SHAFTSBURY HEIGHTS UNSOLD

Lewis Balson, president of the Balson Realty Co., announced yesterday that all except one of the 15 houses erected by this company in Shaftsbury Heights had been sold. The houses range in size from five to seven rooms and represent a variety of types. They are of the best construction.

This addition was laid out by the late W. L. Balson and has the finest order of street improvements. It is attractively situated, just north of Delmar boulevard, in University City, on the Creve Coeur line, about 3 minutes' from Delmar Garden. It is being offered in lots to suit.

The "WANT" ADS reflect the needs of the times. Home and business both reach out through the Post-Dispatch WANTS to quickly fill the requirements.

64 'LITTLE CITY FARMS' SOLD IN THREE WEEKS, AGENTS SAY

Only 21 "Little City Farms" left out of the 85 laid out three weeks ago, is the report by Sikking X Beckwith, who are handling the sale of Riverview Gardens subdivision. Business continued good throughout the week and $7000 in sales were made.

These little farms are lot, 100 feet front and 150 to 350 feet deep, each equipped with city water, cinder roadways and street car facilities, and are selling from $300 apiece up, on easy payments.

Many small homes are being built in the little farm section. The restrictions in that part permit of constructing temporary homes, and many of the buyers, in order to escape the fast increasing rents in the city, are putting up small places and getting into them. This enables them also to raise large garden and chickens, sufficient to materially reduce living expenses.

"We now believe," said Beckwith, "that we will dispose of our entire holdings before the real hot weather, and to that end we are preparing for the market a small section remaining in the front part of the addition, containing the last 51 lots."

CITY REAL ESTATE FOR SALE CITY REAL ESTATE FOR SALE CITY REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

$10.00 a Foot Raise in Hi-Pointe
30 Days
in Which to Buy at the Present Prices!
Closing Sale Starts Today!

The final and closing sale of all remaining lots in Hi-Pointe starts today, and within 30 days your opportunity to own a site in this beautiful subdivision at the present low prices will be lost, as at that time all lots remaining unsold will be increased at least $10.00 per front foot.

This means that if you buy a lot today, 30 days from now the lot will be worth $10.00 per foot more.

$10.00 PER FOOT ON 40 FEET IS $400.00 PROFIT!

JUST THINK! $400.00 PROFIT IN 30 DAYS, AND THIS WILL STILL BE FAR BELOW THE REAL VALUE OF THE PROPERTY.

$60,000.00 WORTH OF BUILDINGS WERE STARTED LAST WEEK.

ANOTHER $60,000.00 WORTH WILL BE STARTED THIS WEEK.

OVER $100,000.00 WORTH OF BUILDINGS ARE NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION. Buildings are springing up everywhere in Hi-Pointe.

This will be the most rapidly built-up subdivision in the city.

RAPID INCREASES IN VALUE ALWAYS follow extensive building operations.

THIS IS NOT AN EXPERIMENT, BUT A CERTAINTY.

EVERY SUBDIVISION, RESTRICTED ALONG SIMILAR LINES TO HI-POINTE HAS BEEN A SUCCESS.

We are now selling the flat and apartment lots, and at prices $15.00 to $30.00 below prices asked in other localities.

COMPARE IT WITH ANY WEST END PROPERTY. Compare it with the many apartment house districts, for instance, selling from $60.00 TO $75.00 PER FRONT FOOT. You will find that Hi-Pointe excels in everything that makes and maintains real estate values, yet the price is not nearly so high.

Now that builders are in the market, this property is going to increase in LEAPS and BOUNDS. Builders do not buy one lot at a time. FROM 150 TO 500 FEET IS THE USUAL PURCHASE.

THE BOOM IS ON AND GREAT PROFITS ARE GOING TO BE MADE!

HI-POINTE IS THE BEST BUY IN THE CITY TODAY, AND THE ONLY QUESTION FOR YOU TO DECIDE IS

SHALL YOU PARTICIPATE?
YOU MUST DECIDE AT ONCE

RESIDENCES FOR SALE

A Modern Home of Best Construction

In a First-Class Location

We are Authorized to Offer for Sale

5267 Washington Boulevard

LOT 50x137.

This is a gray brick residence; 3-story, hardwood floors, hot-water heat, basement fully finished, large porch full across the front; also porch in rear; garage for 3 machines.

The interior arrangement of the house is of the most satisfactory character.

First floor—Large reception hall, parlor, library, dining room, butler's pantry, kitchen, lavatory, coat room; large porch opening off the dining room that can be used either as a breakfast porch or sun parlor; porch opening off the kitchen large enough to have the icebox outside and inclosed. Dining room has a built-in buffet; butler's pantry has every convenience in the way of drawers for linens, chest for silver, sinks, hot and cold water service.

Second floor—At the landing half way up is a small lounging nook, fitted with bench seats; artistic stained art glass windows; four bedrooms and the ladies' dressing room are models of what sleeping apartments should be, perfectly sanitary, finished in white, large bathroom; also lavatories which afford every comfort and convenience.

Third floor—2 bedrooms; bath, cedar room and a large room that can be used either as a ballroom or a billiard room.

We say without reservation that this is a very desirable home. It is in perfect condition. We would be very glad indeed to furnish card of admission and make appointment for any one wishing to inspect it. The owner expects to leave the city at an early date and does not care to rent it. We can make the most liberal financial arrangement and, all things considered, it is a decided bargain in residence property.

8-ROOM RESIDENCE HOT WATER HEAT

My well-constructed, first-class, eight-room modern residence, containing eight beautiful large, light, airy rooms; entire 1st floor finished in oak; beautiful electric fixtures; high-class cabinet mantels; many large closets, marble and tile bath, slate roof; splendid hot-water heating system; high, dry basement; large garage.

I built this place for my home and spared no expense; it is built right and in perfect condition; built on a large lot, and on a corner; it will make a splendid home for anyone, but especially suited for physician.

I am going to build a bungalow; that is the only reason for disposing of this residence.

This is not an old, wornout house, but a splendid residence, in first-class condition, and in a very good neighborhood.

Will sell at far below cost and make very reasonable terms.

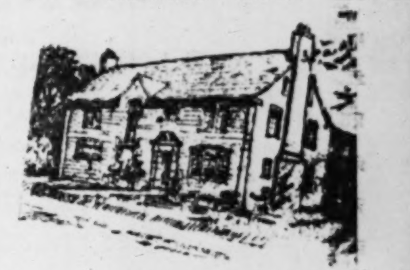
BEING DESIGNED FOR A BEAUTIFUL MARYLAND TERRACE LOT



We are pleased to announce that Hoener, Baum & Froese, architects, have just submitted the above sketch for a Maryland Terrace home.

This is to be built of stucco with brick trim. Notice particularly the beautiful entrance, the wide window openings, the sleeping porch, the sunroom to the rear facing south.

Downstairs you enter a wonderful hall with the living room and sun parlor immediately on your east, the dining room is in front and almost a part of the front hall, using effectively French doors as a screen. This permits the kitchen wing to be on the west with a roomy pantry and the maid's stairway.

Upstairs there are four beautiful bedrooms, a sleeping porch and two baths.

That's the advantage of building. It enables one to have every room, every opening, every closet, every feature to suit one's own individuality.

Don't buy a compromise when you buy a home. Get what you want. It is easy to build. A good architect designs the home to fill your every requirement. The lines are harmonious, you have the right perspective and vista.

We can finance your home in Maryland Terrace, giving you a deep lot forever protecting you from undesirable encroachments—enabling you to pay for the home with an easy down payment and the balance like rent.

See Maryland Terrace today.

Drive to Pennsylvania av., the western boundary of Washington University campus, then west on either Maryland or Westmoreland drives—that's Maryland Terrace.

University car direct to the door.

STOP GUESSING.

Fabulous fortunes will be made in oil stocks. Small investments will multiply many times. In some cases as little as $50 will earn twice that much and more each month in dividends. Thousands will profit by the greatest oil boom the country has ever seen. There will be just as many that will risk their money in worthless or wildcat stocks and lose it all. Stop guessing. Avoid costly mistakes. Make money by information obtained reading the Oil Press, June 1st issue just out, free on request. Brimful of authentic and inside information concerning developments of scores of oil companies in the Mid-Continent and Texas fields. Also complete review and analysis of hundreds of companies whose stocks are being held by the public. Some good, bad and indifferent. Contains valuable information and sound advice that you cannot afford to be without. The June 1st issue, together with market quotations on listed and unlisted active and inactive securities sent free. Write for it. Oil Press, 3001 Republic Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

Sworn Statement
On Production of Texas Oil

Made by over four hundred Oil Producing Companies, with their affidavits attached, for the first quarter (90 days) of 1919, reporting 13,650,230 barrels of high-grade oil, valued at $62,988,205.00, to the State Income Tax Department as required by the Texas laws. We will furnish you the entire list, giving names of companies, their production of oil, the amount of money they received for the oil, carefully compiled. We have nothing to sell, but we want the world to know the TRUTH ABOUT TEXAS OIL PRODUCTION. Do not believe all you read in advertisements. Get the Facts Sent Free Upon Request.

FOR SALE

WHITE DRESS—For sale; 14-year-old grammar school graduating dress; cheap. 2600 Park.

"OH, BOY! Ours is some store." Our slogan, "Abrams First for Clothes." Our "Free and Easy" way of doing business "makes it easy" to do business with you, and "free" with good advice to help the struggling masses of humanity on the "road to success." There is no time in life that you get so "down and out" that you can't get into the "Land of Beginning Again;" "Start Anew;" we "Are Calling You" With our 5 large stores, 120 feet, filled with "bargains galore." If we don't get your "money for clothes" here you don't spend your "dough" right. What you "save when you spend your dough is your profit." "Install the Abrams' System of clothes buying and save. Dress up, look prosperous. Don't go around looking "down and out." For 10 years we have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. Be "awake" to the "fact" your personal appearance "must count." We have "placed on sale" hundreds of suits, pants, coats and vests, which means a big saving to you. We have in "store" for you high-class suits; you can afford to wear two or three suits a season for the price of the customary one by purchasing our uncalled-for garments from our cleaning department; garments are tailor-made and from the best manufacturers. Can you wear 34, 36, 38, 43, 40, 46 to 50 sizes? Also, English and plain models, $7.50 to $15.00. Vests, 25c; pants, $2 to $3.95; coats, $3 to $6.50; mohair suits, $19; Palm Beach suits, $3.95, $5 and $7.50; Mohair Cool Cloth Suits, $7.49 to $9.98; uncalled-for Stetson hats, 95c. Open Sundays until 6 p. m. Abram Cleaners and Dyers, 926 S. Vandeventer, near Chouteau. Mail orders filled. Both phones. Liberty Bonds accepted.

SWEATER—For sale; pure silk; gold; size 38; cost $35; sell for $12; silk dresses, size 36, coat and other things. Call between 12 and 2 only. 2905 Madison.

UNREDEEMED CLOTHING, shoes, hats; big values. Jefferson Loan Co., 312 N. Jefferson av. (c8)

IT'S THE "buying and selling end" in business that counts. "Buy right" is to sell right. To sell right is the "low selling expenses that counts." We are out of the "high rent district." The reason is this: Everyone who "works" here is a "producer." We have no "four-flushing" floor walkers, window trimmers, no expensive "advertising man," who "takes the dough all out" and "puts" none in the cash register, which add nothing but expense to your clothes. Just go into those high-priced clothing stores, where they "slam out" those $50, $65 and $75 suits at you. "Shock absorbers" are not necessary here. Our "close-to-the-shore-profits" policy; all we ask of you, "go shopping around" first and come here last, and if we don't get your "dough" you certainly must have "Dr. Sweeney" examine your head. We are the only store in St. Louis showing "real" plain and silk-lined $30 and $35 blue, green, brown flannel waist-line suits at these prices: $19.98, $21.98, $22.98, $24.98 and $27.98. Don't spend "a dollar for clothes" until you see our "spring line." "Pay less; buy more." To the "Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop." Five big stores in one; 6c fare saves you $5 to $7.50; Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. "We've got the place, the goods at the price." A "price concession to our returning soldiers." "Sample suits," $13.30, $14.44, $16.66, $18.39, $19.45, $21.89, $24.85. Mohair suits, $12.98, $14.98; Palm Beach, $8.98 and $9.98. What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you: These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off, we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you $5 to $7.50. Sample pants, $2.48, $2.98, $3.46, $4.98; tailor-made suits cost up to $35; our price, $19.50, $22.50, $26.75. We again announce our "Trade-in-Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "The place to buy clothes." 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau. Liberty bonds accepted. (c)

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear mother, Lizzie Kaufmann, who departed this life one year ago June 7, 1918. Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

In loving memory of C. August Schwind, died June 9, 1918. Sadly missed by his wife, son, parents, sisters, brothers and friends.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear son, W. L. James, who died in Los Angeles, Cal. June 7, 1916:

Into each life some rain must fall,
Some days be sad and dreary.

MOTHER.

In memory of our dear father, Michel Kissel, who departed this life five years ago, June 9, 1914.

Five sad years have passed since that sad day,
One whom we loved was called away;
God took him home; it was His will;
But in our hearts he liveth still.

Sadly missed by
WIFE, DAUGHTER AND SISTER.

In loving memory of our darling, Edith Alberta Moore, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Moore, entered into rest May 23, 1919:

A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

Just one year ago today
My dear mother passed away.
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But little do they know what's in my heart concealed.
Rest on, dear mother, you did your best,
May God grant you eternal rest.

Sadly missed by her daughter, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

CAROLINE SETTIG ROTHAMEL.

In loving memory of my only child, Le Roy George Bucher, died Tuesday, June 6, 1916, through accident, aged 11 years:

Silently the shades of evening gather 'round my lonely door,
While alone I sit thinking of that sweet face I'll see no more.
But some day I hope to meet him, and this aching void to fill.
But now all I have is memories and that grave on a distant hill.

So sadly missed by his mother,
MRS. L. HACKER, and grandparents, MR AND MRS. WM. HACKER.

In loving remembrance of my dear wife Kate Pfisterer, who departed this life one year ago, June 1, 1918:

Silently the shades of evening
Gather 'round my lonely door,
While alone I sit thinking
Of that sweet smile I'll see no more.
But some day I hope to meet her,
And this aching void to fill;
But now all I have is memory
And that grave on a distant hill.

Sadly missed by her husband,
FRED PFISTERER.

In memory of Emma Wiegert, who died one year ago, June 8:

Her tired body lies sleeping
In the cool grave on the hill,
Where her dear ones are keeping
Her memory green till
We all get called to the wonderful goal
Where again we will meet her loving soul.

Sadly missed by sorrowing husband, children and grandchildren, brother, sons and daughters-in-law, brothers-and-sisters-in-law and friends.

In loving memory of our dear Walter, who so nobly answered the call of his country and of whom our dear Lord asked the supreme sacrifice on June 6, 1918, in the Battle of Belleau Woods. He is resting in Flanders' field where poppies grow:

Rest ye in peace, ye Flanders dead,
The fight that ye so bravely led,
We've taken up and we will keep
The faith with you who lie asleep
With each a cross to mark your bed
And poppies growing overhead,
Where once his own life's blood ran red;
So let your rest be sweet and deep
In Flanders fields.

Sadly mourned and missed by mother, sister and brother.
MRS. SOPHIA SWENSON, MRS. CLAUDE STRONG, MR. CHARLIE SWENSON.

BESS.—In canning lobsters the live animals are put into brine and boiled until cooked. They are rapidly cooled, shelled and canned, the cans being filled with salt water, and they are sterilized by "processing" in hot water or steam. The best brands have the interior of the tin lined with parchment paper, to prevent the action of phosphorus from the lobster upon the metal.—Tibbles.

S. C.—Dr. Hawk and 3 of his associates tell of their experiences in the use of ordinary baker's yeast in boils, pimples and other skin disease, and in constipation. They give from ½ cake to 1 cake a day before meals. Sometimes the yeast was given alive, sometimes after being killed with boiling water. It was given suspended in water, beef tea or orange juice. In the 10 cases of constipation treated with it 9 were improved or cured. In some of the 76 persons treated with yeast, 3 cakes a day of live cells caused diarrhoea. In some of these cases killing the yeast with boiling water prevented it from producing diarrhoea. In some cases the symptom was overcome by giving a smaller dose. Even dead yeast in considerable doses was effective against constipation. The yeast treatment was kept up for a month or more in most cases. Yeast cells were not all killed in passing through the stomach and intestines.

S.—Few people know how easy it is to capture the fragrance of real flowers. Here is the way the Scientific American tells us to do it: The first step is to secure a glass funnel. The small end of this, instead of opening, should be drawn out to a fine point. Some means must be adopted to maintain the funnel in an upright position—a little stand made of wooden uprights and wire. Any kinds of highly scented flowers, such as roses, may be gathered; these should be in fresh condition, as just after opening the fragrance is at its best. Place these in a vase filled with water so that they will not wither. Now get some ice and crush this into small fragments using it to fill up the glass funnel. At the same time place some receptacle under the funnel. Sprinkle salt on the ice and then move the flowers and the funnel into close proximity. After a while it will be seen that the moisture from the atmosphere is condensed on the outside of the funnel, the surface of which is chilled by the ice. The ethereal odor of the flowers combines with this liquid which slowly trickles down by drops into the receptacle. When a sufficient quantity is secured this may be mixed with about an equal quantity of pure alcohol. The mixture should then be placed in bottles, when it will keep for an indefinite time. In this way all kinds of flower perfume may be captured with the greatest ease. There are a variety of things that might take the place of the glass funnel.

READER.—This was published some years ago: The Mecca in America for lovers of art books is the little village of East Aurora, N. Y. The people there, who call themselves Roycrofters, print and bind books by hand and illuminate them—a revival of the artistic work done by the monks of olden times. From about 1650 to 1690, in London, Samuel and Thomas Roycroft printed and made very beautiful books. In choosing their name the modern Roycrofters had these men in mind, but beyond this the word has a special significance, meaning "king's craft"—king's craftsmen being a term used in the guilds of early England for the men who had achieved a high degree of skill—men who made things for the king. So a Roycrofter is a person who makes beautiful things and makes them as well as he can. Elbert Hubbard, author of "Message of Garcia," and editor of the Philistine, was the founder of the Roycrofters. He perished when the Lusitania was torpedoed. 22 yrs. ago the institution started with 3 workers, Fra Elbertus, as the people call their founder, and 2 boys, and the shop was in the upper story of the fra's barn. Here the Philistine magazine was first printed, and, to fill in the time, a book, made like a William Morris book, was attempted. Other books followed. They have a modern workshop now. The Roycroft shop is the first concern in America to take up the hand illumination of books as a business. There is a quality of sentiment, Mr. Hubbard says, attached to articles thus produced that never clings to fabrics made in vast quantities by steam.

GIRLIE.—What are the greatest 10 inventions of the past 25 yrs.? The Scientific American offered prizes of $150, $100 and $50 for the 3 best essays on this interesting subject. The astonishing fact about these is the wide diversity of opinion of the contestants. "No two competitors selected the same set of inventions. In fact, only one invention, wireless telegraphy, was conceded unanimously to belong among the greatest 10. The vote on airplanes was almost unanimous; but beyond that there was not the slightest trace of unanimity." The conditions laid down were that the "greatness" of an invention would be measured in terms of practical success and general usefulness to mankind. The contestants were limited to "machines, devices and discoveries commercially introduced in the last 25 yrs. They must be patentable, although not necessarily patented." The editors of the Scientific American took a test vote among themselves and found they could not agree on more than half a dozen. First prize selection: The electric furnace, steam turbine, gasoline automobile, moving pictures, airplane, wireless telegraphy, cyanide process, induction motor, linotype, electric welding. The National Geographical Magazine once tabulated as follows the "epoch-making inventions by people of the U. S. in the last 50 years" of the last century.

BOYS

With not less than two years of high school training, we have

for your consideration.

The printing industry is the fastest growing industry in America today and has the brightest prospects. Printing and advertising go hand and hand. The successes of the various Liberty Bond advertising campaigns, which resulted in the largest amount of sales the world has ever known, as well as the successes of the various "drives" (Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., etc.), which depended upon advertising, opened the eyes of everybody with something to sell to the wonders of advertising.

As a result, the printing industry is now busier than it has ever been before and this condition promises to continue indefinitely. The consequence is a very serious shortage of trained workers in all departments, and in spite of the introduction of the most wonderful labor-saving devices this shortage promises to become steadily more acute.

The only solution seems to be for us to begin now to recruit and train the workers that we shall need in the future. We want a better class of boys (and girls) than we have ever before secured and are willing to make it worth their while to enter this industry with the idea of sticking to it as their life's work.

The printing trade offers clean, easy, interesting and profitable employment in every department. There was a time when the printer was known as a "booze fighter" and a bum, but that day has long passed and the printers of today are high-class, well educated and moral in every respect, and own as many automobiles as any other class of workers.

Acceptable candidates will be started at $12 a week, and advanced in salary and responsibility as rapidly as they prove themselves worthy. It has always been true, and will so continue, that the executive, sales and other high-salaried positions will be filled from the best men in the ranks. Salaries paid in these positions in the printing industry compare most favorably with those of similar rank in other lines of business, many of the men drawing from $60 to $100 per week.

If this sounds as though it might interest you, address me by letter at this office for an appointment to further discuss the matter. No personal or phone calls without a previous appointment will be considered.

M. Reeves, care Ben Franklin Club, (St. Louis Association of Employing Printers), 2165 Railway Exchange Bldg.

DON'T JUNK YOUR OLD TIRES

Bring them to us and let us prove to you that by having them retreaded by the Dri-Kure process you will be able to get miles and miles out of them at a cost so small in comparison with the cost of new tires that you will wonder why you did not take advantage of our proposition before.

We rebuild a new tread on your old tires out of the best material money can buy, and the tires retreaded by us deliver the extra mileage.

Let us prove to you our statement.

RAISE RABBITS

BUT BE SURE OF A STEADY MARKET. I have the only rabbitry in St. Louis conducted as a sole business, with a completely equipped office and motor truck for deliveries and for assembling stock raised for me. Don't ask other people about my proposition, but write or call, because secondhand information is unreliable. I furnish magnificent Rufus reds and giant breeding stock at right price and buy all you raise at 30c to 60c per pound. Send 10c for Breeders' Instruction Booklet, contract, price list, etc.

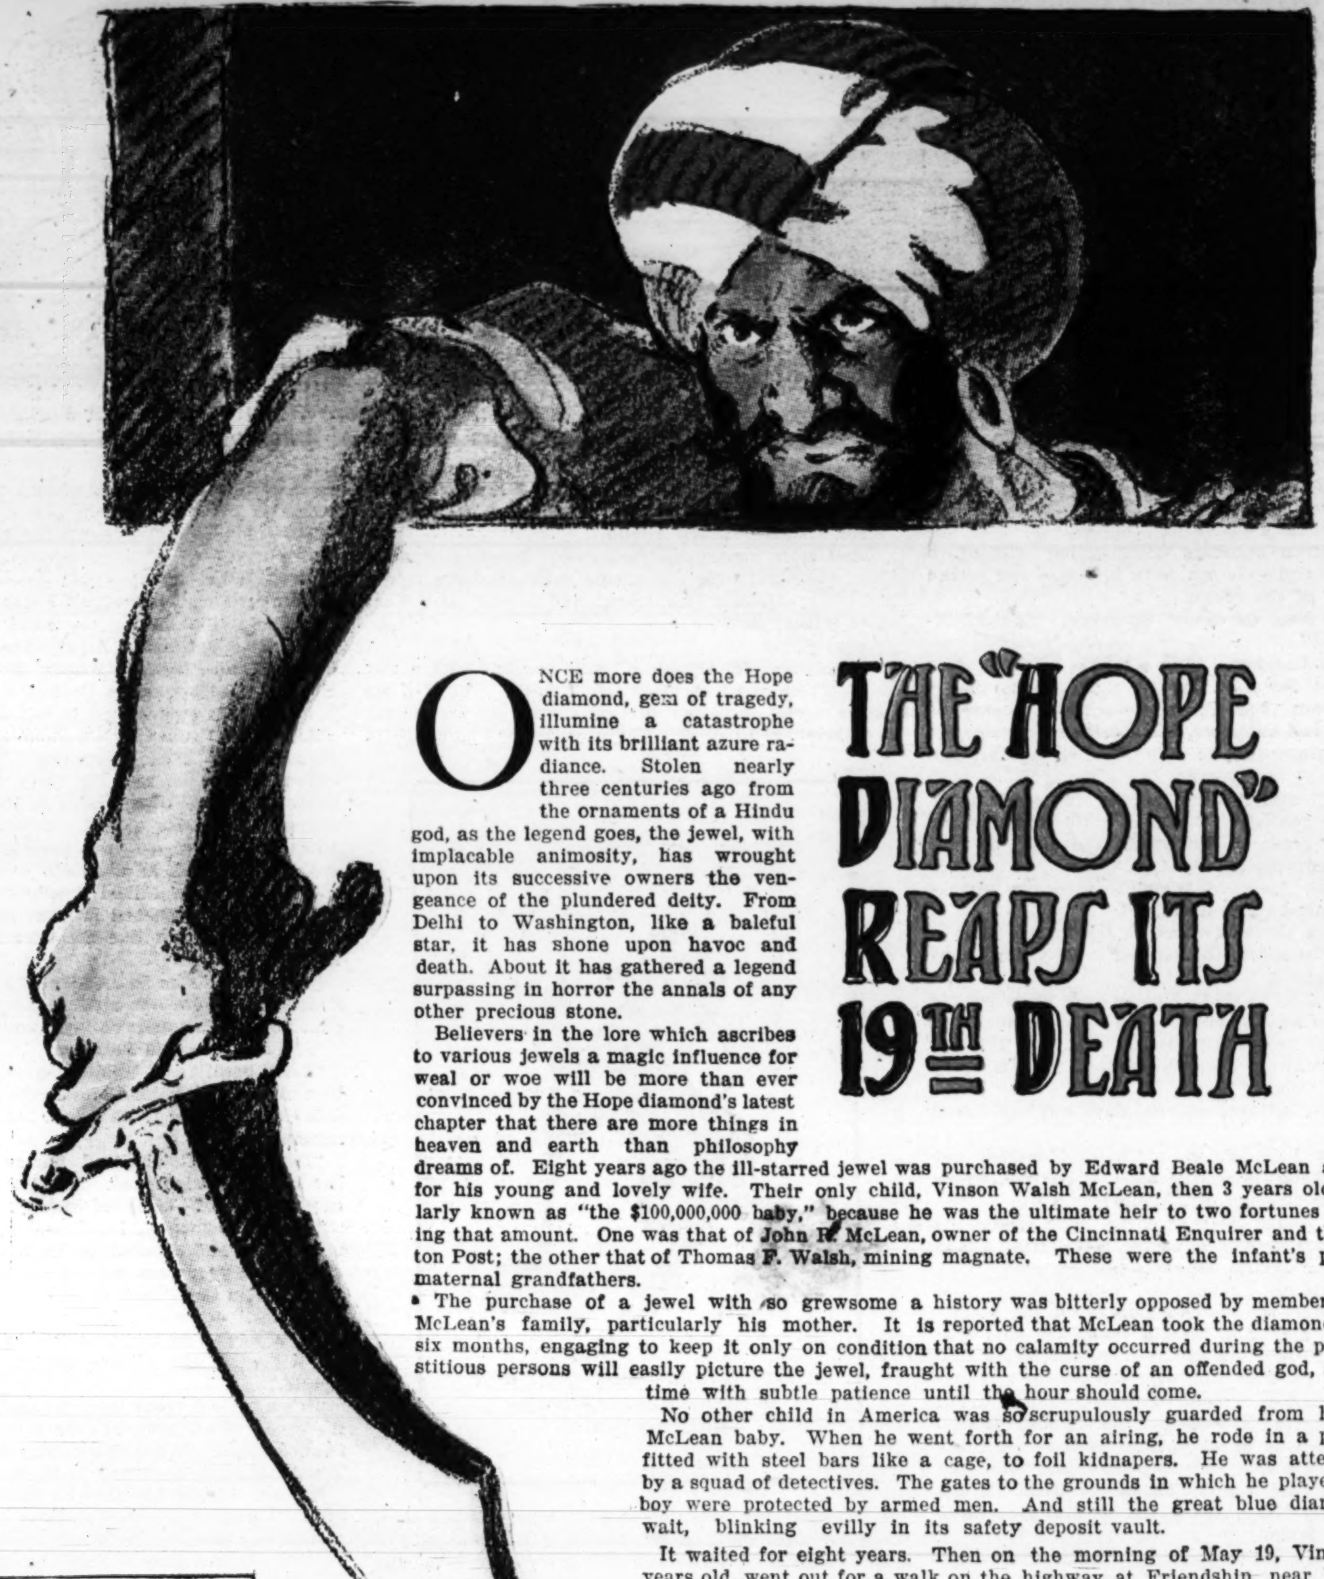
The POST-DISPATCH SUNDAY MAGAZINE

ST. LOUIS, MO., JUNE 8, 1919.



THE "HOPE DIAMOND" REAPS ITS 19TH DEATH

ONCE more does the Hope diamond, gem of tragedy, illumine a catastrophe with its brilliant azure radiance. Stolen nearly three centuries ago from the ornaments of a Hindu god, as the legend goes, the jewel, with implacable animosity, has wrought upon its successive owners the vengeance of the plundered deity. From Delhi to Washington, like a baleful star, it has shone upon havoc and death. About it has gathered a legend surpassing in horror the annals of any other precious stone.

Believers in the lore which ascribes to various jewels a magic influence for weal or woe will be more than ever convinced by the Hope diamond's latest chapter that there are more things in heaven and earth than philosophy dreams of. Eight years ago the ill-starred jewel was purchased by Edward Beale McLean as a present for his young and lovely wife. Their only child, Vinson Walsh McLean, then 3 years old, was popularly known as "the $100,000,000 baby," because he was the ultimate heir to two fortunes approximating that amount. One was that of John R. McLean, owner of the Cincinnati Enquirer and the Washington Post; the other that of Thomas F. Walsh, mining magnate. These were the infant's paternal and maternal grandfathers.

The purchase of a jewel with so grewsome a history was bitterly opposed by members of Edward McLean's family, particularly his mother. It is reported that McLean took the diamond on trial for six months, engaging to keep it only on condition that no calamity occurred during the period. Superstitious persons will easily picture the jewel, fraught with the curse of an offended god, as biding its time with subtle patience until the hour should come.

No other child in America was so scrupulously guarded from harm as the McLean baby. When he went forth for an airing, he rode in a perambulator fitted with steel bars like a cage, to foil kidnapers. He was attended always by a squad of detectives. The gates to the grounds in which he played as a little boy were protected by armed men. And still the great blue diamond lay in wait, blinking evilly in its safety deposit vault.

It waited for eight years. Then on the morning of May 19, Vinson, now 11 years old, went out for a walk on the highway at Friendship, near Washington. His father and mother were away on a visit to Louisville, and the only member of the family at home was his aged grandmother, Mrs. Walsh. The inevitable detective was near by. Vinson caught sight of a friend and darted across the street to speak to him. At that moment an automobile

ONE of the strangest romances of the art of jewelry hangs upon the identification of the Hope diamond as a part of the Tavernier diamond brought from India nearly 300 years ago to become one of the crown jewels of France. Handed down by Louis XIV to his successors, it was stolen during the French Revolution, and vanished from sight for almost 40 years. It was a genuine blue diamond, among the rarest of gems.

In 1830 there came into the possession of Henry Thomas Hope, a British banker, a fine blue diamond of 44 1-2 carats, which is the Hope diamond of sinister reputation. The Tavernier brilliant was of 67 1-2 carats. Edwin W. Streeter, after examining an engraving of the Tavernier diamond, came to the conclusion that the Hope diamond had been cut from that stone. Color, weight and form were all in favor of the theory.

Carrying his speculations further, Streeter announced that probably two other gems had been cut from the original stone. His opinion was brilliantly confirmed when the jewels of the Duke of Brunswick were sold at Geneva in 1874, and were found to include a blue diamond of seven carats, which proved to be without doubt one of the missing remnants. The other, a diamond of one carat, was found by Streeter in Paris and purchased for $1500. These four stones are pictured to the left, each in exact size.

The Hope diamond's great monetary value—it cost Edward McLean $180,000—is due to its magnificent blue color, so rare and perfect that the gem is worth more than it would be if it were clear white.

Roster of the Diamond's Dead

1. Jean Baptist Tavernier, who first brought jewel to Europe; torn to pieces by wild dogs while hunting.
2. Louis XVI, executed during French Revolution.
3. Marie Antoinette, perished on the guillotine.
4. Princess de Lamballe, torn to pieces by Paris mob.
5. Mme. Du Barry, guillotined in Paris.
6. William Fals, Amsterdam jeweler, who cut Tavernier diamond into three brilliants, of which Hope diamond is largest; died of grief over theft of jewel by his son.
7. Hendrik Fals, stole diamond from father; later killed himself.
8. Francis Beaulieu, starved to death.
9. Jacques Colet, went mad and killed himself.
10. Prince Ivan Kanitowski, stabbed to death by nihilists.
11. Mlle. Ladue, French actress, shot on Paris stage.
12. Simon Moncharides, fell over precipice while driving with family.
13. Mme. Moncharides, killed with her husband.
14. Child of the above, killed with them.
15. Second Moncharides child, also killed at same time.
16. Kulub Bey, hanged by mob in Constantinople.
17. Jenver Agha, put to death for trying to steal diamond.
18. Salma Zubayba, favorite of Sultan Abdul Hamid, who shot her.
19. Vinson Walsh McLean, killed in automobile accident.

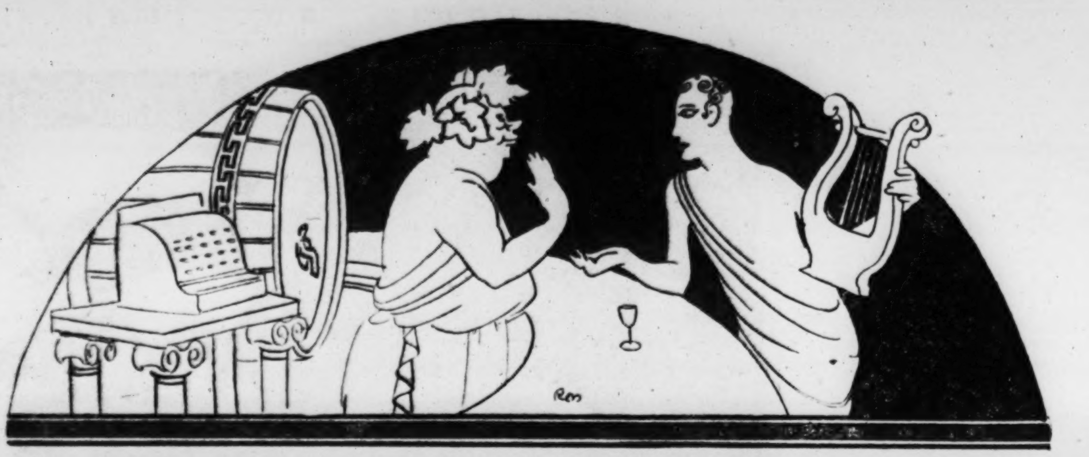
THE RETURN OF THE GODS

They find Olympus sadly changed, and prohibition imminent—But Bacchus has started a new place, and after the welcome he offers Apollo a job



"Say, Bacchus, let me have forty simoleons till my pay check comes, will you?"
"Sorry, Mr. Apollo. But if you want a job playing the lyre at my Saturnalia"——

By ELLIS PARKER BUTLER

FOR a couple of thousand years Bacchus had been absent from Mount Olympus. For something like twenty centuries the door of his saloon at the corner of Main and Oak avenue had remained locked, with a written notice, "Back in Twenty Centuries," pasted on it. Now, however, the old stand had reopened for business. Behind the bar Bacchus, in his apron, was polishing the glassware, pausing now and then to set his grape garland at a more ra'ish angle, and outside a couple of half-gods were hanging an electric sign on the corner of the building. Toward the rear of the barroom old Silenus, red-nosed and pimpled, half-goat and half-man, was sweeping the floor.

"Make less dust, Heinie," Bacchus called to him. "Do you want t' gas th' whole of us?"

The tall patron standing at the bar sipping a glass of nectar and soda put down his glass and peered into the back of the rooms.

"What's the idea, Bacchus?" he asked. "It's old Silenius, isn't it?"

"It is," said Bacchus. "It's a name I got for him whilst he was down on earth yonder, Heine is. I named him from them Prussian-Germans because he was half-man and half-goat, but mostly goat, since the war ended. How do you like the new nectar, Mr. Apollo?"

"Bum stuff," said Apollo, pushing the glass away. "It tastes like gasoline. You take a tip from me and keep a better grade of wet goods, old man, or your place will be entirely on the blink before you know it. You can't draw trade in Olympus with the sort of poison you handed out in Chicago."

For a moment Bacchus stared at Apollo, and then he stuck his big fist across the bar and grasped the young god by the hand.

"Hennessy! And to think I never once knew my old friend Hennessy was the glorious driver of the sun! You were fine at the camouflage, Mr. Apollo, sir. Tell me, did you know your old friend Bacchus in his temporary disguise of Mr. Dooley?"

"The minute I set eyes on you, Back old boy!" said Apollo.

"And to think I thought my old friend Hennessy was a mortal and died!" mused Bacchus. "Tell me, where did you go from Chicago, Mr. Apollo?"

"The tanks. Joined the tank corps," said Apollo. "I wanted to get into the war, of course, and driving a tank looked easy after tooling the sun. But, oh, boy!"

"Some one told me, I remember," said Bacchus, "that the tank corps were the Rough Riders of the Big Fight."

"And believe me," said Apollo, "whoever said that said something! Say, did you ever try to drive a submarine full of cast-iron junk over the side of a mountain that was used as a place to store railroad tracks? And you inside with the junk, you understand. If anybody says osteopathy to me during the next ten thousand years, I'll kill him. Feel up here, just below my shoulder. Feel that lump? That's my liver. It got shaken up there. But, believe me, we did give those Fritzies Pluto's realm!"

"So they tell me," said Bacchus. "What worries me is, who drove the sun whilst you were away."

"Oh, that was easy," said Apollo. "I rigged up a sort of cash carrier and strung the old sun on it and gave it a push.

"Say, Bacchus"——

"Yes, sir!"

Apollo seemed to hesitate.

"I've got my pay check coming. It ought to be along in an eon or two," he said. "I wonder if I can touch you for a few gold pieces?"

Bacchus turned and stared meaningly at the sign, "No Checks Cashed," that hung over his glittering new cash register.

"I know!" said Apollo, "but this is special. I'm good. I'll be all right in a few days. Listen: I'm going to start a taxi line. Maybe I'll have a Seeing Olympus car, too. Midas—you know Midas—is going to back me. He said he would. And I saw Juno this morning and she is going to say a good word for me with Jupiter and get the Big Boss to give me an exclusive taxi franchise. There's big money in it."

"Not many of the gods have come back to Olympus yet," said Bacchus. "And gas is high on top of the mountain. That's a joke, do you see?" he chuckled. "It's not that I don't trust you, Mr. Apollo, you understand, but business is none too good yet, so few being back. If it wasn't that trade is bad, you understand. There's no money coming in, Mr. Apollo. Did you know Minerva was back?"

"No. Is she?" asked Apollo.

"And more headstrong than ever," Bacchus assured him. "She put over the female suffrage down below, and the prohibition amendment, and do you know what she's talking now?"

"What?"

"Prohibition for Olympus," said Bacchus with a wry smile. "Can you imagine it, Mr. Apollo? Think of me with a circlet of malted milk cans wreathed around my dewy brow, so to speak! Think of the mad bacchanalia I'll have, serving pink lemonade! I see blamed hard times ahead for Bacchus, Mr. Apollo, if Minerva gets the upper hand. I've got to conserve my resources, as the mortals say, Mr. Apollo. It makes the old man do some tall thinking. I have to make money while chance lasts. I've a dread premonition that in a couple of billion eons or so Olympus will go dry."

"Old Silenus, half-goat and half-man, was sweeping the floor.' '

"If you could let me have forty simoleons until next Tuesday"— Apollo began.

"If I had not the great expense I'm put to," protested Bacchus, wiping the brass drain-plate of the bar affectionately with a soiled towel. "A man has to spend a lot to buck up trade these days, you understand. Have you heard I've rented the old skating rink next door?"

"No. What for?"

"It's an idea I got whilst I was in New York," said Bacchus. "I'm having the hand bills printed now—'Bacchus' Continuous All-the-Year-Round Saturnalia. Cabaret and Musical Comedy Every Day and Every Hour of the Day at the Ground Floor Midnight Roof.' A man must do something to sell the nectar, you understand. And I've a fine programme, but it costs money. Orpheus, the Music Magician. Vulcan in the anvil chorus. Neptune and his forty Nereides in a great tank act. The Three Graces in living pictures. Terpsichore in the Hula-Hula. It will be a grand show. Hebe and Ganymede have promised to come as waiters, if Jupiter will let them off."

While Bacchus talked Apollo tried the nectar and soda again, but pushed it from him with disgust. It was vile stuff, not like the nectar Olympus formerly knew.

"Say, boss," he said ingratiatingly, "honest, I'm strapped. I'm down to my last dime. Let me have forty simoleons for a couple of days, won't you?"

"If I could"— said Bacchus.

"Look here!" said Apollo, turning to what seemed to be a pile of junk behind him on the floor. "I'll give you this German helmet. It would look fine over the cash register."

"Don't want it," he said, but as he peered over the bar his eyes brightened. "Is that the old harp in its case that I see?" he asked eagerly.

"That's the good old lyre," said Apollo fondly, picking up the case and unbuckling the straps.

"And has your hand lost its cunning?" asked Bacchus.

"Far from that," said Apollo.

"Listen!" whispered Bacchus eagerly. "Forty simoleons a week and the first week's pay in advance, if you'll play at the All-the-Year-Round Saturnalia, Mr. Apollo."

"It's a go, old grape-top!" he said, folding the lyre in the crook of his arm, and he touched one of the resonant strings. "What shall I play for you? How about Tchaikarefsky's Nocturne in F, Op. 26?"

Bacchus leaned his arm on the bar and closed his eyes. A smile of coming pleasure touched his lips, for Apollo was no mean lyrist.

"If it's all the same to you," he said, "I'd like to hear a real tune. Give us a bit of 'Oh! How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning,' Mr. Apollo, sir."

Tail End of the Earth's Glacial Period

DR. MARSDEN MANSON of San Francisco, an eminent authority on geology, points to the fact established by recent Antarctic explorations that the great ice cap covering the region of the South Pole is shrinking. From this he draws the conclusion that the gradual subsidence of the Age of Ice, of which the polar ice caps are the existing remnants, is still going on and that we live, so to speak, at the tail end of the glacial period. He expresses the conviction that the same succession of geological climates has prevailed in Antarctic as in other latitudes and says that the evidence collected in recent Antarctic explorations is corroborated by the comparatively recent uncovering of temperate land areas, and the progressive retreat of the snow line to higher elevations in temperate and tropical latitudes and toward the poles at sea level. He comes to the conclusion that the disappearance of the Ice Age is an active present process and must be accounted for by activities and energies now at work. He considers it as proved that the rates and lines of retreat are determined by solar energy.

particularly sought after by the second-hand men, who made up a good part of the "League of Nations," as the auctioneer termed the crowd in several of his sallies. These cases brought very good prices, and in every instance went to the dealers. A leather case with brass clasps, that looked like it might hold some sort of a musical instrument, was very much sought after and brought $4.50, after some spirited bidding. After the sale, when the buyer got possession, he carried the case out, and on opening it found a beveled-glass model of a burial casket with highly polished handles. It was some 15 inches in length and lined with white satin and plush. A saloon keeper standing by, promptly offered the owner $5 and carried away the casket. Asked why he wanted it, he said he intended to put a quart bottle of whisky inside and exhibit it in his show window, with a card calling attention to the first day of July. He figured that as an advertising device it would pay for itself many times over.

The sale continued some two hours and realized more than $1200, which was better than was expected at the beginning. Before the lots and separate pieces were put up the whole collection was placed on sale and the highest bid offered was $1050. If the sale in detail which followed had not exceeded this amount, the dealer who made that bid would have had the entire collection. The largest purchase recorded was a lot of 100 suit cases and contents, which brought more than $2 each, though they were made of imitation leather, paper or grass, and appeared very much the worse for wear. There were some 800 pieces in the entire collection, and in all cases the better looking articles were lotted separately, while the others were sold in batches varying from 5 to 20. The baggage section of the Railroad Administration was represented and kept a record of the purchases.

The "hardluck stories" which Kelly predicted at the outset came in volume after the parcels, trunks and other pieces were opened away from the premises. That the auctioneer knew whereof he was speaking was shown conclusively later in the day, when piles of junk were scattered in the alley by disgusted buyers, who left their property there, rather than pay the expressmen, who solicited the business of making deliveries. One little woman cried when she opened an old weather-beaten box for which she had paid $6, only to find it filled with the badly soiled garments of a gypsy fortune teller. The Romany outfit contained all the colors revealed by the spectrum—that is, they could be recognized through the layers of dirt.. The young woman's mother, who was with her, scolded her for throwing away her money, which only made matters worse. She had paid a boy to carry the trunk to the end of the alley, and the lad was moved to such an extent that he offered to return his fee. When this tender was refused he suggested that if the stuff was washed the lady could put on the outfit and make good telling fortunes. "Take it from me, lady, dat dat's straight. One of dem gypsies came up in our block one day wid all dat stuff on, and made a big killin'. Every girl up dere crossed her mitt wit' a half-dollar."

The kindly advice was not accepted by the young woman, who went with her mother, leaving the gypsy outfit and the box in the alleyway.

Another wooer of fickle fortune annexed a lot of iron castings and a two-gallon jug of sorghum, for which he paid $10. In lifting the case in an express wagon, the cork came out of the jug and the flowing sorghum ruined his clothes. He swore vehemently for awhile, and then gave the case and contents to the driver for a present. While this was progressing two women were examining some masculine garments only a few feet away and both were visibly excited. The clothing was old and badly soiled, and when one of the two remarked that it might contain germs or cooties, the other let go a pair of trousers and wiped her hands carefully with a handkerchief, which she took the pains to throw away. An old clothes man who was watching the scene stepped up and bought the lot for a dollar. There were many resales made in this way after the big event was at an end.

That there is still a broad field for the colporteurs was shown by an inspection of a lot of 20 suit cases annexed by a plunger who violated the rules and opened several on the premises before he was halted. When he finished his inspection he had three old Bibles and something like 25 whisky bottles. Some of these contained liquor and a few had never been uncorked. The purchaser remarked that there were no whisky bottles in the grips that had contained Bibles. His conclusion was that it required no Sherlock Holmes genius to prove that 13 of the original owners of the 20 valises he had acquired were wets off dry reservations. He was also satisfied with his bargain, as two of the 20 bags uncovered such rich trove as a pair of silk petticoats and some ostrich feathers. He figured that he had made a good day's wage out of his attendance.

The Government tax of 3 per cent was collected from the successful bidders when they settled for their purchases and, of course, before they could make any investigation of their property.

age of 7, fighting the "Swedes," who were both numerous and pugnacious in the first public school he attended. Later, when his parents moved to Boston, Charles went to high school there and joined the glee club.

His brother Arthur joined also; and the two tenor members of the family continued for some time in good-natured rivalry. Charles Hackett admits that his father and mother wished him to follow a medical career, but he rebelled. And Mr. and Mrs. Hackett acquiesced, for they wanted their children to follow the inclinations of their hearts.

At 24 Charles Hackett reached Florence, one of the Italian spots where American singers often go. Two years later he had done things; then came the chance—after appearances in La Scala, at Milan, and the Costanzi, at Rome—to journey to South America, and now back to his native land. That decided him; he had his aspirations considerably beyond the artistic horizon of his immediate vision.

The "Hope Diamond's" Trail of Havoc and Death

Many times the story has been written that Habib took the diamond with him, in November, 1909, on a trip aboard the steamship La Seyne through the Rhio Straits, and that the vessel foundered with all hands. It was supposed that Habib had placed the gem for safekeeping in the ship's safe in care of the purser. So a diver was sent, who descended 26 fathoms, explored the wreck and salvaged the safe. But when the safe was forced open the diamond was not there!

Later it appeared that the wily Habib did not sail on the La Seyne at all, giving out a report to that effect in order to give the slip to possible robbers. In fact, it is told, he turned up safely with the brilliant in Constantinople, and delivered it to the Sultan. The gem began its pranks at once. It was sent to one Abu Sabir, a jeweler, to be polished. While at work he had the misfortune accidentally to smash a valuable pearl, for which the Commander of the Faithful caused him to be grievously bastinadoed and flung him in a dungeon, where he would have died but for the Young Turks.

Possibly recognizing the Sultan as a brother in evil, the jewel contented itself with flinging him from his throne, but left him his life for a time. He has since died. He is supposed to have intrusted the jewel to Kulub Bey, who was hanged by a mob. Jenver Agha, one of the keepers of the Yildiz Kiosk, tried to steal the diamond and was put to death.

It is further related that when the Young Turks pounced down upon Abdul Hamid to depose him, one of the favorites of his harem, Salma Zubayba, happened to be wearing it at the moment, and tried to seize the auspicious moment to make off with the jewel, and it is added that Abdul shot her down with his own pistol.

Then there bobs up again the Persian, Selim Habib, this time in Paris, with the Hope diamond in his keeping. He declared he had paid $400,000 for it, but if he hoped to gain any such sum he was disappointed. It was sold at auction on Nov. 24, 1909, in the Salles de Ventes, and brought only $80,000. The purchaser was a Parisian jeweler, P. C. Cartier, and he in turn sold the jewel to Edward McLean for $180,000.

Five years later died his father, John R. McLean, who by will left his estate of $20,000,000 in trust, his son having control of an income of only $25,000 a year. Edward McLean at once brought suit to break the will, alleging that his father was of unsound mind when he executed it. The case was settled out of court, Edward McLean being recognized as the authoritative head of the two newspapers and being assured an income of between $700,000 and $1,000,000 a year.

Two years before McLean had been sued for $100,000 damages by the proprietor of a Washington hotel, who alleged that the young millionaire had invaded his place with noisy and disreputable parties, and had assaulted the plaintiff when he protested. Not very long afterwards McLean gained much notoriety by leading a bear into a hotel in Florida, regaling the animal with champagne and writing checks for all the girls he could persuade to dance with bruin. Last December testimony given before the Senate by Bruce Bielaski was to the effect that former Ambassador Bernstorff, in a dispatch, declared that John R. McLean had offered to sell or rent the Washington Post to the German Government. Edward McLean denounced the revelation as "another of Bernstorff's infamous lies."

And now those who contend that the Hope diamond is indeed a gem of misfortune point knowingly to the sudden death of little Vinson McLean, and ask whether it can be a mere coincidence. They inquire whether a record of 19 violent deaths, suffered by those who owned or handled this one jewel, is to be dismissed by a skeptical shrug of the shoulder. It may be answered that a jewel of such value is likely to provoke crimes of theft and murder. But in the list of deaths there is not a single murder for possession of the jewel, so far as its European record goes, and there are only three who tried to steal it and lost their lives. At any rate, the Hope diamond is not only one of the most beautiful but is without exception the most sinister brilliant in the world.

THE GIRL IN HIS HOUSE

how it happened. So they stood for a space, she grasping tensely the sleeve of his coat, he smoothing her hair without consciousness of the act.

"When?" she whispered presently.

"The first time I saw you beyond those curtains."

"It is like that. In my heart you were always there, mistily, until I saw you that afternoon at Betty's. I thought you loved the other woman—until I heard you laugh."

He titled her chin up and looked into her eyes. Then he kissed her—not as he had kissed any woman before. It was less the kiss of a lover than that of a devotee at a shrine. It was something holy; something that breathed abnegation. And what was that kiss to her? The first in all her recollection that any man had given her.

"I'm so happy, so crazily happy! If you hadn't loved me I'd have died. Always I've hungered for love, and always been denied. Your house and mine, forever and forever! God is good. I'm somebody now. I belong!"

Words! thought the man. What a futile thing words were sometimes! So he spoke with his lips and his arms. And all through this lover-hour, great as his love was, he sensed the shadow of the astounding tragedy.

"Oh!" she cried, suddenly breaking away from him.

"What is it?"

"Daddy!" She stooped for the letter and the photograph. Next she seized him by the arm and dragged him over to the lounge, pulling him down beside her. "Don't you see? He'll have to come home now. I'm going to be married!"

Once more she caught him by the sleeve, tightly and possessively. He bent his head until it touched hers, and together they watched the bright flames dance in and out the logs.

"Love!" he said, still filled with the warm wonder of it.

For ever and ever, like in the story books." And she pressed his hand against her cheek and held it there. "I belong!"

La-may Face Powder Does Not Contain Any White Lead

Now you can use a pure face powder that is guaranteed not to injure the most delicate baby skin. It will not cause enlarged pores, blackheads and irritations. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder (Poudre de Riz) to make it stick. White lead poisons the skin and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that encourages enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder pimples. The specialist who makes this improved powder uses a medicinal ingredient that doctors use to heal the skin. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and pimples. It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crows' feet and wrinkles. Because it is pure and because it stays on so well this La-may powder (French Poudre L'Ame) is now used by over a million American women. The large size is only fifty cents and the trial size is twenty-five cents. Remember, La-may is guaranteed absolutely pure. Five thousand dollars reward is offered any chemist who finds it contains any white lead or rice powder. Refuse substitutes. Your common sense will tell you that when you are offered a substitute it is sure to be a demonstrator trying to sell an inferior powder that pays a big commission. When you use this absolutely pure La-may and see how splendidly it beautifies your complexion, you will understand why it so quickly became the most popular beauty-powder sold in New York. Save this notice. La-may Rouge is also pure.

Buying "Pigs-in-a-Poke" Is Still a Popular Pastime

Eager purchasers with the speculative instinct acutely developed pay large prices for battered-up trunks and dilapidated grips at sale of unclaimed railroad baggage—How a year's accumulation at Union Station was auctioned off — Sad experiences of some of the wooers of fickle fortune who disregarded the auctioneer's warning

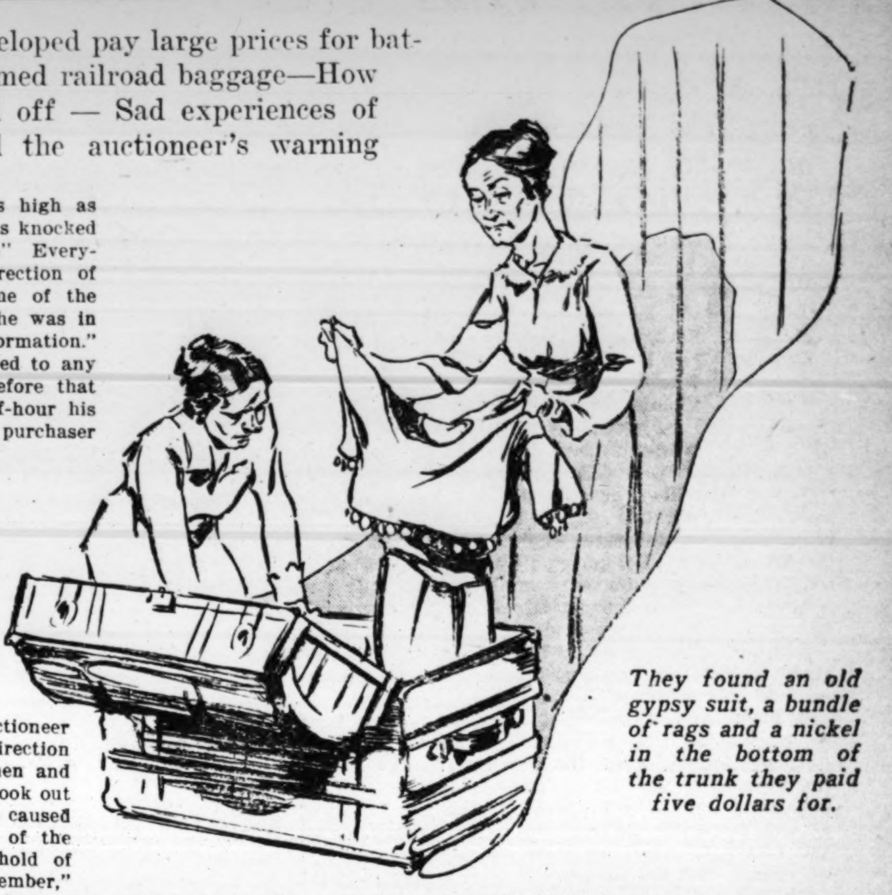
"WAR may change the geography of the world, upset traditions and customs of centuries and even permanently retire the mother-in-law joke, but it cannot alter that most venerable of all fundamentals that 'There is one born every minute!' "

This was the opening greeting of Edgar Kelly, the auctioneer, who was detailed to sell a year's accumulation of traveling bags, umbrellas, suit cases, trunks, coats, wraps and other property sent from the baggage and parcel rooms at Union Station by the United States Railroad Administration. It was a much larger collection than usual, due to the fact that a great many soldier boys, passing through the station, checked their packages and then either forgot to call or just permitted them to remain, rather than pay the storage charges. And what a collection it made, when it was ticketed and laid out in the salesroom of the A. A. Selkirk auction establishment at Eighteenth and Chouteau avenue, and what an odd-looking crowd assembled there, attracted by the chance of getting something of value for a very modest investment! Every race that has representation at the high court now sitting at Versailles was in the pushing, struggling mass that found its way into the wareroom, with the exception of the Chinese and Japanese. Among the 600 or more who were looking for "good things" there were many languages and dialects spoken, and when it came to the bidding, some of the prospective buyers could only express themselves with shakes of the head and gesticulations. But they had learned in some way that there was to be a sale under Government auspices, and they were there to see it through.

One of the spectators who took no chances on anything — except her bottle.

That those who spent their money there might not treasure any grievance against the Government or its agent, the auctioneer, there was a sign conspicuously posted telling one and all that these unclaimed trunks, bags, cases, boxes and what not, were being sold to defray storage charges and that nothing was guaranteed. That this warning be made more impressive, Auctioneer Kelly, who seemed to be in excellent form, addressed the assembled speculators as "fellow suckers." Then he launched into an oration, assuring every man and woman present that the purpose of the sale was to get rid of junk and incidentally separate the audience from enough money to pay the charges and the expenses of the sale. In a grave voice he told that every bidder unlucky enough to get a package would "be stung," and that if they had just average wisdom, they would follow the injunction of the railroad and "stop, look and listen."

That this warning fell on deaf ears was easily apparent, once the sale got under way. Everybody was in a mood to take a chance and bids came from all parts of the eager crowd. The first article sold was a sadly battered trunk that looked as though it had received some special personal attention from the chairman of the Grievance Committee of the Baggage Handlers' Union, just about the time he was getting ready to go to some official with a new line of demands. It was roped and looked as though it had passed through both fire and flood and had barely emerged from its elemental ill-usage; but despite this uninviting aspect, the first bid of $1 soon rose as high as $5, at which price it was knocked down to a "Mr. Hughes." Everybody looked in the direction of the purchaser and some of the women intimated that he was in possession of "inside information." But Hughes paid no heed to any of these comments. Before that sale had gone on a half-hour his name was called as the purchaser of not less than 50 lots and separate pieces. Then word was sent around that he was a rich man with a hobby, while others insisted that he was a scientific speculator who was trying to vindicate the law of averages.

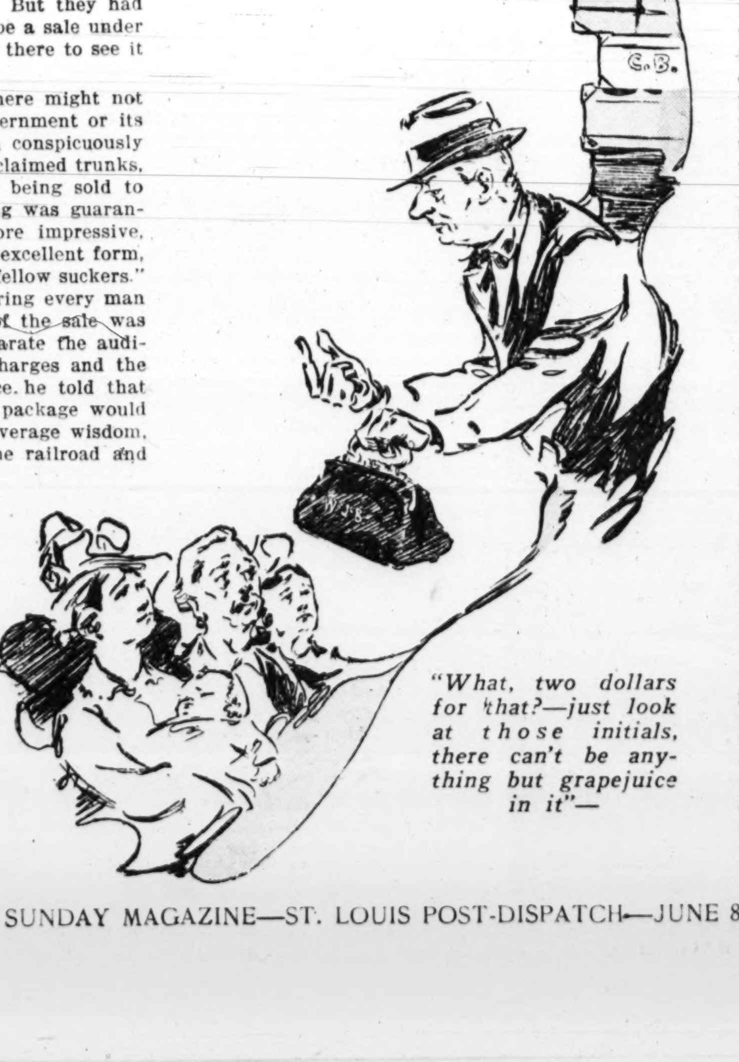


They found an old gypsy suit, a bundle of rags and a nickel in the bottom of the trunk they paid five dollars for.

As the crowd kept getting larger the auctioneer looked sharply in the direction of a group of young men and shouted a warning to "look out for pickpockets!" This caused the women and many of the men to take a tight hold of their valuables. "Remember," continued Kelly, "we have not given this privilege to anyone; any such business on these premises is unwarranted and entirely unauthorized. We reserve the right to do any stinging that is scheduled for this day and this sale, and will not tolerate any interference with our business. And remember, one and all, that there are to be no packages opened on the premises or even in this block. We don't intend to have any tears shed here, nor do we care to be assaulted with some of the bricks you will find in this baggage. Now, if the ladies will kindly remember that this is an auction and not a kaffeeklatsch we will get this agony over in a hurry. Now, whose going to give us a good one on that suitcase? It looks exactly like the one Rockefeller used to carry. It may be filled with Liberty Bonds and it may be bulging with prohibition literature; in either case you'll be getting a souvenir, anyhow."

The "Rockefeller" grip brought $2.25 and went to a woman who, on opening it later, found a quart bottle of a favorite brand of bourbon whisky, a bathrobe designed for a man and a suit of pajamas. She was one of the bargain hunters that figured that she had not been "stung," but she seemed at a loss to know what she was going to do with the whisky until she was offered $2.50 on the spot for the liquor. She was about to close the deal, when someone in the group told her she might be arrested for selling liquor without a license if she made the sale, and she left with her grip and all of its contents, still somewhat confused.

A black, well-battered Gladstone bag was held up by the assistant while the auctioneer descanted on what might be stored inside beyond the eye-reach of man. "I am not positive that this is the same one," he confided, "but it looks just like the bag that great man, William Jennings Bryan carried when he was here with his last paramount issue. Who knows but there might be a platform in there that would set the world aflame? The bulge in the back is easily accounted for. Someone may have slipped a raisin in his grape juice, which gave it enough ambition to kick the cork out with sufficient force to make the dent."



"What, two dollars for that?—just look at those initials, there can't be anything but grapejuice in it"—

The auctioneer was wrong altogether with this grip. It went for $3 and fell to the lot of a young man who took it up the alley and picked out seven empty whisky flasks, one at a time, all bearing labels that told of one-time respectable occupancy. The buyer was well pleased when he found a new pair of shoes that happened to fit him. An old clothes man who trailed him up the alley paid him a dollar for the rest of the contents.

At one time in the sale a couple of women became somewhat noisy and had to be mildly rebuked for presuming too far on the auctioneer's prerogative. They had come to the sale evidently with a prearranged cooperative plan, and saw it go on the rocks when one suggested that a large packing case might be filled with fine clothes. The other member of the firm in most audible tones said she would have nothing to do with such a proposition.

"And besides," she warned, "there might be a dead man in there."

"What if there is," rejoined the other, with some show of acridity, "that is about the only way you could get a man anyhow."

It was at this juncture that the auctioneer checked the argument with the assurance that the packing case in question was used by a snake charmer, and that the boaconstrictor on the inside had not had a feeding for a very long time. The two women departed without making any purchases.

A mandolin case which was supposed to contain a musical instrument was knocked down for $4, and a violincello brought $9. The cello was sticking out of its cover and the person who made this purchase seemed to know what he was getting. In nearly every instance the buyers had no way of getting any advance information. Where the trunks were badly damaged they were tied up with ropes, and only in a few cases did any of the contents show through the cracks. There were several tool chests in the collection, stored evidently by mechanics passing through the city, and these were

Model Farmstead in Miniature, Aid to Student Farmers

IT HAS been estimated by the Nebraska College of Agriculture that the average farmer, in doing his chores, walks one unnecessary mile a day, or 365 miles a year, all on account of improper arrangement of his farm buildings. What this means in loss of time, to say nothing of shoe leather, can be imagined.

To start the hundreds of embryo farmers at the college on the right road, the college has constructed, or rather the students of the college have built, a model farmstead in miniature, which represents a nearly ideal arrangement for a 160-acre farm in the prairie states. Built to a one-fourth scale in the workshops of the college, the model now stands on the campus, where it offers ocular evidence of the correct way to lay out buildings, fences and other details. The buildings comprising the model include a comfortable, attractive farmhouse, set on a concrete foundation and equipped with modern conveniences; an up-to-date dairy barn with a solid-wall concrete silo; a hay shed for alfalfa; a horse barn, a hoghouse, a tool shed and shop, a poultry house and a machine shed. The plan was worked out for one particular farm, and has been tried with great success on farms in several counties of Nebraska.

It is well known that factory managers save thousands of dollars each year by devising methods of saving labor, but heretofore little or no attention has been given to the arrangement of farm buildings so that the farm operations can be made efficient. Working on the theory that every farm is a factory, in a sense, the Nebraska college expects, through the medium of its model farmstead, to show the coming generation of farmers how to avoid many of the unnecessary handicaps under which their fathers labored.

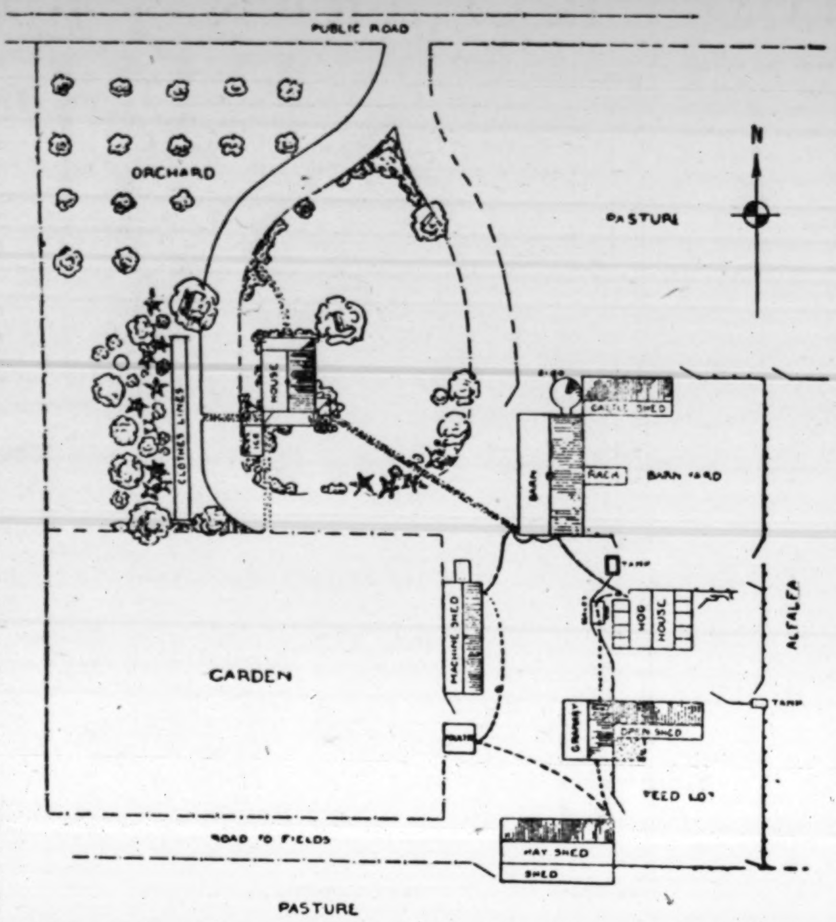

Diagram of 160-acre model farm, showing arrangement of buildings and roads to increase efficiency and lessen labor.

In disposing the buildings of the model farmstead so as to reduce to a minimum the number of steps the average farmer has to take each day in performing his ordinary duties, consideration was given to the question of just what these duties consist of. A plan was then worked out which, in the model farmstead, takes him from place to place as follows:

When starting out on his morning chores he goes from the house to the barn, where he tends the horses and colts, cows and calves, and, after separating the milk, feeds the calves. The skim milk that remains is then carried to the pigs at the farrowing pens, after which the farmer goes to the combined crib and granary to feed the fattening hogs and fat cattle. In returning he passes to the hay shed and feeds the stock cattle and then the poultry. Next he steps into the milk room at the barn, gets his cream, returns to the house and his chores are done. While doing all this he has walked only 750 feet, whereas on farms laid out in haphazard manner he might have walked three or four times as far. The path he has walked is shown by the dotted lines on the plan of the farmstead.

Again, suppose it is evening and that the farmer is coming through the lower gate by the hay shed. His course to the barn leads past nearly all of the buildings, and most of the chores can be done while the team he is driving is reaching the tank, drinking and going to the barn. When the horses and cows are attended to, his evening chores are completed.

Many other points were given consideration in planning the farmstead to make it practical and at the same time comfortable and pleasant. For instance, the barns and yards are located east of the house, so that unpleasant odors are carried away by the wind, which, in the territory for which it was designed, usually is south and southwest in summer, and north and northwest in winter. The house, moreover, is located on high, well-drained land, insuring a good view and preventing barnyard drainage from reaching it.

In locating the barn it was considered that the buildings situated in the sun but with breezes blowing through them in summer are cooler and more comfortable than those in the shade, but with no breezes. Hence the barn has a central alley running through it from north to south, and the building is cool even in very hot weather.

SELLING A CAR ::

By James J. Montague

SALESMEN are born. We were born, too, but we are not a salesman. Any doubt which might have remained in our mind about that has been removed effectually and forever.

We wanted to buy a new car. And when one wants to buy a new car the very first thing to do is to sell one's old one. Anybody who knows about cars will tell you that.

"You'll have no trouble at all," said the man next door, when we disclosed our purpose to him. "Used cars are selling like oil stock. Everybody wants 'em. Why, a dozen men I know have got more for their old cars than they paid for 'em. Boost in the prices makes the difference. Go to it, and you'll do great. But don't trade the boat in. You won't stand any chance with those up-state dealers."

Thus encouraged, we put our car on the market, which means that we told several likely people that we wanted to sell it. One of them was an elderly lady who lives in the next block. We knew she wanted a car because we overheard her say so on the trolley one day.

"My! Isn't it messy!" she said when we drove it around to her house the next morning. "I couldn't think of taking such a car, I'm very particular."

Now, we are particular, too, and our wife is still more particular. We hotly resented the old lady's imputation, but we remembered reading somewhere that the salesman must expect to be rebuffed, so we persisted.

"Of course, madame, it is not brand new," we said, "but it can be repainted very cheaply and the engine is a splendid six-cylinder"—

"Don't tell me anything about the engine," she broke in. "I wouldn't touch the greasy thing. No, I don't want it. Please take it away."

That appeared to be final. So we took it away.

For a week we praised our car to possible purchasers. But there were no takers. Not one of them would even come to see it. But one day we had a stroke of luck. A gaunt man with spectacles and a benevolent face overheard us making an effort in salesmanship on the 9:15 train.

"Got a car to sell?" he asked, smiling brightly. "Give me your address and I'll be around and look at her tonight, when I get back from the city."

Gladly we gave him the address, and began talking up the selling points of the car, for such, we remembered, is the language of the salesman.

But he stopped us. "Lemme look at her," he said. 'I'll know."

That night he came around. But his face had lost its benevolence. He seemed severe, not to say stern.

He walked around the machine three times, and scowled twice on each lap.

"Where you been running her?" he inquired, transferring the scowl to us. "Labrador?"

"Why, no," we said, "just around here."

"Who's been driving her—your wife or one of the kids?'

"We have."

"Does she still run?"

"Run? Of course she runs." We were fighting down a violent attack of irritation, but remembering assiduously the maxims of salesmanship.

He opened the hood and peered into the power plant.

"Gosh all hemlock!" he said, cryptically.

Then he took another tour outside, prodding the tires violently with the blade of a jack knife.

"Aren't you afraid you'll puncture them?" we asked anxiously.

"Wouldn't be if they were any good," he replied. "But they ain't. Rotten to the core!"

For a while he stood in thought, shaking his head slowly and from time to time observing "Gosh all hemlock!"

"Well," he said at last, "let's run her —that is, if she will run."

We got in the car, and he seated himself beside us.

The motor was cold and it took the self-starter some time to function. Meanwhile our customer sat in grim, disapproving silence.

Presently we got under way. "You must have stripped most of the gears in the transmission," he stated, as we threw the engine into second speed. "She grinds something terrible."

We went into high. "Yep," he said. "That's what's the matter. I can always tell by the sound."

For the next few minutes, to our delight, the motor ran beautifully. Then it missed on one cylinder, then on two.

"You couldn't expect anything else," said the old gentleman. "The bores of the cylinders are worn out. As soon as the oil gets warm they lose all compression. By the way, what do you want for her?"

"Why, we thought $600 would be about"——

"You did?"

"Why, yes; used cars are commanding high prices, aren't they?"

"Used cars, yes; but not junk piles, like this boat."

"Now see here," we protested, "this car is running splendidly right now. You'll have to admit that."

"Oh, all of 'em will run if you dope 'em with ether."

"We haven't doped this car with ether."

"Humph!"

"Do you think we'd lie about it?"

"Why not? They all do."

We couldn't just think of the approved salesmanic retort to this, so we ran along in silence for a while.

Presently the customer said:

"Let me run her?"

"Did you ever run this kind of car?"

"Sure; and every other kind. I'll get anything out of her that's in her."

He did, I verily believe, including parts of the motor. He tried to climb hills on high that a $10,000 car couldn't have taken on first. He jammed on the brakes at 30 miles an hour and slid along the asphalt till the tires smoked and we left a wake like a couple of motor boats. He shifted gears so fast that we—novice as we are—could hear the teeth tinkle as they were sheared off. Then, when all that had been in her was out of her, we limped back to the garage.

He got briskly out. "I'll tell you what I'll do," he said, "and it's mighty generous of me. The gears are stripped, the brake linings are loose, at least three of the springs are cracked, the cylinders are practically gone, the carbureter leaks, the radiator isn't good for another hundred miles, and the shoes are tissue paper. But I'll give you $50 for her, and not charge you a cent for taking her away."

We took the $50. Later we discovered that the old gentleman, who bought and sold used cars for a living, has disposed of ours for $700. As we said in the beginning, we are not a salesman.

Charles Hackett---"a Patti in Pantaloons"

Unique agility of voice distinguishes American tenor who has joined forces of Metropolitan Opera House, and at whose debut there nickname was coined—Comes from Boston, and made his way to eminence in native land via Naples and Buenos Aires—Brother Arthur, also a tenor, well-known in St. Louis :: :: :: :: :: :: ::

Charles Hackett, new American tenor at Metropolitan Opera House.

THE Americanization of the personnel of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, which achieved unprecedented progress last season, and which will be continued next winter, is an interesting and illuminating phenomenon in music. A throng of singers of American birth and often of native training has been added to the roster; others will make their debuts during the coming season.

The Metropolitan, considered the foremost opera house in the world, is situated in an American city, is maintained by American capital and caters to an American public. Yet during all its history most of its singers have been imported mainly from Italy and Germany. The war drove nearly all the German vocalists into retirement, thus affording places for many Americans. They made such good use of their opportunity that the experiment is regarded as successful, and still others are to be added.

It must be confessed that American women have for years stood high as singers, and that an American, Geraldine Farrar, is and for some time has been leading soprano at the Metropolitan—leading, that is, in popularity and box office "draft." American men had a much more difficult time in obtaining recogniton at this temple of opera, but their status may be said to be assured with the successes of such artists as Henri Scott, Thomas Chalmers, Paul Althouse, Reinald Werrenrath and—last, but one of the most conspicuous—Charles Hackett, the Bostonian tenor, whose brother, Arthur, is so favorably known in St. Louis as an oratorio and concert singer.

Hackett made his debut at the Metropolitan last January, with such eclat that he has been re-engaged for the forthcoming season. His first appearance was in the "Barber of Seville." There was much interest in the newcomer, for many newspaper articles touching the career of Carlo Hackett (he has become Charles since his New York operatic appearances) had aroused the concern of persons who keep apace in such matters.

The tenor reached his first aria, a swiftly moving piece with many scales and rapid groupings of notes—an aria such, in fact, as a coloratura soprano might sing. The audience listened casually at first, then permitted its curiosity to become intrigued by the agility of that American tenor voice. The last phrase was flung off, and the young tenor stepped back a pace or so. There came the momentary pause of an audience impressed; and then outbursting applause. For half a minute, perhaps, the performance was checked. Then a man standing back of the main floor rail dropped a phrase.

"A Patti in pantaloons!" he exclaimed, and nodded his head. The speaker was a man well known to New York musicians—Dr. Luigi Roversi, a friend of the Italian poet Carduci and an habitue of the Metropolitan. In those four words he classified the vocal tendencies of Charles Hackett.

For months New York had been awaiting Hackett's arrival. From South America, where he had been singing, came tales of his prowess. He had gained popularity there, a popularity not so easily won by natives of this Northern Continent, who may be excellent enough singers for all who have not the Latin temperament and tastes.

So New York settled itself on that particular Thursday evening last January and waited. After the first act their questionings had been answered. Throughout the remainder of the performance there were affirmatory nods, briefly whispered words which Hackett need not have been ashamed to hear—a general acquiescence, as it were, in the singer and his style.

In the newspapers of the next day were reportorial accounts: Hackett had debuted well; by his unusual singing he had caused the performance for a few moments to stand still; he was a welcome addition for appearances in those roles which, for some time past, had been none too well sung in the institution pre-eminent in the world of song.

The wiseacres were pleased, and a new personality had arisen to be talked about.

But nowhere, it appears, was astonishment quite so pronounced as amongst the Metropolitan principal singers themselves. Not since the best days of Alessandro Bonci had a tenor appeared with the graceful, classic style of Charles Hackett, nor with a voice agile enough and responsive enough to do justice to racing airs.

Scales, "turns," grace notes—every conceivable twist of the voice which must be ever on the move—he tossed off with the seeming nonchalance of a man blowing tobacco smoke from his mouth.

And there was the skill, too, in spinning the tone out to gossamer ends . . . into the faintest messa di voce whisperings which finally drifted beyond human capacity to hear.

The critics railed, of course. At his subsequent appearances Hackett was charged with using a "white" voice; reprimanded for denying to his tones the round color which he might have put there.

But they recognized his art; his easy, smooth style and the sense of musicianship which always prevailed. There was satisfaction, too, for the eye when this young Bostonian stepped upon the stage; for he has height, a well molded figure and shapely legs.

All this helped. Another thing helped, as well—that was the histrionic finish with which Hackett invested his roles.

There followed, then, for the newcomer endeavors in the opera "Traviata" and "Rigoletto," and another appearance in "Il Barbiere di Siviglia." Each time he emerged without turning a hair—smooth, graceful singing in a voice that surprised rather than moved.

There was a time—only six years ago, too—when Charles Hackett was comparatively unknown. From Boston he went to New York, hoping to secure a church choir position. He hadn't long to wait, it seemed; even then his voice had the soaring quality, the facile "top" which it is grateful to hear. So St. Thomas Church Music Committee beckoned him their way.

He might have remained in the choir loft longer had he wished; in all probability he would have done so had not the operatic bee begun to buzz.

So he packed his belongings and sailed away toward Italy, where many singers are made.

Those in America who knew about the young tenor did not hear of him very soon. Even after he had accomplished his small debut beginnings in unimportant Italian opera houses the musical world heard little of Carlo Hackett.

But one day he stepped far enough and high enough from the ranks of the vocally ambitious to attract attention. From the "other side" reports of his progress began to drift over here.

Then, all at once, his name passed from lip to lip.

Amongst opera agents Carlo Hackett was a personality well known. He had, they said, intelligence and a good voice. And the voice continued to grow and to become more and more flexible until it almost matched the flexibility of a coloratura soprano.

In the larger Italian opera houses to which he began to be called, young Hackett found acceptance. They liked his singing ways and his Italian was so pure that newspapers commented upon that rather important fact.

One day he received an invitation to go to South America, to the celebrated Colon Theater in Buenos Aires.

He made the trip via his own country, and partly, he admits, because he wasn't altogether satisfied with the way in which his voice was going.

"I had sung the light, florid music so continuously, had practiced it so assiduously," said Hackett, "that it thinned out altogether too much. I'll admit I was a bit disturbed; so much so that I wanted to get back to Boston and to my former teacher—the only one I ever knew—who understood what he was about.

"I remember the morning I reached his studio," said the tenor, and he smiled as though the reminiscence made the meeting very, very clear. "I explained my difficulty," Hackett went on, "and my teacher replied: 'Let's see how the voice sounds.'

"I hadn't sung a note on the way over," he continued, "somehow there had been no occasion. I'd just loafed, taken the rest I sorely needed. Really, I had no idea how it felt to give my voice in the old way. I laughed and remarked to my former teacher that things would probably sound stiff.

"And then," said the tenor stopping in his pacing, "what do you suppose happened?"

"You sang better than ever."

"You hit it," he answered. "My rest had done the trick. I had been overdoing the coloratura thing; got the tone whitened too much. Keeping quiet had fixed me up.

"'You probably won't have any more trouble,' vouchsafed my maestro, 'so long as you are careful in what you do.'

"But I do not confine myself exclusively to the florid roles. I have power enough for more vigorous music and I like to sing it; the only consideration I have is for my career. I've just started, you know; I have been before the public only a few years. I dare say I have traveled rather fast, for recognition seems to have come almost at once. In South America, where the people are most particular, I have a large following. I shall do my utmost to accomplish a similar degree of approval among the music patrons of my own country.

"But I purpose to conserve my voice. I do not approve spending one's vocal capital; it is better, I believe, for the singer to grow naturally into the heavier roles than to seek them at the beginning of the career, before the voice may become accustomed to the heavier demands—gradually, as it should."

He paused, then, and smiled. He was a frank, upstanding American as he stood there; nearly six feet, with a pair of football shoulders and the build of a man who can successfully "buck the line."

For he has bucked it, ever since he was a youngster in his Worcester (Mass.) home. He began, at the

How Fares Miss Marie Moentmann?

Three years ago her misfortune was the talk of St. Louis—Money paid by company as compensation for the loss of her hands and arms put in Liberty Bonds—How she has grown into an attractive girl who has learned to do many things in spite of great handicap :: :: ::

"IF THE accident which deprived me of my hands and parts of my arms has resulted in throwing all the safety devices possible around the dangerous machinery in factories which employ boys and girls, and has brought about the passage of just compensation laws for the care of those who are maimed for life in such employments, then I am happy that my misfortune has accomplished some benefit for others. It is good to realize that the sacrifice was not in vain."

These unselfish words were spoken by Miss Marie Moentmann of 8410 Michigan avenue, whose injury while at work in a bagging factory created a wave of sympathy in this city nearly four years ago. Miss Moentmann is now in her eighteenth year, and is quite reconciled to her artificial hands and arms. She has no complaints to register; she has grown philosophical; and having strong religious predilections, finds much consolation in church attendance.

She is a member of two choirs in the Carondelet Evangelical Church, at Michigan and Koeln avenues, of which the Rev. Edward L. Bleibtreau is pastor, and in addition to the regular Sunday services, attends functions on Monday and Friday evenings. She has a pleasant soprano voice and sings regularly in the girls' choir as well as in the mixed chorus. Though she has often been urged, she steadily declines to attempt any solos. She has two gardens at her home, and finds healthful recreation among her flowers in the front yard, and the vegetables in the rear.

Marie Moentmann was but 14 years of age, and her heavy, reddish-brown hair hung in a plait down her back, when the necessities of the household forced upon her young shoulders the lot of the breadwinner. Her quest for employment led her to a large factory where bags and bagging material are supplied. It was not particularly hard work, but that it was no employment for one of her years was demonstrated by the subsequent history of her case. She had to feed to the rollers the materials that go into the bags of commerce, and her pay was $5.90, which she carried to her mother at the end of each week.

She was tall for her age, and though not of robust seemed well able to hold her own with the other girls who, like herself, were detached from the education and discipline of the classroom altogether too soon.

She worked contentedly until Nov. 5, 1915, and then, in an unguarded moment, those dexterous hands got into the moving rollers. The machinery was almost immediately stopped, but it was too late to save her arms. There was a double amputation as soon as she was carried to the city hospital. The right arm was taken off four inches below the shoulder and the left midway between the wrist and elbow. It was several days before the sadly mutilated child was able to understand what had happened. She was then two months past her fifteenth birthday.

Newspaper accounts of her plight created widespread interest. Money was donated for her immediate wants. Then there were benefit entertainments, one of these being a fashionable "500 party" at the Planters Hotel, given by prominent society people. She was the object of much loving attention during her stay at the city hospital and afterwards at St. John's, where she went for a secondary operation.

Following this ordeal she experienced a long siege of pneumonia, which left her in a weakened condition for many weeks. Then came her lawsuit against the bagging company and the compromise effected by her parents. The amount of the settlement was $21,000, of which $5000 was awarded for legal and other expenses, while $16,000 was specifically set apart in the custody of her mother, to be retained until Marie reached her eighteenth anniversary. Miss Moentmann became of age last September, and when the settlement was made she promptly invested her means in Liberty Bonds of the third issue. Through this income, it is hoped that she will be guarded against want, as she has not been a wage earner since her accident.

Four years have passed since Miss Moentmann was so conspicuous in the public eye, but she has by no means been forgotten. Inquiries occur very frequently, and these cannot be attributed wholly to curious motives. Persons whose sympathies were deeply aroused at the time of the accident ask concerning the present status of the victim and her progress in the art of remaking her life.

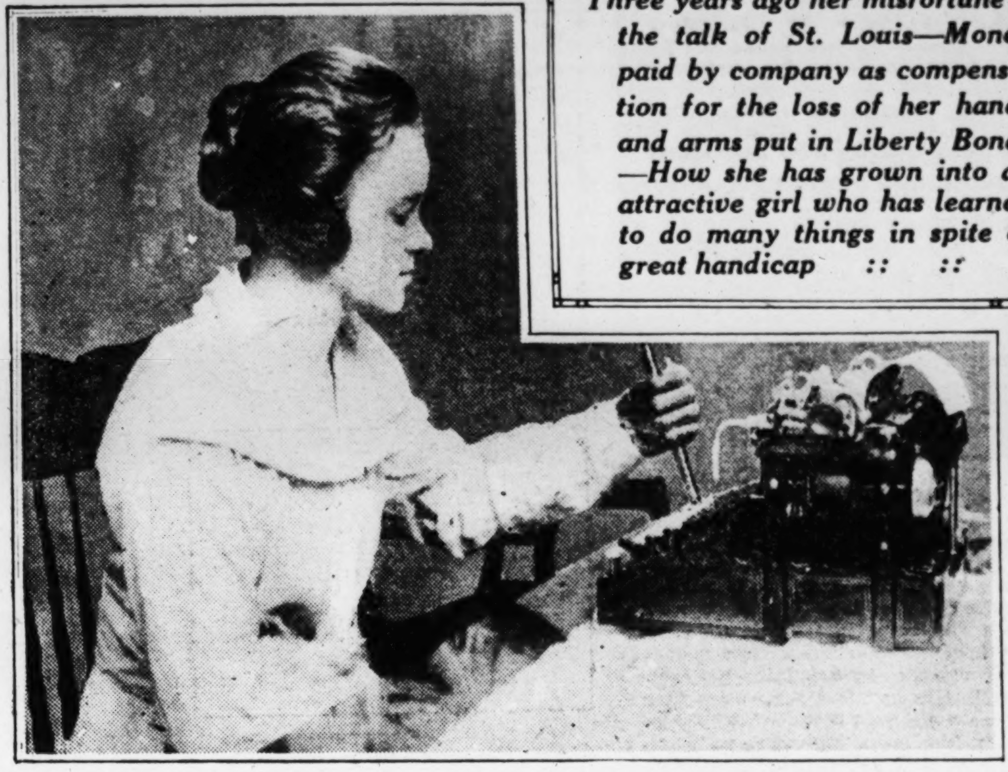
It was to gather some impressions on this score that a Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine writer recently visited Miss Moentmann's home. There she was found in the garden with her younger sister, about 14 years old, who was delightedly employing her hands at her sister's behest in pulling weeds. Marie greeted her caller pleasantly, and all the while kept her glove-encased hands in the large side pockets of her skirt. She was looking forward to an automobile outing in the afternoon and expressed the hope that some low-hanging clouds would disperse and give the sunshine a chance, so that her program would not have to be abandoned.

"I really do not know what to say," was her reply when she was asked concerning her progress since she was provided with substitute hands and arms of papier-mache. These appliances are about as perfect as inventive ingenuity could make them, but since they must be supported by straps and other fastenings about the back and shoulders, they cannot be considered comfortable, particularly in warm weather. But Miss Moentmann, who has grown into a tall, well-formed girl, said that years of wear have accustomed her to the harness. One unacquainted with the girl's history might be in her presence a long while without noticing her disability.

"You see," she continued, "I have become so accustomed to these hands and arms that I just go ahead and do the best I can. At first it was hard, very hard, to help myself much, but I have made much progress since. There are many things I can do now without asking for help, but there are others in which I still find myself calling for aid. I have little trouble dressing, but it is different when it comes to fixing my hair. Maybe I am a little more particular now than I was when I wore it plaited down my back, but I guess I am like all other girls in that respect. Mother attends to my hair and she does it very nicely.

"I always find plenty to keep me occcupied, as I am particularly fond of reading. I keep myself well supplied with interesting books. I guess there are not many patrons of the Public Library who make any better use of their cards than I do. I always have a supply on hand, and then I keep informed as to the newer ones. I go uptown quite often, sometimes alone, but generally with mother or my sister.

"I have gotten bravely over the timidity I used to feel. I have had several long railroad trips, but I was always accompanied by my mother; and on these journeyings I got along very nicely. I can manage an umbrella, after a fashion, in rainy weather, but I rarely carry one, preferring to wear a mackintosh. At the table I get along fine, once I get my fork adjusted in my hand. The player piano, which depends upon the exercise of the feet rather than the hands, is my most popular musical instrument, and I keep up with the good rolls. And there is my typewriter with its double keyboard, which does not require so much shifting; I just get along fine with that, when I get my own patent puncher attached to the thumb of my left hand."



With the aid of an appliance which is attached by means of a ring to the thumb of her left hand, Miss Moentmann is able to operate her typewriter satisfactorily.

The attachment used by Miss Moentmann would enable her to make a speed of from 3000 to 4000 words a day, if she cared to maintain such a pace. As she uses the typewriter merely for her own correspondence and pleasure, she has little occasion to extend herself. The "puncher," as she terms it, is a piece of wood shaped round, about three times the thickness of a lead pencil, with a hard-rubber tip on the end, which strikes the keys of the machine. At the top is a brass ring, securely fastened, which she slips over her artificial thumb. She can put this on herself, and by using her lips and teeth can take care of her sheets of paper. The prehensile uses of boths lips and teeth are very frequently employed by Miss Moentmann during the day. She always wears gloves, and they are neatly buttoned at all times. In the winter the coverings are of kid, while in the summer she uses silk.

"Gloves," she remarked, "might be considered a worry, if I allowed myself to get upset over anything. I use about 15 pairs a year, and keeping them clean and nice is a task. In winter I buy about three pairs of kids, and when it becomes warm I fall back on gray-colored silk. Using the left hand so much more than the right places the severer strain on that glove. Before I was hurt I was right-handed, but now I guess I am a 'lefty.' You see, the doctors left me a much larger part of my left arm than they did of the right, and as I get the benefit of more muscular power by reason of having that elbow, I quite naturally make more use of it. At the typewriter I just get along fine. I have never done any copying work for pay, but I would not be afraid to try it, if my customers were not in too much of a hurry for their finished work. If it were a speed contest I would be beaten before the start."

Miss Moentmann, at the period of life that is so romantic for most girls, has young men friends among her church and other associates, and highly appreciates their friendship. Her disability is not permitted to deprive her of any of the social diversions that are privileged to other girls in the 18-year class. She knows how to dance, but she does not indulge in this pastime. "I really don't care to dance," she says, "but understand that I am not condemning it for others. I like to see young people enjoy themselves, and dancing is a very nice way to have a good time, but I just don't care for it myself.

"There are so many other things one can do to help pass time pleasantly. I never worry over such matters anyhow, because it does no good. I can go out with a party of friends and have just as much enjoyment as any of the others; at least, I can feel that way without trying very hard."

During the war, while all her girl friends were knitting sweaters and other comforts for the soldiers, she often felt her limitations keenly "I wanted to do my bit, too," she said, "but you know that knitting is a task for girls who are all hands and fingers. As they say in football, I had to stay on the side lines. I have only one brother, and as he is married, with a wife and two little ones to look after, he could not go. I often wished I had a brother who could go. I did the next best thing when I bought Liberty Bonds. Thank heaven, it's over now. I hope the boys who come back disabled will be properly cared for, as they will need help and lots of encouragement."

Miss Moentmann said she would always remember with deep gratitude the many expressions of sympathy sent to her when she was in the hospitals, and that she would be glad to have these friends know that she was well, happy and working out her destiny, with her mind and eye only for the brighter things of life.

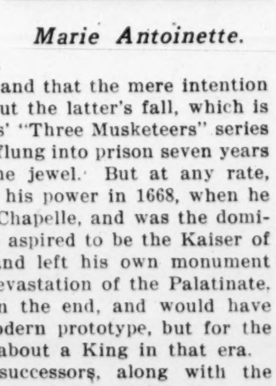
dashed down upon him. He was thrown under the car, but was able to get to his feet unassisted and walk home. He seemed unhurt save for a cut on the head. But later he fell unconscious, and died a few hours afterwards. It may be imagined that at the moment of the accident the diamond, in the darkness of its vault, blazed up for an instant in a flare of triumphant malevolence. Pitted against it had been all the safeguards which great wealth could devise, but the jewel had won.

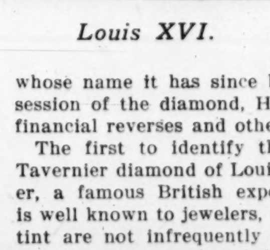
The ill-omened forebodings which were expressed when McLean bought the Hope diamond were now considered fulfilled. The jewel had scored another conspicuous victim—not this time a King or a Queen or a Sultan, but one of the wealthiest boys in America. Inevitably there was recalled with shudders the mass of legends which have accumulated about this most sinister of gems. Some of the incidents alleged may be fabulous; some are of historical authenticity; but it is worth while to relate them all as an instance of the literature that may grow up about a famous jewel.

In the seventeenth century there lived a Frenchman named Jean Baptiste Tavernier, who from his early youth was fired with wanderlust. After traveling all over Europe he penetrated into the Orient and became a wealthy merchant, trading in costly jewels and finding his chief customers among the great Princes of the East. While in India he came into the possession of the finest blue diamond that has ever been discovered. The story usually accepted is that it was stolen from a Hindu temple, and that its acquisition was stained with blood.

Tavernier, returning to France in 1668, sold the unique gem to Louis XIV for a million francs and a barony. It weighed in the rough 112 1-2 carats; its condition at that time is represented in the drawing accompanying this article, which is a copy from an old French engraving. After its purchase by the Grand Monarch, it was cut, an operation which reduced its weight to 67 1-8 carats. It figured in a great historic scene on Feb. 19, 1715, when the Persian Ambassador appeared before Louis. The King, notwithstanding his age and infirmities, exerted himself to appear to the best advantage. He was dressed in a black suit embroidered with gold and beset with diamonds, said to have been worth $60,000,000. Suspended from a ribbon about his neck he wore Tavernier's diamond.



Marie Antoinette.



Louis XVI.

The legend has it that Louis intended to present the diamond to his famous Superintendent of Finance, Vicomte Fouquet, and that the mere intention was sufficient to bring about the latter's fall, which is one of the themes of Dumas' "Three Musketeers" series of novels. But Fouquet was flung into prison seven years before the King bought the jewel. But at any rate, Louis was at the height of his power in 1668, when he signed the peace of Aix-la-Chapelle, and was the dominant figure in Europe. He aspired to be the Kaiser of the seventeenth century, and left his own monument of "frightfulness" in the devastation of the Palatinate. He was totally defeated in the end, and would have lost his crown like his modern prototype, but for the divinity that still hedged about a King in that era.

He bequeathed to his successors, along with the Tavernier diamond, a legacy of ruin and bankruptcy which were later to produce the French Revolution. It is related that his mistress, Mme. de Montespan, could not resist the temptation to wear the blue diamond, and was promptly punished by being supplanted in the King's affections by Mme. de Maintenon. As for Tavernier, he eventually lost the favor of Louis because of his religion, he being a Huguenot, and was imprisoned in the Bastile. He escaped and made his way to Moscow, where, at the age of 84, while out hunting, he is said to have suffered the horrible fate of being torn to pieces by wild dogs. "One!" the jewel might have counted, like Monte Cristo, as it began the list of its European victims.

Louis XV's reign was one of disaster, and the legend of the Hope diamond is careful to point out that his best-beloved mistress, Mme. Du Barry, perished by the guillotine during the French Revolution. The realm and the diamond descended to Louis XVI, during whose reign, as is well known, the Revolution exploded. Louis died by the knife, as did his Queen, Marie Antoinette. It is related that Marie Antoinette often wore the blue diamond, and extended the privilege at times to her favorite, the Princess de Lamballe. History records that the latter was torn to pieces by a Paris mob, and that her head was borne through the streets on a pike.

The stone, together with the rest of the French regalia, was seized in August, 1729, and deposited in the Garde-Meuble. It was stolen in September of the same year, and disappeared for nearly 40 years. But in the meantime, according to the story, it was still performing its mission of blighting lives and fortunes.

The diamond, relates the legend, after being stolen came into the hands of William Fals, an Amsterdam jeweler, who cut it up into three stones. The largest of these—now known as the Hope diamond—weighed 44 1-4 carats. It is narrated that Hendrik, son of William Fals, stole the diamond from his father, plunging the latter into bankruptcy and causing his premature death, while Hendrik later killed himself.

By some means the stone then fell into the hands of one Francis Beaulieu, the legend proceeds, who, unable to sell it, died of starvation. Then, at last the indubitable fact appears that in 1830 the jewel came into the possession of Daniel Eliason, a London jeweler, who sold it for $65,000 to Henry Thomas Hope, an English banker and member of Parliament, by whose name it has since been known. While in possession of the diamond, Hope is said to have suffered financial reverses and other misfortunes.

The first to identify the Hope diamond with the Tavernier diamond of Louis XIV was Edwin W. Streeter, a famous British expert on precious stones. As is well known to jewelers, diamonds with a faint bluish tint are not infrequently found, but they are usually ranked as stones of an inferior quality. But a genuine blue diamond—with a dark color verging on indigo, an intensity which differs from the soft, mild hue of the sapphire, and, above all, the exclusive irradiance technically described as the "fire" of a diamond—is a gem which, for its intrinsic beauty no less than for its extreme rarity, almost challenges the foremost place among precious stones.

The Tavernier brilliant was such a blue diamond, and when a smaller diamond, of the same hue, came into Hope's possession, Streeter wondered whether it might not be a part of the larger stone. He figured out from the diagram of the diamond preserved at Paris that the Tavernier stone might have been cut up into three brilliants, of which the Hope diamond would be the largest.

His theory received startling confirmation in later years. At Geneva, in the sale of the Duke of Brunswick's jewels, there came to light a brilliant of seven carats, known as the "Blue Drop Diamond." Experts, who examined it in juxtaposition with the Hope diamond, decided that they were both originally one stone. But there was a remnant still missing. It was found by Streeter himself in Paris and purchased for $1500. It was a blue diamond of one carat, and is known as the "Pirie" diamond. Thus all the parts of the original Tavernier stone have at last been accounted for.

Hope presented the diamond to his daughter on her marriage to the sixth Duke of Newcastle in 1861, and it passed from her, the story goes, into the hands of her son, Lord Henry Francis Pelham-Clinton Hope. This scion of an eminent house severely shocked English society in 1894 by marrying May Yohe, an American musical comedy star, and the scandal came to a culmination some six years later when, without the formality of a divorce, she eloped with Capt. Putnam Bradlee Strong, son of one of New York's wealthy former Mayors. The actress always maintained that had it not been for the Hope diamond she would never have left her husband. She dreamed of it the night before the elopement, she said, and it cast a spell upon her under which she was helpless. "Lord Francis was an angel and Capt. Strong was a devil," she said later. A recent report states that May Yohe, who might have been a Duchess when Lord Francis succeeded to his father's title, was employed as a janitress in a Pacific coast city.

Lord Francis, according to the story, made haste after his wife's escapade to rid himself of the ominous jewel, which made its first voyage across the Atlantic and came for a time into the hands of Joseph Frankel, a New York jeweler. Its evil reputation had preceded it, and no one would buy the brilliant. Next it is found in the possession of Jacques Colet of Paris, who bought it from Frankel. Colet is reported to have gone mad and killed himself.

First, however, the diamond is reputed to have passed into the possession of Prince Ivan Kanitowski, who was in love with Mlle. Ladue, an actress. He loaned the jewel to her one night to wear, it is related, and she was promptly shot to death on the stage by a rival of the Prince, who himself, shortly afterwards, was assassinated by anarchists, the narrative proceeds.

But Lord Francis has had no more domestic or financial troubles since he washed his hands of the diamond. Having obtained a divorce, he married a second time happily, and has several children.

Next we hear of the diamond as being in the possession of a Greek trader named Simon Moncharides, who sold it to Selim Habib, a Persian, popularly credited with having acted as the agent of the Sultan Abdul Hamid, generally known as "Abdul the Damned." It is related that Moncharides, riding along near the edge of a cliff one day, with his wife and two children, met with an accident which flung them all to death in the abyss.

CREATOR OF PREHISTORIC FILM GOT HIS INSPIRATION IN A DREAM

Major Herbert M. Dawley, sculptor, sees in his subconscious state the fauna and flora shown in "The Ghost of Slumber Mountain" — Developed the giant figures for the camera on his Jersey farm — Author withholds details of the process

Two-horned Dinosaurus meets the Brontosaurus and prepares for battle. Both mastodons were well-equipped for sanguinary conflict.

IT IS the rare privilege indeed of very few persons to capitalize a dream and from the inspiration gotten in their subconscious state, produce something both startling in artistic effect and at the same time remunerative from the standpoint of the box office, and in this limited circle is Maj. Herbert M. Dawley of New Jersey, who created "The Ghost of Slumber Mountain," a moving picture in one reel that has excited very deep interest. The basis of the picture is a series of scenes showing historical fauna and flora of the prehistoric period. The scenes, it has now developed, were glimpsed in a dream and as the dreamer retained his impressions and being an artist and a sculptor besides, he put into shape figures representing the mastodons and other mammoth creations of these far remote days.

Against these fantistic landscapes the monsters of the early periods of the world's development gambol, live and fight. It is certainly astonishing to follow the evolutions of the huge brontosaurus, cropping herbage and slowly dragging his unwieldy body across a lake. Or to watch him as he confronts the highly armored dinosaurus who has dared to invade the seclusion of his lair. More exciting still is the fight between two great dinosauri, who attempt to impale one another on terrible horns.

Just how Maj. Dawley created his monsters so that they act and move so naturally is a secret. He first made a careful study of the subject, and then built models of such structural strength as to permit free movement before the camera. Here his training as a sculptor helped him. These reproductions show in detail muscles, joints and natural movements. Thus the prehistoric bird eating from the tree tops is shown exactly as described in the textbooks. He runs and jumps and chases a snake with lifelike movements of neck, body and legs. Whether the carcasses contain fine motors, or by what agency their gyrations are accomplished, Maj. Dawley refuses to say. He admits long periods of work on his Jersey farm, where the models were put together and the pictures made.

It should be said that the scientific details of the pictures are correct. The films have been twice shown privately at the American Museum of Natural History and the paleontologists, as the scientists who are expert on the subject of ancient life are called, have not only approved Maj. Dawley's work, but have offered to assist him to animate other series of prehistoric episodes.

The Brontosaurus who used to grow to a length of 60 feet taking a stroll through prehistoric glade.

Apart from whatever scenic and scientific interest "The Ghost of Slumber Mountain" may have, it is undoubtedly of real educational value. It is hard for old as well as young minds to mentally resurrect in their original hides and horns the living aspects of these huge beasts whose portentous skeletons take up so much room in the prehistoric department of museums.

Incidentally, Maj. Dawley admits that the idea of animating a dinosaur occurred to him during an interval of insomnia on his farm, where he had retired for rest after a period of overwork.

Born in Chillicothe, O., this creative director rose to a worthy position in Buffalo, N. Y., as a sculptor. From there he passed to the important task of directing the art department of an extensively advertised motor company, and thence to international fame as the originator, author and director of that remarkable picture, "The Ghost of Slumber Mountain."

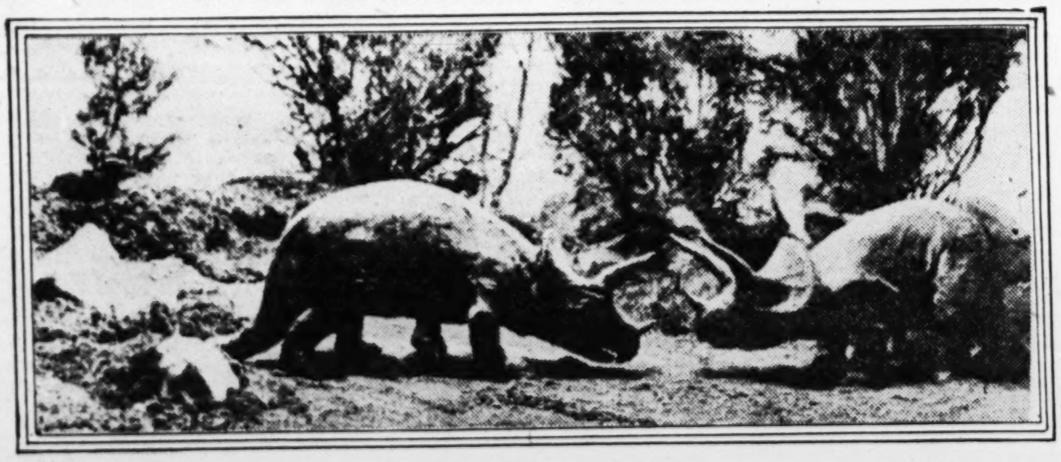
As an attraction, this prehistoric visualization ranks high in popularity, as it has a fascination for both children and adults. Boys and girls who have been told in their school work of the giant animal and plant formation in the days preceding the advent of man, find much in Maj. Dawley's production to engage their interest, and the younger children who love to see animal pictures at any time are thrilled by these monsters of the earliest ages. The questions that naturally flow from these little patrons give their parents an opportunity to impart some useful information, which will help them when their studies carry them back that far. Hence as an attraction, the Dawley film seems destined for a long and successful run, even though it did find its creation in a nightmare that carried the dreamer back through eons of time.

Some there will be, of course, who will ask what caused Maj. Dawley, who is now back from his military service, to have such a bewildering dream, and may even hint at Welch rarebits, or some other provocative of such weird subconscious impressions, but assurance is given that it is not due to any such cause; neither was it occasioned by any special study or reading on the subject.

It was perhaps because of Maj. Dawley's experience and skill in the visual reproduction of objects through the mediums of drawing, painting and plaster modeling, that he met with such success in bringing to life simulation prehistoric animals, as he does in this startling one-reel motion picture.

Maj. Dawley relates when he was troubled with insomnia he "saw" these things and he thought it would be wonderful if the prehistoric animals could be projected on the screen. After months of study and toil "The Ghost of Slumber Mountain" was an accomplished fact.

It is hoped that Maj. Dawley will explain his process of making his mastodons appear so lifelike.



These saurians are not exchanging salutations by any manner of means. They are preparing to tear up some of the virgin forest.

IN THE MIDNIGHT HOURS

By COLONEL HENRY CURTIES

THE rattling of the blind awoke me, and cool air blew in upon me. I sat up in bed. Slowly, as a dream action, a hand came round the Venetian blind, found the cord and cautiously pulled it; the blind rose and disclosed to me the face of my brother Herbert, white and haggard against the sheen of the summer night.

"What on earth are you doing here?"

The words came involuntarily; the strained look on his face relaxed as I spoke.

"Let me come in," he answered, "and I will tell you."

He swung his leg over the window sill and came into the room; at the same time I jumped out of bed, slipped into my dressing gown and flicked on the electric light. He looked worse under it than he had done in the dim light, his eyes sunken and furtive, and an ominous twitching of his weak mouth.

"Now," I said, sitting on the bed, "tell me all about it."

He gripped at my hand.

"Look here, Jim," he said, with a shake in his voice, "I'm in the most awful trouble."

I think I smiled not pleasantly.

"I'm sorry to say, Herbert," I rejoined, "there is nothing very novel about that remark; I and the rest of your family have heard it a good many times before. In the first place, how did you get up here to my window?"

He waved the question aside as of no importance.

"Up the rainwater pipe to the balcony. There was nothing difficult about it." He pointed to his dress trousers, the knees of which showed signs of his climb. Though he had a weak will, he was muscular enough.

"Well!"

"You said just now, Jim," he proceeded, "that I had often come to you with troubles, but there's never been anything like this before. I'm afraid I've murdered someone."

I gripped the bed I sat on, and all the blood in my body seemed to go to my heart. This, then, was the appalling tragedy I had dreaded and dreamed nightmares about; this was the summit of the poor, weak-willed creature's wickedness.

I controlled myself with an effort. "Go on," I said.

"I've been staying with Bolder, down at Asbury the last week," he proceeded—we had seen nothing of him for over a month—"and last night we came up to town to dine and do a theater."

I had a vivid idea of what that week with Bolder had been—cabarets, bridge and money lenders.

He had let go of my hand, and now sat twining his own, one over the other, in a way he had when deeply moved.

"We changed our minds about the theater," he went on, "after we'd dined at Churchill's, and went to the Empire instead. Then we went on to the Coreopsis."

"What is the Coreopsis?"

"Well, it's a night club," he explained apologetically, "a place where they foxtrot, and so on, and where you can get a supper. There I met Dora."

"Who?"

"Dora Blake." He passed his hand over his white face, and there was a catch in his voice. "That's her real name, you know. I've been a bit soft on her for some time now," he continued vaguely; "over head and ears, you know, and all that."

I said nothing and waited. The episode was again not new.

"Last night she looked better than ever, and she's got a way of looking at you when she dances that makes your head swim."

"Who is she?" I asked.

"She's got a small part in a revue at the Palace, but she's quite proper and lives with her mother."

He saw a look of impatience on my face and changed the subject.

"She let me see her home, and when we came away in a taxi together I was a bit gone, and she'd not treated me particularly well at the club, so I had it out with her."

"Come to the point!" I cried sharply, my patience giving out.

"That's just what I'm doing," he continued. "She laughed at me, and told me to get out of the taxi, if I was not satisfied, and then I did a foolish thing. I pulled out this."

He put his hand in the pocket of the loose light overcoat he wore and produced a small nickel-plated revolver.

"Good heaven!" I cried, "what do you carry that thing about with you for?"

"Don't think I carried it to do her any harm with," he exclaimed frantically, "because I didn't. It was for protection, and"——

"And what?"

"Well, if you will have it, perhaps for myself."

I pictured what a state of mind drink, weakness and depravity had brought him to.

"I pulled out the revolver, and I swore that there and then, if she wouldn't promise to marry me, I'd shoot myself."

"And did you mean it?"

The trembling hand went over his thin, dissipated face again.

"Well, you see," he explained, "I'd been indulging pretty freely."

"What took place then?"

"At first she laughed, and then she began to think I was in earnest, and tried to get hold of the revolver. Then it happened."

He stopped; I think speech had left him for a moment. He gave a great gulp, and went on again.

"Jim," he said, "I'd as much intention of doing her any harm as you or one of the girls, but as we struggled together, and she's strong for a woman, the cursed thing went off! She gave a shriek, and I wonder the chauffeur didn't hear her, but he didn't, and then I saw some blood on the white silk scarf round her throat."

He buried his face in his trembling hands, and a great sob shook him. I went over and took him by the shoulder.

"If I am to be of any use to you tonight," I said, "you must pull yourself together and tell me the whole of the details."

He stared up at me, the agony of his mind looking out of his haggard eyes.

"Details, of course," he said, in an aggrieved tone; "you lawyers must have details, every word of it; the thought of it all is enough for me."

"Unless you tell me everything, now and quickly, the fact of my being a lawyer will avail you little."

"And if I do, you'll help me, Jim, won't you?"

"You may take it that I don't want to see my only brother, Herbert Danvers, up for murder. Where's the woman?"

"I'm coming to that," he said jerkily. "I told you that I saw a spot of blood on the scarf round her throat; then the spot got bigger, and she collapsed in a heap in the corner, groaned once or twice and lay quite still."

It was pretty plain that he had killed the girl.

"What did you do then?" I asked.

"I didn't know what to do. I sat and wrung my hands, and my mind was quite clear in a moment. It all seemed so sudden and awful. Then in a moment I thought of something. It was pretty certain that if I went on to Bronxville where Dora lived with her mother, I should be arrested for murder. That would do her no good, and the best thing I could do was to hide her."

He grasped my knee, shaking with excitement.

"Something seemed to put into my mind that block of half-finished flats near Van Cortland Park. You know one-half is finished and let, and the man who was building the other half went broke."

I nodded impatiently.

"I called the driver and told him to pull up at the entrance of the finished flats, and when we stopped sent him up to the third floor with a fictitious message. The man went without the least suspicion. It was past 2, and there was not a soul about. I lifted Dora out of the taxi and ran with her across a board into the shell of the unfinished flats; there I laid her down behind a wall while I went to send the taxi away.

"I pulled the front curtain down before the man came back, and stood with my head in at the window pretending to be talking till the driver was in his seat again. Then I gave him a dollar and told him to drive the lady to her home."

"You must be mad," I muttered.

He took no notice of me, but went on.

"I could see at once that she was dead when I got back to where she was from the way she was lying huddled in a heap as I had left her, and then I thought as hard as I could how I could hide her. There was a little wooden office in the half-finished buildings, and I went over and tried the door, but it was fastened with a padlock. I managed to wrench out one of the staples with a bit of iron which was lying about, and then I saw the place was empty. I determined to hide Dora's body in there and lock the door again."

"Mad!" I repeated.

"I lifted her in and laid her in the corner behind the door, out of sight of the window, and there I left her with the door locked again."

He sat there hopelessly, twisting his fingers one over the other, and his eyes fixed on me as if for a suggestion.

"Why did you come to me?" I asked angrily. "Why must I be dragged into this?"

He shrugged his shoulders in his old helpless way.

"I thought you could help me. There was no one else to go to."

The half-formed appeal in his voice touched me. God help him! I knew him to be friendless and helpless; and I was his only brother and 10 years older.

"Does it strike you that this girl may not be dead after all, and that locking her up in that wooden shed shuts out the last chance of saving her? There is only one thing to be done now," I cried, starting up; "we must go there at once, take her out and get her, dead or alive, to the nearest hospital. It is your only hope, and you must stand the reckoning."

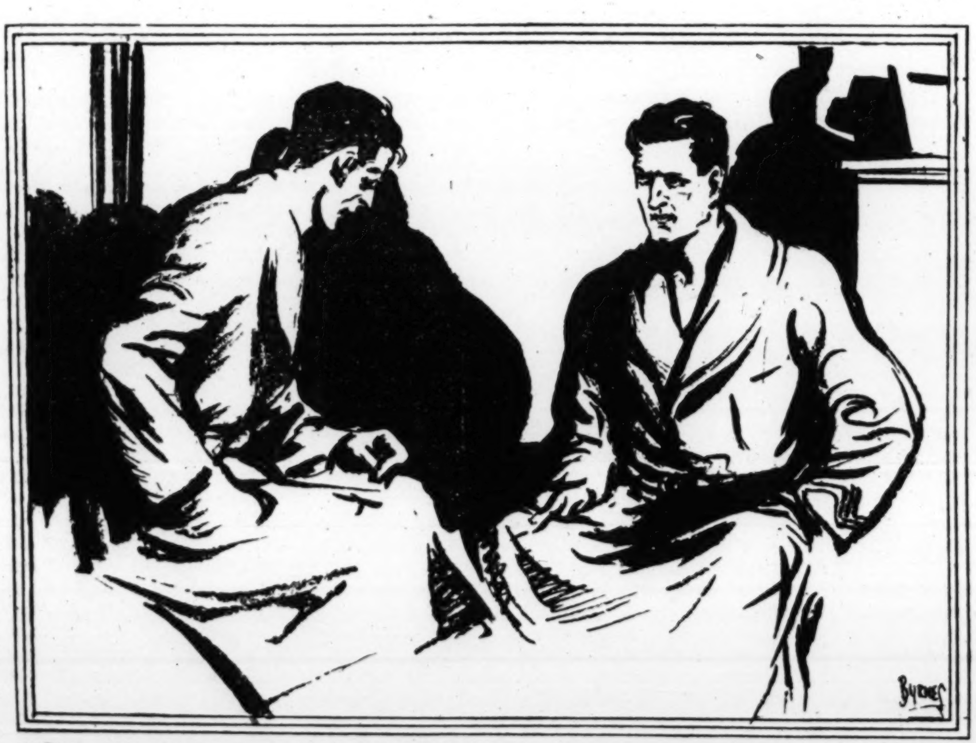
Like all weak-willed men, he grasped at this new suggestion with enthusiasm.

"Yes, you've got it," he cried. "I was a beastly fool to leave her there. It was rotten of me altogether."

I dressed hastily, and he helped me as well as his nerves would permit, going down on his knees and shakily lacing my shoes. In a few minutes I was ready. Then came the question of getting out without waking my mother, a light sleeper; but the carpets were thick, and presently we stood in the deserted uptown street. It was then about 3 o'clock. The soft glow, which hardly seems to leave the sky on a summer's night, gave us light.

I did not even look for a taxi; there was none if I had, and I wanted to get to the scene of my brother's foolish act without a witness. My mind was full of bitterness, but, I am thankful to say, I held my tongue.

We had scarcely started when



"We changed our minds about the theater and went to the Empire instead."

The Girl in His House (Continued)

In the little village cemetery he was made cognizant of another phase of Bordman's character—a well-kept grave, with a simple slab of marble above it:

DORIS BORDMAN
Aged Twenty-four Beloved.

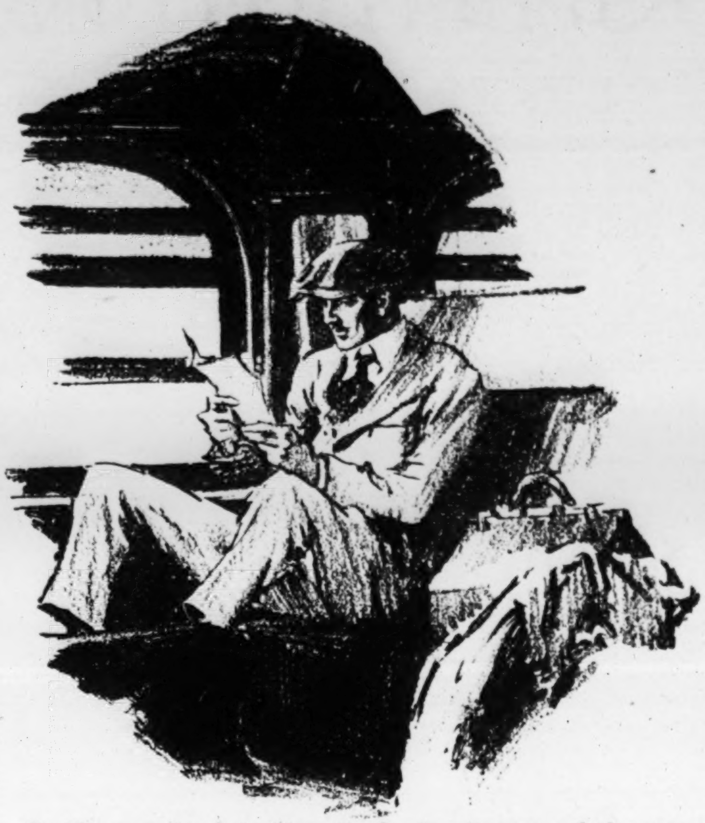
The mother of the woman he loved—Doris' mother!

Armitage could not get away from the impression that he was walking and moving in a dream. Nothing that he did was real. Doris' father—a drab little man, who wanted to be handsome and strong! A dozen times Armitage, during the solemn moment when the clods fell upon the pine box—Armitage wanted to cry out for someone to wake him. He could not stand this dream any longer! The irony of it all, and the tremendous burden he must carry henceforth! For Doris must never know. She must go through life weaving the most wonderful romances around a personage that had existed only in her real father's imagination. It was all horribly cruel. He would never be able to approach her on the old footing. He knew that from now on he would have to watch his words carefully, guard his thoughts. A casual word, a careless inflection, and the whole veil might be rended. Doris, tender and lovely!



On the way back to New York, Armitage read the confession through again and again.

On the way back to New York Armitage proceeded to destroy the papers, one by one. Bit by bit he cast them forth from the car window. He read the confession through again and again, and was about to rip it in two when he noticed for the first time that something had been pinned to the back. It was Doris' last letter to her father.

"Darling Daddy: This is to tell a great secret. You remember once you wrote me if I ever loved a man to let you know at once who and what he was. So I am keeping that promise. I love! It seems so wonderful that I can't just believe it. And who do you suppose? The young man whose house you bought! Isn't it just marvelous? He hasn't told me he loves me, but I think he does. It's the way he looks at me sometimes, when he thinks I'm not watching. He is good and kind and handsome. To me he is like some Prince out of a fairy tale. Is it wrong to love the way I do, daddy? I don't feel any shame in confessing it to you. No, no! It is glorious! Only I think he's a little afraid of me at times. Please, please, come to me, daddy! I want you. I hunger all the time for you. You mustn't think the way you do. Only remember that your Doris loves you, loves you!"

Armitage felt himself torn between the profound tragedy of it and the blinding glory of revelation. That his eye had seen this letter was plain sacrilege. What to do with it? He could not keep it. He could not tear it up and toss it to the wind—it would be like tearing his heart out. And yet it was his clear duty to destroy anything and everything that might lead to the truth. But he could not destroy this letter, he just could not.

The train was drawing into the Grand Central when he found a solution, the true one. He would put the letter and the confession in one of his lockboxes at the bank. Some future day, when he and Doris were going down the golden twilight of middle age, he would tell her. It would be impossible to carry such a secret to the grave. Twenty years hence, if he lived, he would tell her. She would understand then. She would forgive. Youth would have been hers in all its glory. He would tell her then—when the painful recollections of this hour were no more.

Having determined on this course, Armitage discovered he was still young. As he stepped out of the Grand Central into the crisp air and fading sunshine of a winter day, it seemed to him that he had miraculously dropped the pall behind.

The butler smiled pleasantly as he took Armitage's hat and coat.

"There is a fire in the study, sir. Miss Athelstone will be down in a moment."

Armitage went into the study and approached the fire, spreading out his hands toward the heat, for it was now sharp weather outside. It was odd, but he never entered this room without the feeling that he was in the middle of some fantistic dream. He saw the photograph on the mantel. It fascinated him, and by and by he took it down and turned it over. Bits of an old newspaper adhered to the back. The photographer's name was gone. The adoration in the girl's eyes whenever she gazed at this sublime mockery! The full depression of the day rolled back over his heart. He wanted to lay his head on his arms and weep.

"God help me!" he said, aloud.

"Do you need His help, then?"

"Don't we always need Him?" he answered. "I was thinking out loud."

He held out his hand rather awkwardly, and as she put hers into it he bent and reverently kissed the hand. Save in light-hearted mockery, he had never kissed a woman's hand before. Perhaps he kissed it because he was in mental terror lest he throw his arms around her and smother her lips. When he raised his head the flurry of passion was gone.

On her part she had taken a deep, quick breath and closed her eyes, that she might not see his head so close.

Rather an embarrassing pause followed this demonstration. They were both strangely stirred, not so much by the meeting as by preoccupation.

"And so you have returned?" she said.

"Had to"—with a lame attempt at lightness. How he loved her!

"You went away in a hurry."

"I'm an odd duffer. I do a lot of strange things that nobody else would think of doing. I suppose I haven't got all the way back into my civilization shell."

She took something from the mantel. She held the object out toward him. The expression on her face was puzzling.

"What's this?" he asked.

"It's a glove. Your name is written inside in ink. You left it on the floor of the storeroom."

Thunderstruck, Armitage took the glove and sat down.

"Why?" She covered her eyes for a moment as if to shut out some dread picture. "I . . . might have killed you! . . . Haven't I told you—haven't I tried to impress upon you that anything you wanted was yours for the simple asking?"

He sat there dumb. The glove hypnotized him.

"Whatever was in that safe was yours. All you had to do was to tell me. Why didn't you?"

He wet his lips, but could not find the words he needed.

"There is some dreadful mystery here. I have felt it all along. You would not have acted thus otherwise. Won't you please tell me?"

"I'd rather not."

"Then there is a mystery?"—quickly.

He twisted and pulled at the glove. Fool! He saw now that he had blundered hopelessly. Had he come to her frankly about the wall safe she would never have known, and now he must tell her, if only in self-defense.

"Yes, there is a mystery, but it really doesn't concern you. That is why I acted as I did. I said nothing because I did not want you to worry. I was waiting against the time when your father came back." Her father!

"Does Betty know?"

"Yes."

"Tell me."

"Must I?"

"I shall know no rest until you do. This must be cleared up."

"Well, this is the story. My agent was a dishonest man. When I went away I left him with full powers of attorney. He took all my ready cash, converted the stocks and bonds, and sold this house to you. He took that money also. Legally, before any court in the land, this house and all that's in it are yours."

"But morally?"

"Why bother about that? It was all due to my carelessness. There were mortgages in that wall safe, together with my mother's jewels. You're such a strange, unusual girl, I wasn't sure but you'd run away if I told you. That's all there is to the mystery. He took only half. I am still comfortably situated."

"That wizened little old man who bobbed like a cork on water! And I'm really—morally, if not legally—an interloper! All along I sensed something out of the way. Was it you behind those curtains that first night?"

"Yes. But I didn't know then what had happened."

"I must cable daddy at once."

"No." There was sweat on his forehead, but it was cold. "I couldn't come back here to live now. I couldn't."

"Why not?"

"Well, I'd always be seeing you in these rooms. In my mind you have become an integral part of the house. It is morally as well as legally yours now. Your father's purchase was made in good faith. You cannot give it back to me now if you wished."

"Everything is in my name. You are like I am; we lie awkwardly and badly. But if I lied it was because I was terribly proud and unhappy. My father! . . . Could you love a shadow man? . . . I have never seen my father. All I have is the photograph and his letters. I have never seen him. Here is the reason." She produced a letter which she held out to him. "All my life I've been living on promises. I have waited and waited . . . all in vain. He never comes. He never comes. He loves me. Oh, I could never doubt that. He loves me, but he never comes." There was a break in her voice, her eyes brimmed and overflowed. Read it."

He had gone through so much the past 24 hours that it seemed to Armitage that he had become dehumanized, that he was only a thinking marionette. He took the letter and opened it. For a time there was no sense to the written words under his gaze. He had to summon all his forces to throw off the appalling numbness before the words adjusted themselves into meaning forms.

"PROGRESO, Yucatan, March, 1909.—My Darling: Your last letter was like a hand squeezing my heart. So you must know the truth! I have always known that this hour must come. A thousand times I have started toward you, only to be dragged back by cowardly—yes, your father, for all his preaching, is a coward, I fear. When I received that photograph of you, I knew that it would be long years before I would have the courage to look upon you. The dread fear that has always been in my heart was realized. You were the reincarnation of your mother. If I looked upon your living face it would kill me. Your mother is ever with me. I am a strange man, a pariah, a wanderer on the face of the earth, homeless and unhappy. It has come to the pass where I dare not look into fires. I am always seeing you and your mother. Your mother died when you were born. But her soul always walks beside me. Am I cruel and selfish? God alone knows. I repeat, a thousand times the father love has burned furiously in my heart, and I have hastened toward you, only to turn back. I wonder if in all this world there is another man so utterly miserable and accursed? But God always bless you and guard you and make you happy some day as you deserve. YOUR FATHER."

Armitage heard Doris move and looked up. She was standing by the fire, gazing down into it. The photograph on the mantel was missing. From her attitude he judged that she was holding it against her heart.

Men rarely weep, at least rarely from tenderness. The tear ducts which lead down into the sentimentality in a man's heart seem to dry up after childhood. But as Armitage stared at the letter again the lines with their odd but familiar little curlicues and shaded capitals became grotesquely blurred. He recalled a line in another letter written by this hand. "You were to me a cipher drawn on a blackboard, something visible through the agency of chalk, but representing—nothing." He had almost forgotten one thing—that cable to Progreso. He would send it on the way home. This time tomorrow night Doris would learn that her father was dead. The mockery of it!

He stood up, resolutely and masterfully.

"Doris!"

She turned, still clasping the photograph to her heart. There was a brief tableau. What she saw in his face was only a reflection of what he saw in hers.

"Doris, will you marry me?"

"Is it love?"—in a low, wondering whisper.

"Ay, all I am and all I have!"

The photograph slipped to the floor and the letter fluttered down beside it. What followed was one of those indescribably beautiful moments which God permits to fall to the lot of man and woman but once. They were in each other's arms without comprehending

"I ran with her across a board into the shell of the unfinished flats."

I saw that something was wrong in the direction we were taking; there was an ominous red glow in the sky, several people passed us at a run, and a fire engine turned into the road before us.

I stopped a man who was passing and asked him where the fire was.

"Somewhere in that direction, I guess," he answered vaguely, waving his hand in the direction we were going.

I began to have misgivings, and I shuddered as if a cold blast had passed over me that hot summer's night. I do not think the same thought had come to my brother, who plodded along at my side, with his head down and the collar of his coat turned up about his ears.

When we came to the turning which leads to Van Cortlandt Park, any doubt I might have had was ended and I broke into a run.

"It's that block of unfinished flats over there," a man shouted as he dashed past, and then I knew the worst.

My brother, ghastly pale, was hardly able to keep up with me as I ran.

"Jim, it's awful," he kept gasping; "it's awful."

Then I said something I was sorry for, but the words leapt to my lips.

"Awful!" I repeated. "Supposing she is not dead. What then?"

Herbert stopped and cried aloud, so that I thought the people would have noticed him.

"Don't!" he cried. "For God's sake don't say that!" Then he seized my coat and dragged me on.

"Come on," he almost screamed "we may be in time yet to get her."

But any hope in that direction was speedily extinguished when we came in full sight of the burning buildings.

Although we were among the first hundred to arrive, already a cordon of police, who seemed to have sprung from everywhere, were drawn across the street.

Without a moment's hesitation Herbert dashed at this line of police, and was at once caught and swung back.

He fought and kicked, and at one moment I thought he would have got through, but two or three policemen got hold of him. Still he struggled and cried.

"Let me go, let me go! I tell you a girl is in there!"

"There ain't no girls in there," a policeman responded; "it's just a block of unfinished houses with nobody living in 'em."

I think they would have arrested him had I not interfered and explained that he was my brother. Then I got him away into the fast-thickening crowd and calmed him a little.

The unfinished shells of the block of flats, with their bare wooden floors, burned like a bonfire, and it was pretty clear to me, although I knew little of such things, that the firemen could do nothing but let it burn out.

From the big doorway of the inhabited flats trickled a stream of men, women and children, in little more than their night attire. I got a grip of my brother, for by the looks of him I saw that he was near fainting, and whispered a few words in his ear.

"Where is it?"

He nodded his head towards a corner of the burning building, and there I saw that the plank he had told me of leading from the path into the buildings was, now, with that incongruity which is sometimes present in such scenes, untouched by the fire.

"And the shed."

"Straight behind it."

I took my brother's arm and moved away; beyond the plank and all around it was one seething sheet of flame. I turned sick, and was commiserated by a friendly milkman, who led us into a side street, where already a small cafe had opened its doors.

"Seems to have done you up, ain't it, mister?" he kindly asked. "You and your friend looks as white as a sheet."

He was even more surprised when I ordered two glasses of brandy and my brother and I drank it off without water.

Then, there being a convenient taxi standing outside, I thrust my brother into it, and drove off.

I gripped him by the throat. "Did you set that shed alight?"

"Before God, no?"

At least the evidence of his crime was destroyed.

* * * * * * * *

It was nearly 1:30 when I woke the next day, after a sleep of nightmare, and it was the banging of the luncheon gong which roused me. On the couch, with half my bedclothes over him, lay my brother as he had fallen asleep moaning. That moaning seemed to punctuate what little sleep I had.

After a bath I sent for Mallard, our old butler, and explained to him that Mr. Herbert was ill, and a little off his head, and that he would have to look after him, and if necessary send for a doctor.

The incident did not alarm old Mallard in the slightest; he was used to Herbert. I had a more difficult task with my mother and the girls, who were anxious to know the details of my brother's latest escapade. Even my poor mother's sad face did not stifle an overwhelming desire which consumed me.

I felt I must go back to the scene of the fire. I wanted to see the end of it.

Luncheon finished I stated my intention of going downtown, and I ran upstairs before I started, and finding my brother awake, warned him to keep silent on the events of the early morning; then, without losing another moment, I turned my face towards the unfinished block of flats near Van Cortlandt Park. Walking was far too slow for me, so I took the first taxi and borrowed the driver's daily paper, for I could not trust myself to read the newspapers at home.

No, there was a fragmentary account of the fire, but not a word about a body being found.

The scene of the fire did not tell me much more; a sleepy fireman was sitting in the sun reading a newspaper; there were the usual knots of loafers staring at the smoking ruins, and that was all. I tried to sound the fireman in charge.

"Anything been found?" I asked as casually as I could.

The man did not take my inquiry kindly.

"What should be found except brickbats?" he rejoined.

"No bones?"

"What bones?"

That was all I got.

I still felt strangely restless, and as I strolled away I remembered that the dead girl had lived in Bronxville, and something moved me to stop the first taxicab I met and drive there.

Her home I found in a solid-looking row of houses turned into flats, and "Mrs. Gordon Blake" was on a card in one of the letter boxes.

There was an elevator and I ascended in it to the third floor. There I rang the bell of Mrs. Blake's flat. It was presently opened by a neat-looking and entirely correctly dressed maid.

"Is Miss Dora Blake at home?" I asked, and felt myself a hypocrite for doing it.

"Yes, sir; will you step inside?"

The girl's words astounded me.

"Are you sure Miss Dora Blake is in?" I asked.

She was a girl with blue eyes and she opened them wide.

"Yes, sir, certainly." Then she added, after reflection: "Why shouldn't she be home, sir?"

I troubled her with no further queries, but walked in, and was shown into a cheery little drawing room. I gave my name as Brownlow.

"Then there entered to me a tall, elegant girl, with her throat strapped up with a little piece of lint, but otherwise looking in perfect health.

She broke into a very natural laugh and held out her hand.

"How do you do, Mr. Danvers?" she asked. "I expected you, and if I had not, I should have known you by your likeness to Bertie."

"You expected me?" I asked in a dazed way. She motioned me to a seat.

"Yes," she proceeded, in a very businesslike way. "You see, I think Bertie has been going it a little too much lately, don't you?"

I agreed with her.

"That incident in the cab last night was the limit, and I thought it about time he had a lesson. He might have killed me, or himself. When the wretched thing went off the shot just grazed my neck. I knew I wasn't much hurt, but I thought I would give Bertie a lesson."

"Then you were not"—— I asked in a dazed fashion. But, oh! the relief of it!

She did not deign to answer me, but handed me her cigarette case.

"I pretended to be dead, and I let him carry me into those deserted buildings, but I almost gave the show away when he nearly dropped me."

"How did you get out of the shed?" I asked.

"Through the window; it was only latched."

"And then you came home?"

"Yes, then I came home, but I fancy the match I lit my cigarette with must have set fire to the building."

"I should say it was very probable," I acquiesced.

"No one was hurt," she proceeded coolly, "and I have no doubt it was insured, and the man was glad to get rid of it."

I offered no comment on this assertion.

"But what are you going to do with Bert?" she asked sharply.

I shrugged my shoulders.

"Well, I propose this," she continued. "He asked me to marry him, and I have a sister married to a rancher in Wyoming who will give us a share in the ranch if we can raise $3000. What do you say? I'll take care of Bert."

I thought it the very best proposition I had ever heard in the whole course of my life.

- Tribute to the Flag by Army Morale Officer - in 4-Minute Talk to Men About to be Discharged

The following is a "four-minute talk" delivered by a morale officer at Columbus Barracks, just before retreat, to men about to be discharged, and herewith published as a matter of general interest.

MEN: You have been gathered here today, in the presence of your comrades, to pay your last formal tribute to the flag before your final separation from the service.

This is the flag for which you have sacrificed so much. This is the flag which has been glorified and sanctified by your sacrifices and the blood of your fallen comrades "over there." Behold your flag, the apotheosis of a just and glorious victory!

As you return to civil life, remember the ideals of liberty, of good government, of law and order, for all of which this flag stands and ever will stand, and to all of which it has been dedicated by you.

At all times, pay it the honor and reverence which you, as soldiers, pay it now.

Parade—rest.

THE GIRL IN HIS HOUSE

A SURPRISE LOVE COMEDY OF NEW YORK TODAY

By HAROLD M'GRATH
Illustrated by LEE CONREY

THE STORY FROM THE START.

James Armitage, a New York clubman, returns from abroad to find that Bordman, an absconding agent, has played havoc with his estate and sold his house, which is occupied by a strange girl named Doris Athelstone, whose father is supposed to be a wealthy wanderer in distant climes.

Armitage discovers that Doris is the daughter of Bordman, who, mortally ill, has given himself up, and is ready to reveal all in his deathbed confession.

CHAPTER XI.

STUNNED by this revelation, Armitage fell back in his chair.

"Doris? . . . Your"——

"Not so loud! Only you and I and God must know that. She must never know. Promise!"

"I—I promise!"

"Never to see her again. . . . Never to feel the gentle touch of her hand on my forehead! . . . Not to see her here beside me! . . . Ah, they talk of hell; but I know, I know! . . . And she might have been all mine! . . . Irony!"

There was a pause; and Armitage waited with unbelieving ears.

"I hated her from the day she was born. Her life cost me her mother's. Few people knew that I was married; scarcely any that I had a child. Many an ugly shell contains a sweet nut. I was like that. I had a soul so big with love that when my wife died my soul left my body and went with hers into the infinite. You will recall me, a shadow of a man, an insignificant automaton who lived for 20-odd years in a groove—from my apartment to the office and back—and you will try with difficulty to conjure up the possibility of a woman loving me. What first calls love? A pleasure to the eye. A handsome man and a beautiful woman are first drawn by those attractive qualities which are pleasing to the eye. But the woman who loved me did not see me; she saw the soul of me. I was loved; even I, a drab shadow! And I went about my daily affairs, obsequious, hand-washing, a servant for hire, when I should have held my head like a king!"

Armitage bent his head in his hands.

"My curse was vanity. I was not vain, but I wanted to be strong and handsome. I wasn't even ugly, only insignificant. Often I gazed upon you with cold fury because you were endowed with the physical attributes I craved. Every soul has some hidden twist in it. I wasn't satisfied with a soul that had called forth the love of a beautiful woman. I practically kept her in concealment because I lived in terror lest she begin to compare me outwardly with others. I wonder was I insane all those years?"

Never had Armitage known such mental anguish. Only one thought was coherent—Doris must never know. Those letters! The joy of her when she read them! And now none would ever come again. After a space, Bordman went on.

"I left Doris with a farmer, telling him to give her the name of Athelstone—the first that came into my head. Four years after a merchant friend of mine agreed to take her to Florence, Italy, and put her in a convent school there. He believed her to be a ward of mine. I still hated her. I never wished to see her or hear of her again. I had a little money saved up. She was welcome to that. So with my own hands I calmly dug the pit of this earthly hell I have lived in."

"Why did you do it?" said Armitage, his head still down.

"Every six months I sent a remittance under the name of Athelstone. I never wished her to find me. It was six years later that God turned His attention to me. One night I was reading in my study. A strange thing happend. I heard a voice calling. It was a child's voice, troubled with tears. I did not understand at first. I took up my book again, but that voice was insistent. Was it mental telepathy? I don't know. But that child's voice called to me all through the night. It was God warning me that I was a father. Next day, stirred by something, knew not what I sat down and wrote Dorris my first letter. I have always called her Doris because that was her mother's name. That first letter was a lie; but I was not concious of that at the time. I wanted to write to her, but I didn't want her. I told her that I was an explorer, an archeologist, that I was too far away to come to her. In an old book of theatrical celebrities I found the portrait of a man who had been dead many years and many years forgotten. I sent it with the letter. In such a dreadful manner I smothered the first call of conscience. Some months later I was again stirred to write. There was an imperative desire to learn what she was like, what her heart and mind were. I told her she might write me care of the American consulate at Alexandria, Egypt. I wrote to the consulate to forward her letter, should it come. A month later I received it. It was a child's letter, so full of unspoken yearning that my heart grew troubled; I regretted that I had written at all. Remember, I did not know what was happening to me."

The voice was a low monotone, without emphasis, without inflections. Bordman was husbanding his waning strength.

"My heart grew troubled. But with the old, senseless fury I beat down the feeling. I didn't want her. I didn't want her. I was fighting God and didn't know it! Out of these tentative impulses evolved what I believed to be a great idea. I carried out the imposture at great lengths. I studied the globe in my office, delved into the encyclopedia. Without realizing it, I had found an interest in life, a cruel one, but nevertheless engaging. I fell to explaining the world to her, the pitfalls, the false dawns. I believe I wrote very well. About the time you left home because a rattle-pated woman had jilted you, I awoke. Terror-stricken, I saw in full what I had done. God had been stronger than I. I wanted her now and I couldn't have her. The man-love for the woman was obliterated by the father-love for the child. I wanted my flesh and blood.

"I saw her in the apartment. I heard her songs and laughter. I saw her across the table at breakfast and at dinner. I wanted her and couldn't have her. Why? I had told her a terrible lie. To that lie I had added another and another until I had built a barrier as high as the Alps. Too late I saw that now I could never cross it. I had instilled such faith in truth in her that, did I declare myself, I would have filled her heart with poison, disillusioned her, destroyed her faith in everything. I could not go to her and declare myself a liar. But God has forgiven me. He has brought you two together. You love her."

"With all my soul!" Armitage reached out and covered the cold, damp hand with his warm one.

"A madman. And the cap to all this madness was the day you left me with all those powers of attorney. It was a nebulous idea then; but it grew and grew. You remained away so long that I believed you would never return. To protect this child from poverty, from hardship, from menial work! I became obsessed. Legally, I knew that you could not disturb her, for she was the daughter of Hubert Athelstone; there were his letters from all over the world, his photograph. It was simple. I would inclose the proper letter, correctly stamped with the stamp of the country I wished it sent from, in a larger envelope, and address it to such and such a consulate, with the superscription directing that if not called for within two weeks, to open and remail. She could not remain in that school forever. Soon she would be facing the world alone; and so I helped myself to half your fortune. Early, before you came back, I used to steal into the house and watch her. I had keys. . . . And God has brought you back to fall in love with her! She is mine, mine! What she is I made her. She would have grown up like a weed in the fields; today her mind is as pure as a crystal and her heart like a country rose. All this that you might reap. Keep her so, and God guard you both!"

"She shall never know."

"The doctor! Tell him to give me some more of that drug!"

Armitage signaled. But the doctor shook his head. He dared not administer another dose of the drug.

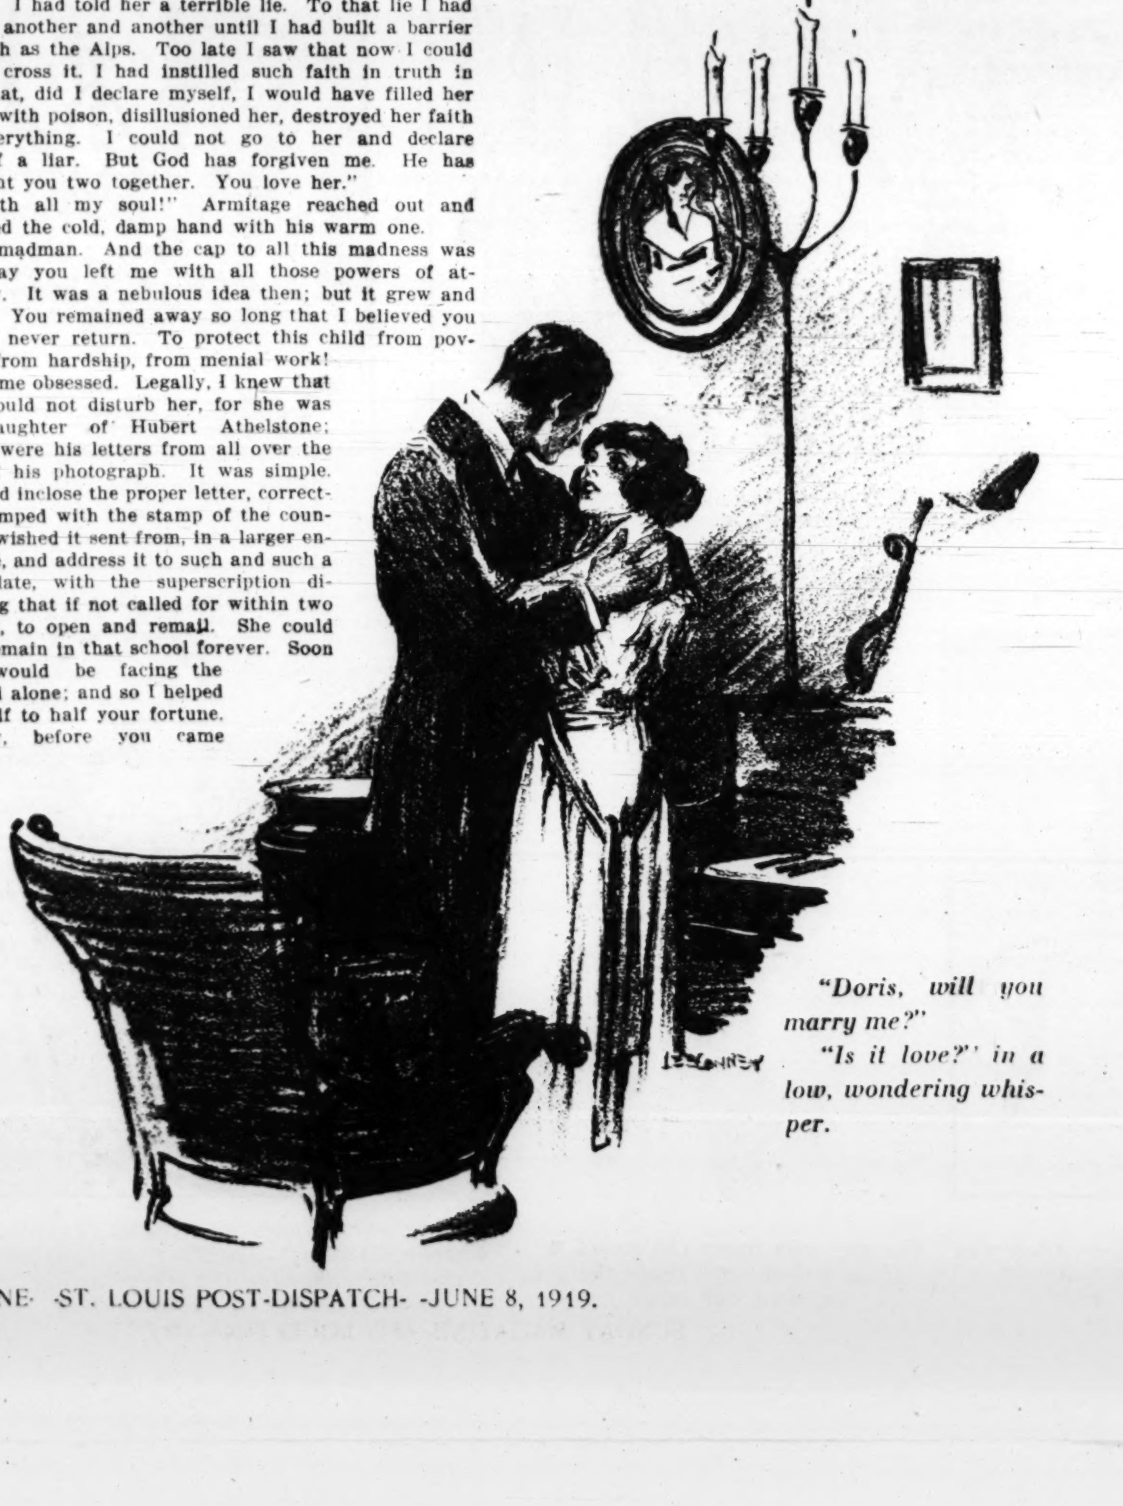
"Listen, Armitage! .. . I can't keep back the cough much longer. I am filling up. I have arranged it at Progreso, Yucatan. When I die, cable the address in my pocket. They will cable Doris that I died there of fever. . . . I am tired!"

At 5 o'clock they laid him back upon his pillow. The little drab man was resting quietly forever.

CHAPTER XII.

IN THE inner pocket of Bordman's coat Armitage found a bundle of papers, consisting of documents, advices regarding mortgages, a confession which ran about the same as the verbal one; instructions as to the disposition of the body. Among these papers was a lengthy report from the private detective agency. Armitage then realized how well informed Bordman had been regarding his visits with Doris, his rides with her. No doubt one of the servants was in the employ of the agency.

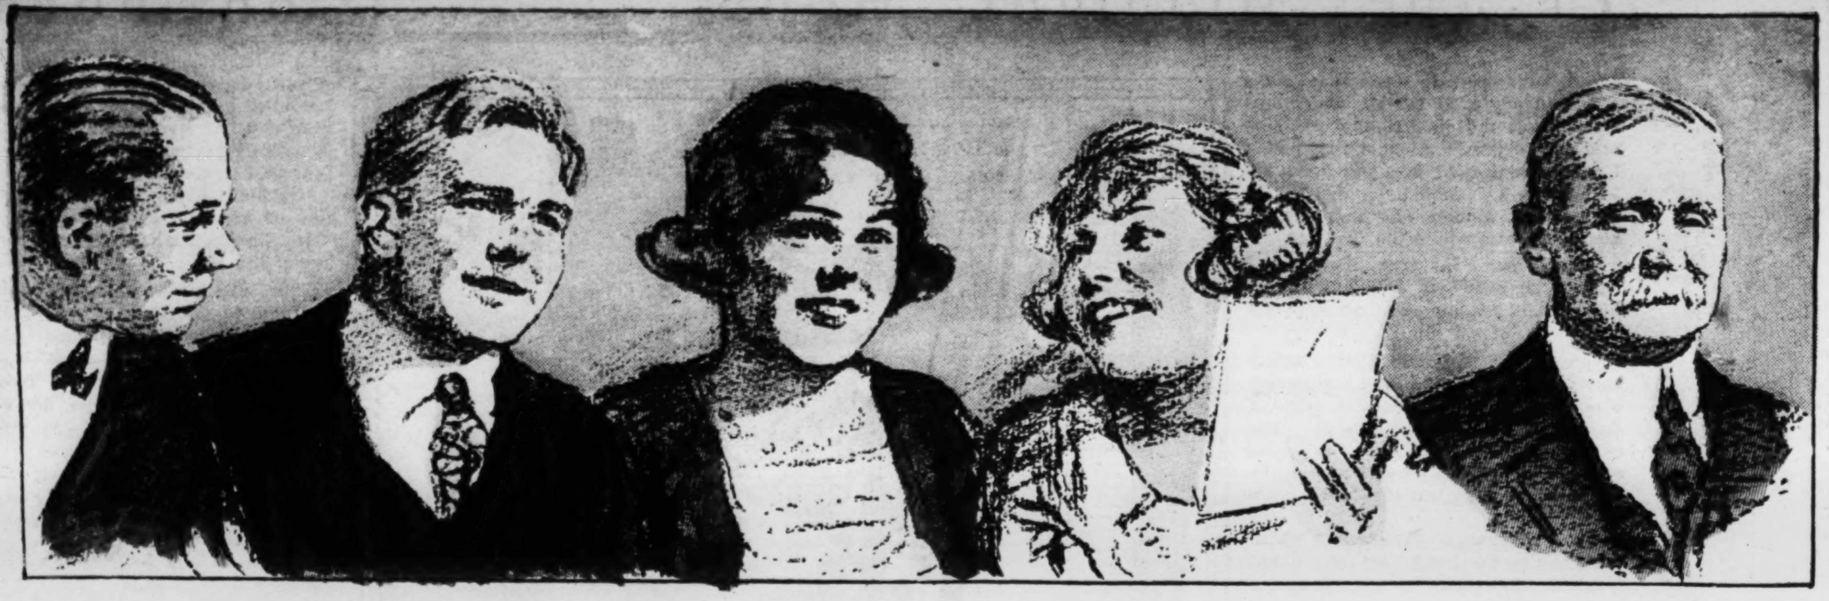
It was noon of the following day when Armitage got into the smoker of a commutation train. In the baggage car was a long pine box. He was going to bury Doris' father.



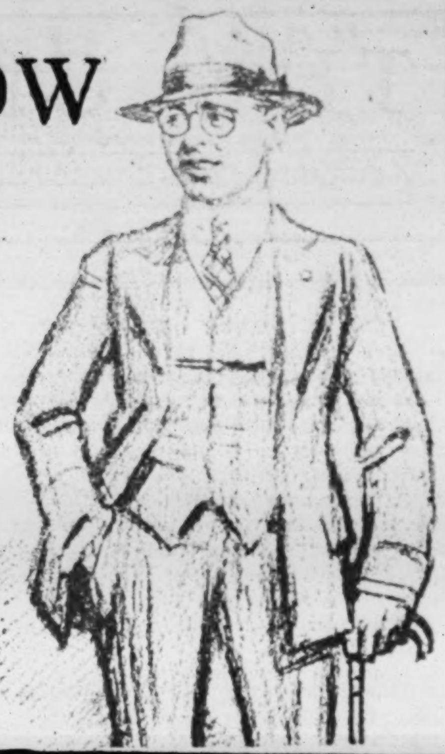
"Doris, will you marry me?"
"Is it love?" in a low, wondering whisper.

AT THE SECOND SHOW

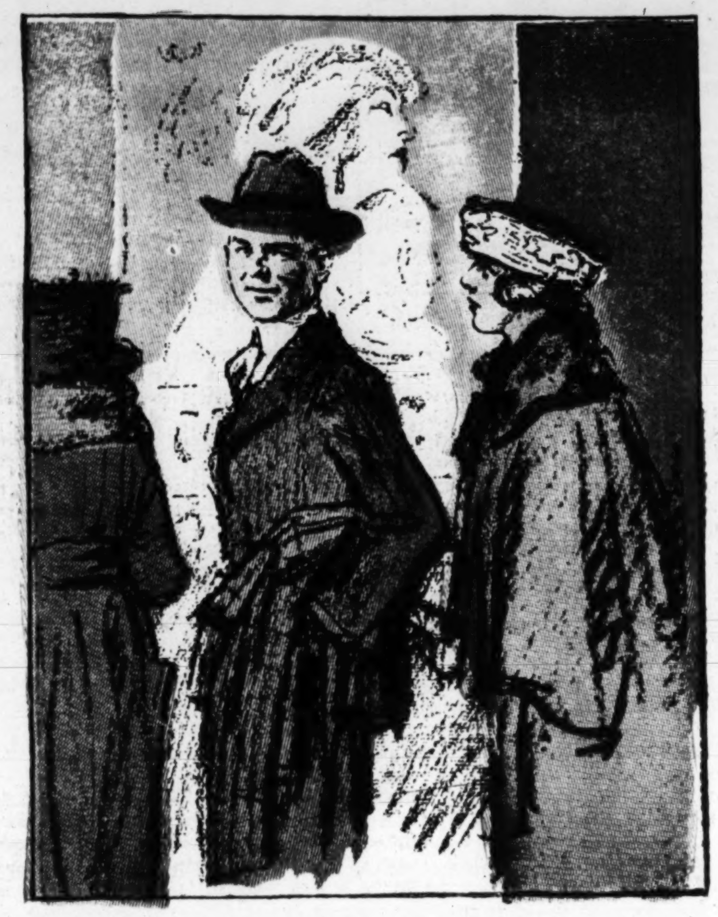
Character Sketches by W. E. HILL



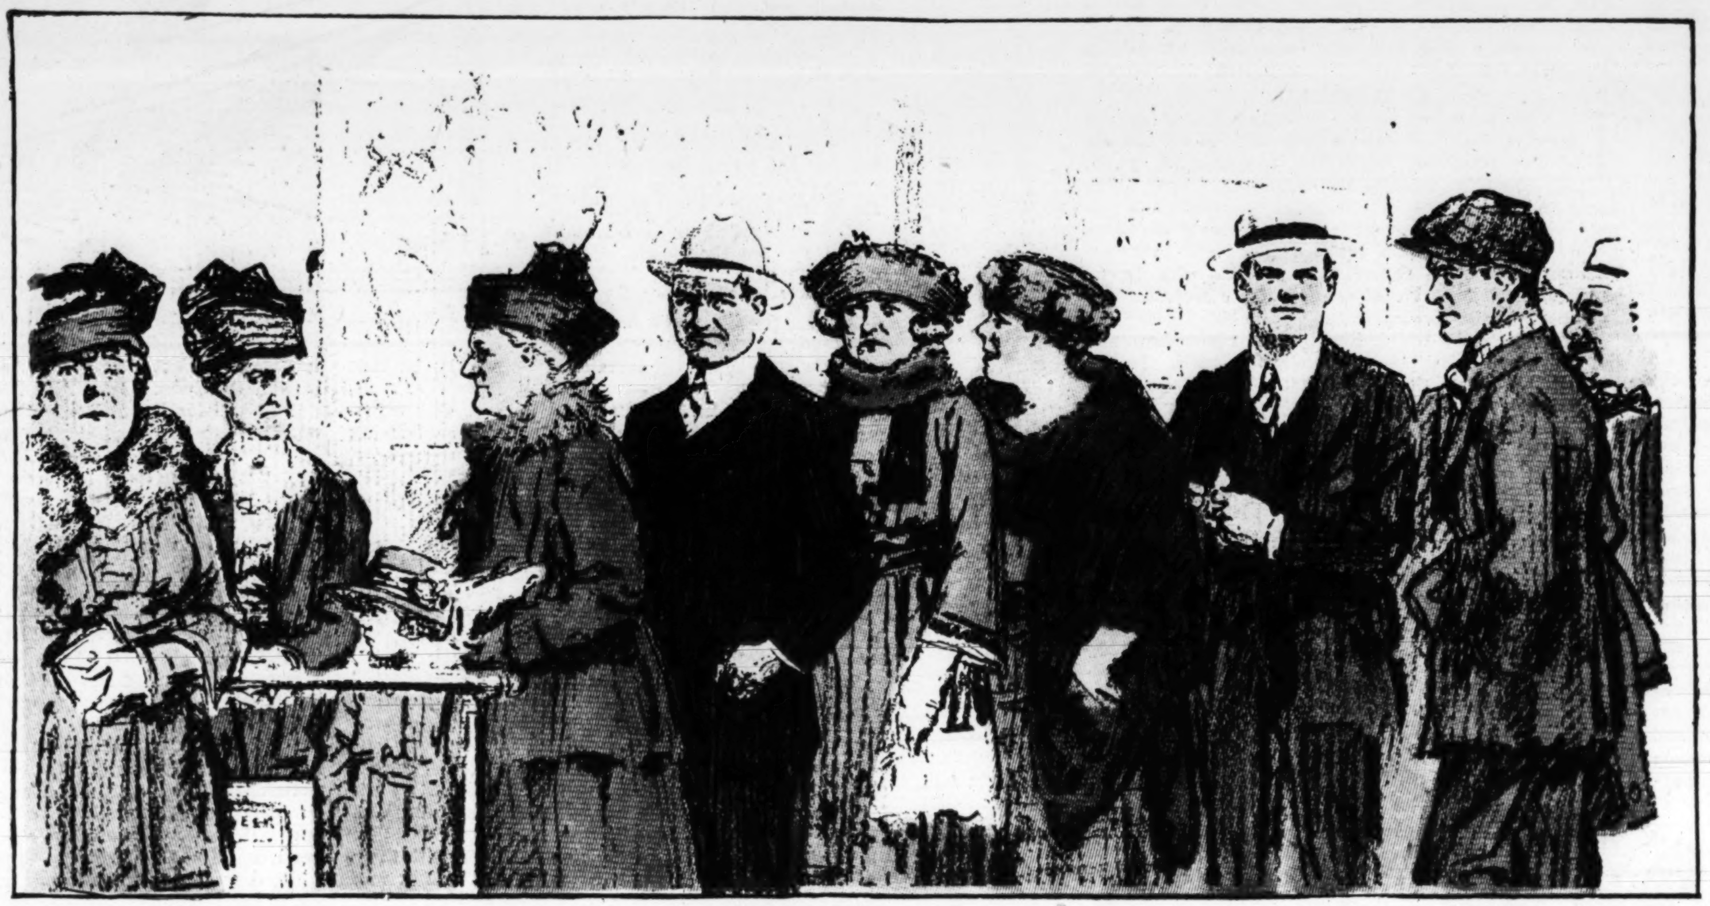
"Oh look—he's hit her in the face with a bowl of lard!" A subtle moment that is much appreciated in the comic film.



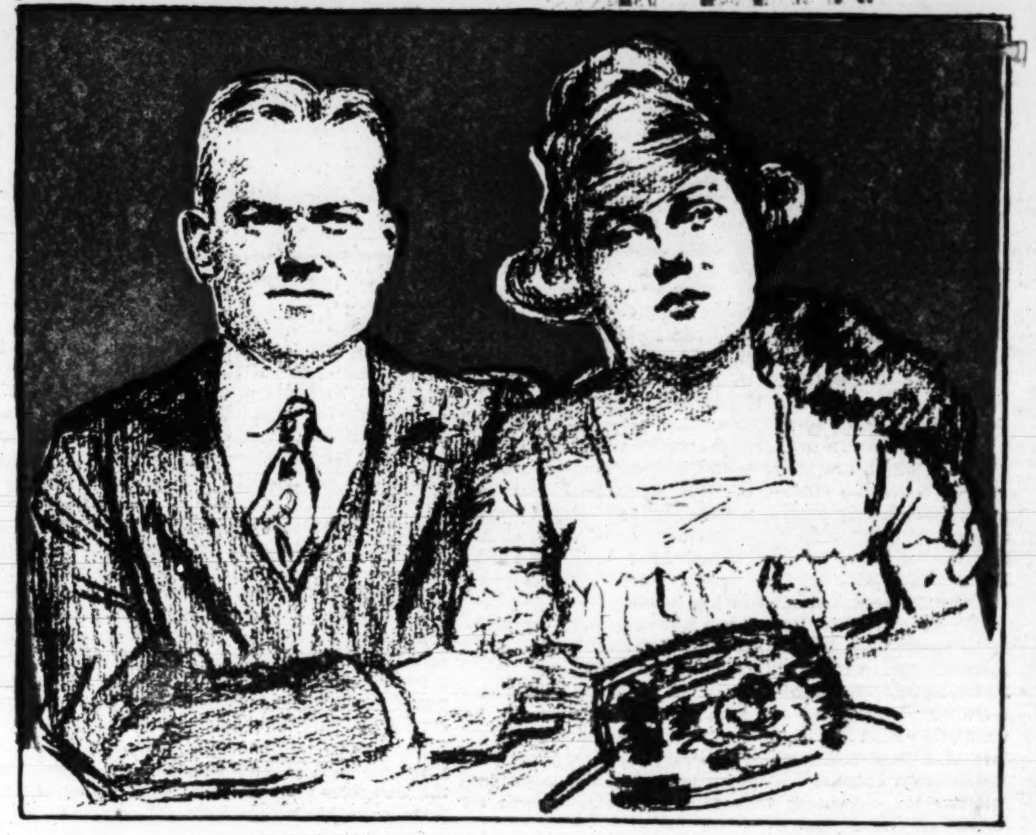
Eddie, the soda dispenser and man about town, has just been over to the second show at the Bijou Dream. "Believe me, they've got some lady vamp this week—got a great pair of lamps, boy, I'll say she has!"



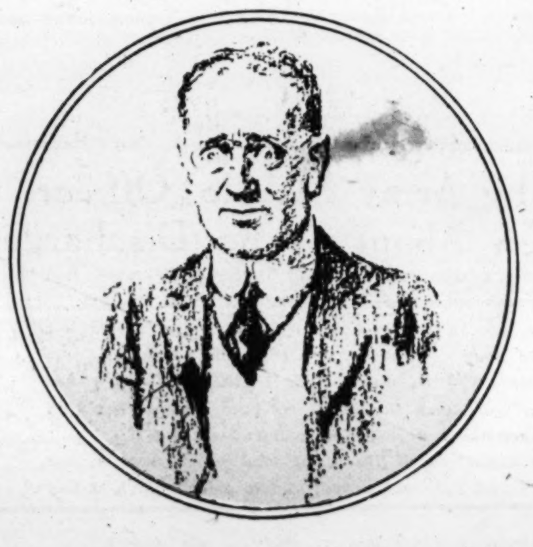
"How about it, kid; you and Rose want some ice cream over at the Sugar Bowl?" Joe has been taking the only girl and her sister to the movies. What with the tax on movie tickets and soda checks, an evening around town makes quite a hole in the Saturday envelope.



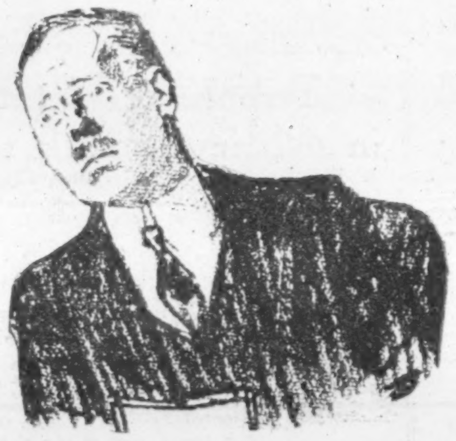
In line for the second show at the "Happy Hour" Emporium. That is, all but the somewhat large lady exerting charm at the left, who is not bothering to wait her turn, but will push in ahead of the line as soon as the window is opened.



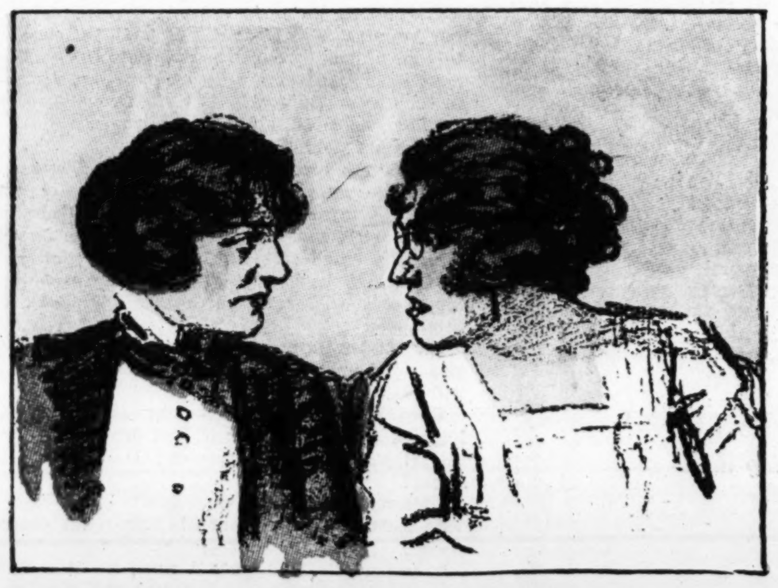
Louella's steady, who is up on all the doings of the film world, is destroying all her illusions about the movie heroes. "That's straight—I got it from a guy who was down to the city last week—Douglas Fairbanks, he says, is less than four feet tall. He looks bigger because they get little people to act with him."



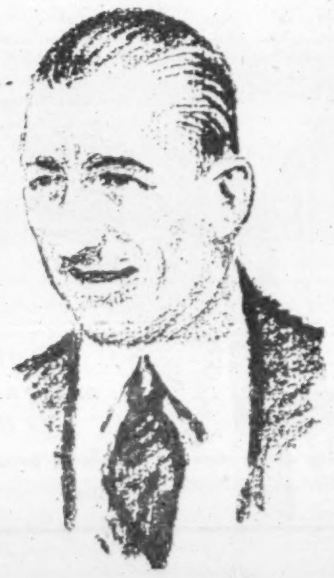
The man who saw the film before and tells every one around what will happen next.



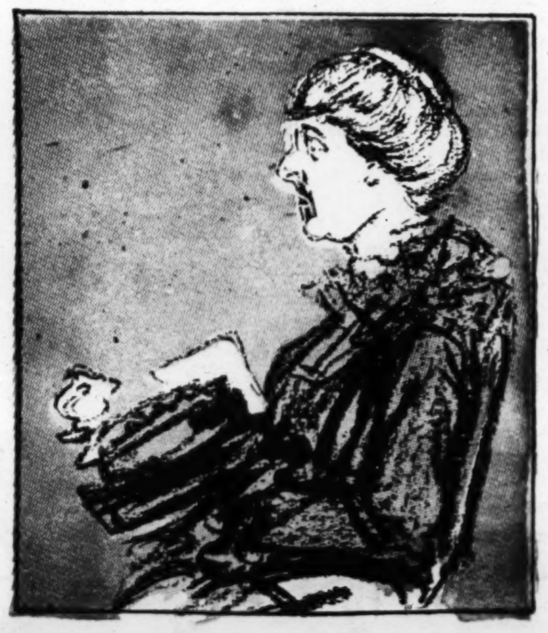
It's something of a stunt to read the captions if you happen to sit in the front row on one end.



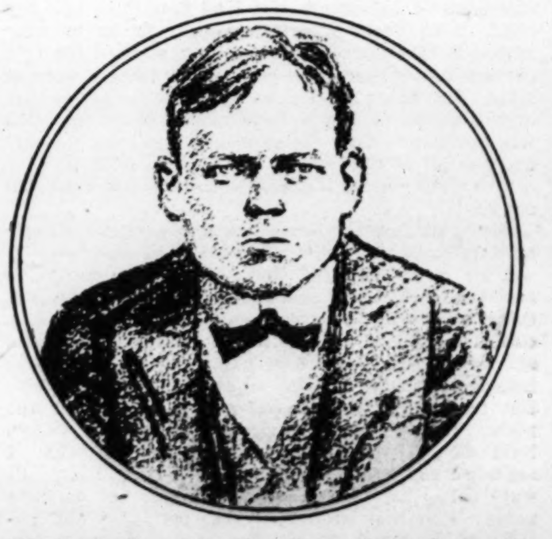
"He told me he was sure I would film well, but, you see, owing to the firm having Norma Talmadge under contract, he didn't want to engage any one so near her type."



The guy who hums the music, a little wrong, and reads the captions out loud.



The lady who "cannot see anything funny in Charlie Chaplin." She likes the instructive films, showing the every-day life of the ichneumon, "How milk is skimmed by machinery," etc.



All George's scenarios have been turned down, although George knows they are a darn sight better than most of the films one sees nowadays. "The Sweetest Rose" is the last one to be rejected, and within a week there comes to town a movie called "Her Sweetest Sin." George is at the second show, on the lookout for plagiarism.

Djer-Kiss

ROUGE AND FACE POWDER

Special $1.00 Including War Tax Combination Offer

The Last Week

FOR the second and last week we are making this very special offer:

1 box of Djer-Kiss Face Powder
1 box of new wonderful Djer-Kiss Rouge

for the attractive price of $1.00. The usual cost of these two Djer-Kiss Spécialités is $1.15.

If Madame did not last week take advantage of this unusual opportunity, she will no doubt wish to do so at once.

Natural colorful Djer-Kiss Rouge comes in shades of Duchesse Marie (natural), Charlotte Corday (medium) and Princesse Jacqueline (dark). Pure adherent Djer-Kiss Face Powder comes in the adorable tints you know so well.

It is to herald the advent of new Djer-Kiss Rouge that we are making this special combination offer.

Go today to your favorite shop. Select the shade of Djer-Kiss Rouge and the tint of Djer-Kiss Face Powder which will best blend to suit the dainty complexion.

Remember: This is the last week that you may obtain the charm of both these Spécialités for the unusual price of $1.00.

Truly, when you use them, Madame, you will be more than content.

ALFRED H. SMITH COMPANY · · NEW YORK

Djer-Kiss Face Powder made and packed in Paris, as it always has been. ¶ Djer-Kiss Rouge temporarily blended in America with Djer-Kiss essence from France.

Note: The prices of Djer-Kiss Face Powder, Talcum and Rouge have been sufficiently reduced to allow for the Government War Tax. Same total price as before.

SAMPLE OFFER—Rouge and Face Powder Trial Discs

In return for 10c the Alfred H. Smith Co., of 5 West 34th Street, New York, will be happy to send you their unique sample —7 trial "felts", 3 treated with new fashionable Djer-Kiss Rouge and 4 with Djer-Kiss Face Powder. They also include a dainty French booklet giving instructions for application of above.

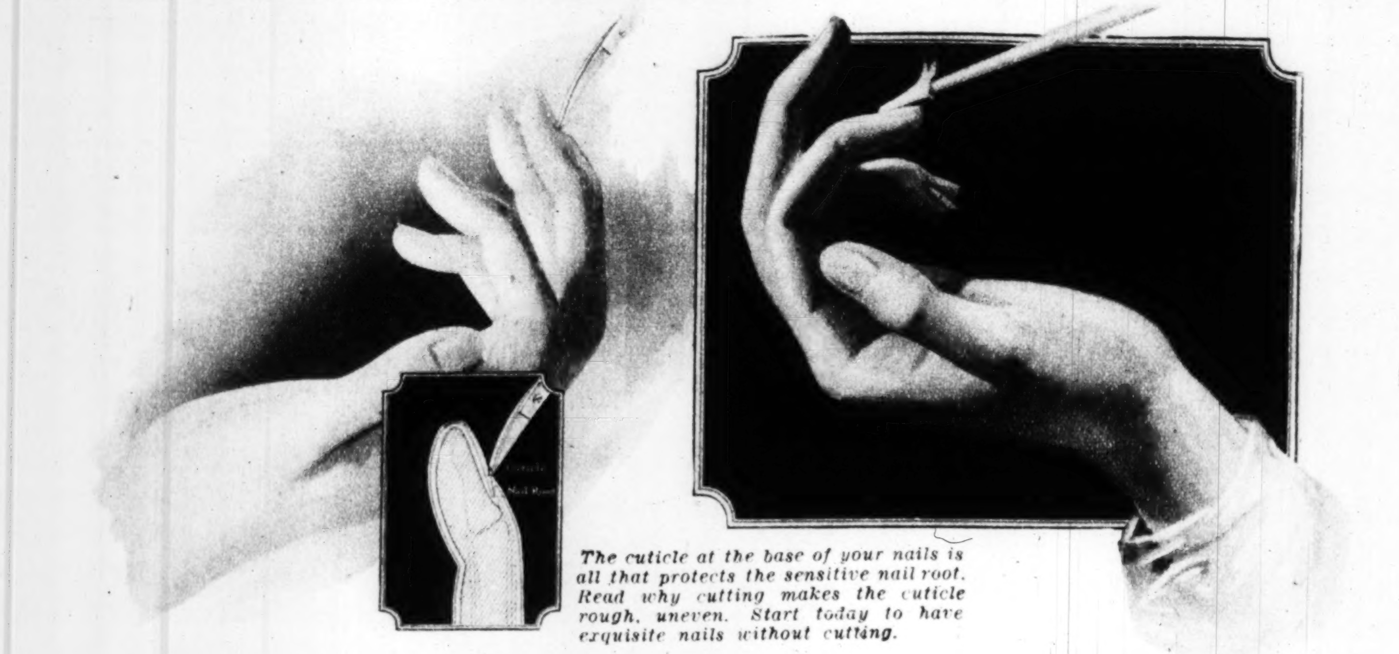
THE COCA-COLA COMPANY
ATLANTA, GA.



The cuticle at the base of your nails is all that protects the sensitive nail root. Read why cutting makes the cuticle rough, uneven. Start today to have exquisite nails without cutting.

The delicate nail root is only 1/12 inch below the cuticle

DO you realize that the only thing that protects the delicate nail root is one-twelfth inch of cuticle? That is why you should not cut it.

When the cuticle is cut, these tender cut surfaces grow more quickly than the uncut parts. They form a ragged-looking edge which ruins the appearance of your hand.

Long ago an expert solved the problem of a harmless cuticle remover, by perfecting Cutex.

Cutex loosens the dry, dead skin which has grown up onto your nail. Quickly and safely it removes surplus cuticle and leaves a smooth, even, thin line at the base of your nail.

In the Cutex package you will find an orange stick and some absorbent cotton. After wrapping cotton around the end of the stick, dip it into the bottle and work it around the base of your nails, gently pressing back the cuticle. Then carefully rinse the fingers in clear water.

Until you have used Cutex you cannot realize what a great improvement the first manicure makes! Cutex, the cuticle remover, comes in 35c and 65c bottles. Cutex Nail White, Nail Polish and Cuticle Comfort are 35c.

The Best Way to Use Rouge

The specialist who created the wonderful La-may Face Powder has invented a new rouge. The rouge is inside the puff. All you do is to rub the puff on your face. It comes through the puff just as you need it. It goes on splendidly and stays on the face until you wash it off. The puff is in a dainty metal box. The box cannot break and the rouge will not crumble like the old-fashioned kind. This newly invented rouge is called La-may (French, Rouge L'Ame). It gives a beautiful color that looks natural under the strongest light. There are two colors—medium and dark. The fifty-cent package will last six months, yet the box is small enough to fit your purse. When you see this pure, harmless Rouge and see how much more convenient it is and how much better it stays on, you will understand why thousands of women say it is the best they have ever used. Because La-may Rouge is so new, your dealer may not have it yet, but he can easily get it. If your dealer refuses to get you a package, you may order by mail from Herbert Roystone, 16 E. 18th St., New York. Save this notice.
